REPORT

RIGHT HONOURABLE SIR GEORGE GREY, BART., M.P.,

HER MAJESTY'S PRINCIPAL SECRETARY OF STATE FOR THE HOME DEPARTMENT.

CENSUS OFFICE, EDINBURGH, Feb. 10, 1864.

SIR,

WE have the honour to present our Second Volume, containing Abstracts of the Ages, Civil Condition, Occupation, and Birthplaces of the People, procured from the Returns made to us according to the Provisions of the Act 23 and 24 Vict., cap. XCVIII., for taking the Census of the Population of Scotland.

The Abstracts now presented are, in some respects, more important than those previously published, inasmuch as on them depend our knowledge of the true condition of the people, the exact number and proportion of those who are living in the married, the single, or the widowed state, and the professions followed; the exact ages of the whole population at every quinquennial period of life, as well as the ages of the different classes of the people, both with reference to their conjugal condition and to the occupations which they follow.

Importance of present Abstracts.

Every member of the community, even though he may not be aware of it, is in reality affected by, and ought therefore to be interested in, these Tables. It is on these Tables, taken in connection with the Registrar-General's Returns of the Births, Deaths, and Marriages, that the calculations ought to be founded for the construction of Life Tables whereby is regulated the premium to be paid at each age for an Insurance on his own or another's life, or for the purchase of an Annuity, etc. These Tables, also, taken in connection with those just noticed, form the basis whereby are ascertained the localities, the professions, the trades, etc., which shorten life, or favour its prolongation. Every thing, therefore, depends on the correctness with which these Tables have been drawn up; and all the care and labour bestowed upon them will have proved to a great extent vain, if the Returns, filled up by the people themselves, have been inaccurate as to ages.

As the sole value of all the Tables in this Volume depends on their being drawn up so as to be comparable with the Registrar-General's Returns of the Births, Deaths, and Marriages, it was necessary that they should exhibit the facts for the Registration Counties and Districts,* and not for the Civil Counties and Parishes. All the Tables, therefore, in this volume, are for the Registration Counties and Districts; and to facilitate their consultation, there is given in Appendix Table I., p. lxiv., the numbers of the persons, males and females, houses, and families for each Registration Division and County.

Present Abstracts
alone applicable to Registration Counties and Districts.

As a proper grouping of the Population according to its density, or its peculiar locality, is of the utmost importance for enabling us to show by Tables the peculiar features of each such group, in addition to the ordinary division into Counties, Scotland has been divided into three great groups of Districts,—the Insular, the Mainland-Rural, and the Town Districts,—retaining in each of these the same Registration Districts as are found in the like groups in the Registrar-General's Reports on the Births, Deaths, and Marriages in Scotland. Thus, the Insular group of Districts consists of Orkney, Shetland, and Bute, with the insular Districts of Ross and Cromarty, Inverness and Argyre. The Town Districts embrace all the Towns with populations above 10,000 inhabitants, as well as the Suburban Districts of Govan and Barony, and the Coatbridge District of Old Monkland; while the Mainland-Rural Districts consist of the remainder of the Mainland Districts of Scotland not included in the Town Districts. See Appendix Table II., p. lxxv.

How Scotland has been divided.

As it is especially important to note all the facts relative to the Town Districts, where large numbers of the people are massed together, we have given as great prominence to each of those Districts, in the Age and in one of the sets of the Occupation Tables, as is given to the Counties themselves, both with the view of facilitating comparison, and also for the purpose of giving at one view the facts ascertained relative to each of these.

* The Population of most of the Registration Counties differs slightly from that of the Civil Counties, in consequence of Parishes which extend to more than one County being held, for the purposes of the Registration Act, to be within the County in which the Parish Church happens to be situated.

AGES OF THE PEOPLE.

It was only at the Census of the Population in 1831 that every one was required, by the Act of Parliament authorizing the taking of the Census, to make a return of his Age, but merely as to whether he was above or under 20 years. At the Census of 1821 it was left optional to fill in, or leave blank, the column for the age; yet eight-ninths of all the persons in Great Britain made a return of their ages. As a Census is quite imperfect without the ages of the people, the late Act required every one to make a return of his age; and the Schedule which was left with each householder required the age to be stated as at 'last Birthday.'

Of the 3,062,294 persons in Scotland on the day on which the Census was taken in 1861, the exact ages of 3,059,599 were ascertained; while the ages of only 2695 persons, consisting of 2467 men and 228 women, were not ascertained. The great majority of the men whose ages were not ascertained, consisted of seamen on board colonial and foreign vessels lying in the creeks and harbours round the coast. By some strange oversight the ages of such persons were not required, and the Schedule furnished to them had no column for the insertion of the Age. The small remainder of the persons whose ages were not entered on the Schedules were, for the most part, persons (often aged) who could give no information as to their age.

In England, when the Books were revised, the Clerk inserted a supposititious age opposite every name where no age had been returned, so that the English Tables bear that every person had returned some age. This we have not ventured to do with the Scottish Tables, because, till the Summary of Ages was abstracted, we had no idea what that number might be, and how far the ascribing a supposititious age would have affected the general accuracy of the Tables. The number of the persons whose ages were not returned in the Schedules have therefore been abstracted and published in a separate column.

ls of false Re-ns of the Ages.

Incorrect Returns of the Ages of a Population lead to many grievous fallacies ; and the untrustworthy Returns of the Ages of the People of Great Britain in 1821 led Mr Rickman to lay down as a natural law of Population, that the number of males above and under 20 years of age should be equal.

Both in 1821 and in 1831, the people had a strong inducement to make a false return of the Ages above and under 20 years, in order to avoid the Militia enrolment. But, in 1831, theory was so much preferred to truth, that the overseers, who had to receive the Returns, were instructed to correct these Returns, so as to bear out Mr Rickman's theory ; for the instructions were, ' If the number of males upwards of 20 years old should differ materially from one-half of the total number of males, some error has probably been committed, and the answer of this question should be examined, and corrected if necessary.' People and overseers cordially responded to that invitation to return a false age, if near 20 ; and accordingly in that year, 1831, the Returns show that the males above 20 years of age only exceeded in number those under that age by about three-fourths of a per centage !

d under 20 years.

The Census of 1841 was, therefore, the first when the Ages of the Population in Great Britain were ascertained with any approach to accuracy, and then the fallacy of Mr Rickman's rule was demonstrated ; for, instead of the male population above and under 20 years of age being equal in numbers, 53·1 per cent. were above 20 years of age, while only 46·9 per cent. were below that age.

In 1851 the same fact was demonstrated, viz., that the number of males above 20 years of age considerably exceeded those under 20, and the proportions were almost the same as in 1841 ; for in every 100 males, 53·8 were above 20 years of age, and only 46·2 below that age.

In the recent Census of 1861, the same great fact was manifested ; for, in every 100 males in Great Britain, 53·1 were above 20 years of age, but only 46·9—the exact proportion of 1841—below that age.

The very steadiness, then, in the proportion of males above and under 20 years of age, in the Population of Great Britain, for a period of 30 years, gives us strong confidence in the general correctness of these last three Censuses ; and proves to demonstration that the previous Returns of the Ages were not trustworthy, and the theories founded on them erroneous.

Though Mr Rickman and other late writers on Population have failed to detect it, there is, apparently, a natural law relative to the proportion of males above and under 20 years of age in the several Countries of the world. The law, however, seems to apply to females as well as to males, in fact to the whole population. That natural law appears to be, that in every Country whose population is increasing by births alone (i.e., by excess of births over deaths), the number of males above 20 years of age exceeds the number under that age. While, in every Country whose increase is largely upheld by the number of Emigrants who resort to it—provided the number of the sexes in the general population is nearly equal—a greater proportion of males is under 20 years of age than above that age.

All old settled Countries, therefore, like those of Europe, as their populations are dependent for their increase on the excess of births over deaths, exhibit a larger proportion of males above 20 years of age than under it. We have just proved that fact with regard to Britain for a period of 30 years. It is the same with regard to England and Scotland taken respectively. Thus, England in 1861 had 5,230,573 males above 20 years of age; but only 4,545,686 under that age. Scotland in 1861 had 737,974 males above 20 years of age; but only 711,874 under that age. Norway in 1855 had 401,449 males above 20 years of age; but only 328,465 under that age. Denmark, the same year, had 691,137 males above 20 years of age; but only 537,701 under that age. Hanover, the same year, had 503,578 males above 20 years of age; but only 403,420 under that age, etc., etc. It is needless to multiply examples; the fact may be considered to be proved.

Law in Old settled Countries.

New settled Countries, on the other hand, a considerable proportion of whose increase depends on the number of immigrants who resort to them, exhibit the very reverse of all this; for with them the males under 20 years of age exceed in number those above that age. We have only received the Preliminary Report on the United States Census for 1860, which does not allude to the Ages, so that we cannot quote the late Census for confirmation of our views; but the three previous Censuses afford ample confirmation of the truth of that law. Thus, in the United States of America in 1830, there were 2,997,985 males under 20 years of age; but only 2,359,149 above that age. In 1840, there were 3,930,429 males under 20 years; but only 3,319,005 above that age. In 1850, there were 5,111,185 males under 20 years; but only 4,908,067 above that age.

Law in New settled Countries.

Our Colonies would be found to exhibit that same great law or fact, could we procure trustworthy Returns of the Ages of the Population, and were the number of males and females in the population nearly equal. As it is, only three Returns have fallen in our way which throw any light on this interesting subject, and they fully bear out the above conclusions. Thus, Upper Canada in 1852 had 272,927 males under 20 years of age; but only 224,737 above that age. Lower Canada, the same year, had 250,981 males under 20 years; but only 193,913 above that age. The third Return is from South Australia; but unfortunately that Return is not made so as to permit of the same strict comparison, because the Ages are given at every septennial period. Making full allowance, however, for this, it would appear that while about 30,512 males were under 20 years, 29,166 were above that age.

All these facts, then, demonstrate that there is some general law which regulates the proportion of the population above and under 20 years of age in the different Countries,—causing the proportion above 20 years of age to exceed that under that age in all those Countries whose population is increasing solely by the excess of births over deaths; but, on the other hand, causing the proportion above 20 years to fall below the proportion under that age in those Countries where the increase is largely due to Immigration.

Statists have often had a glimpse of this law, though they have hitherto failed to recognise it, or trace it to its true source. From finding, however, that the proportion of children under 20 years of age was large in the United States, they have made two assumptions to endeavour to account for the fact; first, that the women married earlier, and, in consequence, bare more children than the women of Europe, and secondly, that they were more prolific, and both bare and reared more children.

Erroneous theories from not having discovered the law.

Not a single fact, worthy of the name, has yet been published which bears out such assumptions.

As to the first supposed cause, that it was due to early marriages, we must understand distinctly what is meant by early marriage. As a general proposition, it is quite true that early marriages produce more children than late ones; that is to say, that a woman married at 20 has a much better chance of a family than one married at 40. But that is not the question at issue, which is one of degree alone; and which may be stated to be the assumption that a woman married under 20 years of age will have more children than one married between 20 and 25.

Supposed early marriages do not account for the facts.

Now what are the facts? Or have any facts been published on such a subject? One fact is patent to all, that the nations which habitually enter into the married state when mere children, have not more children to a marriage than nations who only as a general rule marry when adult age is attained.

So far as we know, the only attempt at collecting statistics on such a subject was made by the Statistical Society of London in 1848; and though the scale was a limited one, the conclusions must be received provisionally, seeing they are the only facts we have and also because they harmonize with the above-noticed facts as to early and later marriages in different nations.

That inquiry by the Statistical Society proved, that ‘there is very little difference in this respect (viz., the number of children to the marriage) between marriages contracted at ages 16–20, and 21–25.’

From this it is apparent, that were all the marriages in America contracted between 16 and 20 years, and those in the older States of Europe from 20 to 25, no appreciable difference in the number of children to a family could result from that cause. The mere circumstance, then, of women marrying earlier in one nation than another, will not serve to account for any difference in the number of persons above or under 20 years of age.

But the fact is, in so far as we have the means of ascertaining it, that very nearly as great a proportion of our females contract marriage under 25 years as in America itself.

Thus, the Statistics of Massachusetts, which are believed to be the best kept of all the States of America, proved, that on a three years’ average, 67 per cent. of the women who marry are under 25 years. This may be accepted as the average rate over America, and as indicating the proportion of early marriages at the most fruitful age. But in England 62 per cent. of all the women who marry are under 25 years of age. The difference therefore is so trifling, that were every possible margin given to this cause, it would not in the slightest degree account for the difference between the persons above and under 20 years of age in the Old and in the New Countries.

As to the second supposed cause, the greater fruitfulness of women in the New Countries, we have not a single fact which bears out such a supposition; and the mode in which a family is estimated in America and in Britain differs so much, that no comparison can be instituted between the numbers which constitute a family in America and in this Country, in so far as official returns permit of a comparison.

We must seek, then, for some other explanation of the fact, that in New States the persons under 20 exceed in numbers those above that age; while in Old States the persons above 20 are most numerous; and it is not difficult to find one which satisfies every demand.

In the Older States of Europe, speaking in a general way, only from 55 to 65 per cent. of the women above 15 years of age are or have been married. In the New and rising States and Colonies to which there is a great influx of immigrants, from 75 to 85 per cent. of the women above 15 years of age are or have been married. It follows from this, as a natural consequence, that in the New States and Colonies a much larger proportion of children, in proportion to the population, must be born annually, than in the Older States, seeing that there is fully 20 per cent. more married females in the population of these New States and Colonies.

Accounted for by fact, that in New settled Countries a much larger proportion of the women are married.

This explanation seems satisfactorily to account for the number of persons under 20 years of age exceeding in number those above 20 in all New States and Colonies, without supposing that they are more prolific, which has never been demonstrated; or that marrying a year or two earlier causes them to have larger families, to which recent statistics lend no countenance. It can scarcely, therefore, be doubted, that the above is the true explanation.

By means of Tables I. and II., some facts are brought to light which fully confirm the remarks which were made in our First Report on the Census of Scotland, when directing attention to the disparity between the number of the sexes, and endeavouring to account for the fact. In that Report (p. xxii), the excessive disproportion of the sexes, viz., 111 females to every 100 males, was attributed to two causes; first, to the greater mortality among the males at all ages, as proved by the Reports and Tables of the Registrar-General; and secondly, to the large Emigration of the males—an Emigration much larger proportionally than exists in England.

Disproportion of the sexes.

These Tables, exhibiting the number and the proportion of males and of females living in Scotland at every quinquennial period of life, show that, during the earlier periods of life, the number of the males greatly preponderates in the population; for under 5 years of age there were 212,009 males, but only 205,250 females. This excess of males also continues during the next two quinquennial periods, seeing that from 5 to 10 years of age there were 184,317 males, but only 178,867 females; while between 10 and 15 years of age there were 165,120 males, but only 157,608 females.

Males exceed females at all ages under 15 years.

After that period, however, Emigration, and other causes, begin to tell seriously on the number of the males, so that from 15 to 20 years of age the males fall below the females in number, and continue so till the close of life. Thus, from 15 to 20 years of age there were in Scotland in 1861 only 150,428 males; but 156,991 females. From 20 to 25 years, there were only 127,926 males; but 152,870 females. From 40 to 45 years, there were only 74,061 males; but 88,661 females. From 70 to 75, there were only 7,894 males; but 25,709 females. Above 100 years, there were only 30 males; but 57 females.

Excess of females chiefly caused by Emigration.

Speaking in a general way, therefore, it may be said that these Tables prove, that though at the outset in life about 105 male children entered the world for every 100 female, yet from the greater waste of male life (see Table V.), and the larger proportion of males who emigrate, etc., the numbers of the respective sexes become equalized about the 18th year of life ; from which period, till the close of life, the number and proportion of the females increasingly preponderate in the population.

This fact is more strikingly manifested by Table IV., in which the numbers at the respective ages are reduced to their proportions—columns 1 and 2 showing the relative proportions of males and of females in every 100 persons of both sexes at each age ; and column 4 showing the proportion of females to every 100 males at each age.

Taking column 3 as the most intelligible, because the most strictly comparable, it is seen, that during the three quinquennial periods of life under 15 years, the males were in excess, seeing that, at these ages, there were only from 95 to 97 females for every 100 males.

During the period from 15 to 20 years of age, the females first exhibit a higher proportion than the males ; and during that period (sinking fractional parts) the proportion of females has so increased—or rather the proportion of males has so diminished, that there are 104 females for every 100 males. In fact, by the 20th year of life, the proportion of the sexes, as observed at birth, is reversed.

From the 20th to the 60th year of life, the excess of females over males, with some slight exceptions, continues pretty steadily at the average proportion of 119 females to every 100 males. After the 60th year, however, the male drops off in so much larger numbers than the female, that at every successive stage of life the number and proportion of females in the population increase. Thus, between 60 and 65 years of age, there were 131 females for every 100 males. Between 70 and 75 years of age, there were 143 females for every 100 males. Between 80 and 85, there were 158 females for every 100 males. Between 90 and 95, there were 189 females for every 100 males. While from 100 to 105 years of age, there were in the proportion of 196 females for every 100 males.

This sudden diminution in the proportion of the males after the 20th year, is far too great to be ascribed to any difference between the mortality of the respective sexes ; but can alone be attributed to the great draft made on the male sex by Emigration, by the Army, the Navy, and the Merchant Shipping.

From these Tables, however, some further interesting conclusions may be deduced. It has already been shown that the male Emigration must be great ; but we know from other sources, that a certain, but unknown, portion return to settle in their native country at a later period of life. Table IV. seems, to a certain extent, to indicate what that proportion is, and the period of life at which these wanderers return.

Thus, from the 15th to the 30th year of life, the Table shows that the proportion of females in the population progressively increases, till at the latter age it attains the high proportion of 129 females to every 100 males. From the 30th year till the 60th year of life, that high proportion of females to the males, at each quinquennial period of life, diminishes, attaining its lowest proportion between the ages of 45 and 50, when it is so low as only 116 females to every 100 males. Speaking in a general way, however, it may be said that from the 30th year of life the proportion of females to males diminishes from 129 females to every 100 males at 30 years of age, to 119 females to every 100 males at 60 years of age.

Now, it is a singular fact that it is at these very ages, viz. from 30 to 60, that no inconsiderable number of males return again to Scotland; and no one who considers the matter can fail to perceive, that the known fact gives countenance to the supposition that the above-noticed diminution in the proportion of the females between the ages of 30 and 60—inferring a proportional increase of the males—is thus satisfactorily accounted for, and enables us approximatively to estimate the number of males who, after an absence of years, return again to their own land. That number may be roughly estimated at from 1000 to 1200 annually.

Probable number of return male emigrants.

During the ten years from 1851 to 1861, the males increased by 74,369, but the females by 99,183; so that the increase of the females during that period exceeded that of the males by 24,814 females. If due allowance be made for the greater male mortality at all ages, these figures would show, approximatively, that about 24,000 more males than females had been drafted from Scotland during the ten years 1851 to 1861.

Probable excess of male emigrants in ten years.

Table VI., which shows the numbers of each sex at the different quinquennial periods in 1851 and 1861, and the increase or decrease during these ten years, confirms all the above conclusions as to the ages at which the male emigrants leave Scotland, and those at which a certain proportion return.

But that Table also shows a remarkable fact (supposing that the ages were correctly returned in 1851), viz., that between 20 and 30 years, the males, instead of increasing, fell off in numbers by 3458 persons.

The enormous Emigration from Scotland during the ten years 1851 to 1861 probably accounts for this circumstance, seeing that the number who emigrated during that period

NOTE.—The Records in the Commissioners' Office do not show the Native Origin of Emigrants prior to 1853. The numbers for the years 1851 and 1852 are, therefore, estimated on an average of the proportions for the years 1853 and 1854.

During the first three months of 1851, the Emigrants from Great Britain and Ireland numbered 56,584. As these emigrated from the country before the Census of 1851 was taken, they must be deducted from the above totals. But, on the other hand, there must be added the number of Emigrants who left the country before the 8th day of April 1861. These amounted to 18,734 persons. If we assume that the numbers whose nationality was not ascertained should be distributed proportionally over the rest, then the following Table will show the actual number of each class of Emigrants who left the country between the taking of the Census of 1851 and that of 1861.

	Total.	English.	Scotch.	Irish.	Foreigners.
1st April 1851, to 8th April 1861,	2,249,355	640,210	183,627	1,230,986	194,532 exceeded the increase of the population in these ten years. Thus the total increase of the population during these ten years was only 173,553 persons; but the total Scottish Emigration during the same period amounted to 183,627 persons, and that number gives no idea whatever of the very large number who emigrated to England or Ireland during the same period. (See Table VII.)

Table VI. demonstrates one curious result, that both among the males and females the number of persons above 90 years of age decreased during the ten years 1851–1861 the males by 43, the females by 25 persons. Thus, in 1851, there were altogether 1950 persons 90 years of age and upwards, 679 of whom were males, and 1271 females. In 1861, however, there were only 1882 persons 90 years of age and upwards, of whom 636 were males, and 1246 females. The period, therefore, between 1851 and 1861 must have been very fatal to persons at extreme ages; and the great severity of some of the winters during these years, and the very high proportion of aged persons who were cut off thereby may serve to account for the circumstance.

Since the Registration Act came into operation in Scotland in 1855, there have been annually entered in the Registers the deaths of 35 persons above 100 years of age. In most of the cases no satisfactory documentary evidence was produced as to the correctness of the entry; but in a few instances the birth register proved that the persons had really attained the ages they were represented to be; and in the case of two females, that age was above 105 years. The imperfections of the Old Parochial Registers, and the few entries of births made in them, for the most part prevent the exact ages of these centenarians being ascertained, so that not very much confidence can be placed on these ages being correctly returned in the Census. In 1851, the persons above 100 years of age numbered 103, consisting of 32 males and 71 females. But in 1861, the Census returns only showed 87 persons above 100 years of age, of whom 30 were males and 57 females. (See Appendix Table VIII., p. lxxii.)

The relative increase of males and females above and under 20 years of age merits notice (see Table VI.). During the ten years 1851 to 1861 the males under 20 years increased by 42,304 persons; the female increase at the same ages being 39,632. These numbers reduced to proportions would show that in the ten years the males had increased 6·3 per cent.; the females 6 per cent.—a very slight difference in favour of the male.

Very different, however, was the respective increase of males and of females above 20 years of age, for the male increase only amounted to 32,065 persons; while the female increase numbered 59,551. In other words, while the males above 20 years of age, in ten years, only increased at the rate of 4·5 per cent., the female increase at the same age and during the same period, amounted to 6·9 per cent.

The most interesting and instructive Tables, however, with reference to Age, are Appendix Tables III. and IV., the first of these being for the males and the latter for the females. In these Tables, the Ages of males and of females are divided into five different periods of life, and in the first five columns are given the numbers living at each of these different ages, and in the next five columns the proportions in every 100 persons of each sex at the respective ages. As this is done for every County in Scotland, for its six largest Towns, and for its three great groups of Districts, the Insular, the Mainland-Rural, and the Town Districts, the facts elicited allow some very interesting conclusions to be deduced. For comparison's sake, the numbers and proportions for England at the same ages are appended. (Appendix Tables III. and IV., pp. lxvi. and lxvii.)

By the Table for the Males it is seen, if the ages be taken at four periods of life only that in every 100 males in all Scotland 49·100 were under 20; that 27·534 were between 20 and 40; that 16·301 were between 40 and 60; while only 7·065 were above 60 years of age. In England the proportions in every 100 males were 46·497 under 20 years; 29·116 between 20 and 40 years; 17·344 between 40 and 60; and 7·043 above 60 years. It is thus seen that the proportions at these different ages differ considerably in England and in Scotland; for while in Scotland the proportion of males under 20 years considerably exceeds that of England at the same age, the proportion of males in Scotland between 20 and 40 years, and also between 40 and 60 years, falls greatly below that of England at the same ages.

This result is just what it ought to be, provided we were correct as to the greater proportional Emigration of males from Scotland. If more males between the ages of 20 and 60 had been left in the population of Scotland, the proportions under 20 would have been less, and the proportions between 20 and 60 years of age more than the Table shows them to be. This comparison, therefore, corroborates the correctness of our previous conclusions.

It is more interesting, however, to compare the proportions at these different ages in the Rural and in the Town Districts, as such a comparison throws light on the great internal Emigration of the people which is going on from the Rural Districts to the Town

It must be premised that, between 1851 and 1861, the population of the Insular Districts of Scotland decreased at the rate of 3·5 per cent.; the population of the Mainland-Rural Districts increased at the rate of 2·9 per cent.; while that of the Town Districts increased at the rate of 12·6 per cent.

In the Mainland-Rural Districts (omitting fractional parts) 50 per cent. of the males were under 20 years of age; in the Town Districts only 47 per cent. In the Mainland-Rural Districts 25 per cent. of the males were between 20 and 40 years of age; but in the Town Districts 30 per cent. at the same ages. Both in the Mainland-Rural and in the Town Districts 16 per cent. of the males were between 40 and 60 years of age. But in the last period of life, viz., above 60, there were 8 per cent. in the Mainland-Rural Districts, but only 5 per cent. in the Town Districts.

It is thus seen that between the ages of 20 and 40, the active working period of life, the Town Districts contain a much larger proportion of males than exists in the Rural Districts. It is easily seen that this extra proportion in the Towns at that active period of life is due to the persons having been attracted to the Towns by the possibility of procuring employment. This at once accounts for the Rural Districts only having increased their population at the low rate of 2·9 per cent. in ten years, while the Town increase was 12·6 per cent. The fact is, that the Rural Districts already possess as great a population as can find employment, so that the surplus population is forced to emigrate either to the Towns or to foreign Countries.

But what is true of the Mainland-Rural Districts applies, if possible, with still greater force to the Insular Districts. In them the proportion of males between the ages of 20 and 40 is only 24 in every 100 males at all ages. These districts are already overstocked with population; have more inhabitants than the soil can sustain, and the consequence is, that a much larger proportion of the population requires to seek employment on the Mainland, or to emigrate, else they would starve at home. This is the reason why the population of these Insular Districts is decreasing; and it is desirable that the population should still further decrease, by Emigration, or by seeking service in the Army, Navy, Merchant Shipping, or Fishing, in order to bring the sustenance which the soil can produce on a par with the number of inhabitants who have to be supported thereby.

Now, if we cast our eye down the 9th column of Appendix Table III., viz., that exhibiting the proportion of males between the ages of 20 and 40, we shall find, that in every County where the supply of population is greater than the demand for remunerative labour, here the proportion of males at these ages is low. In fact, we shall find that every County which either exhibited a low increase of population between 1851 and 1861, or a positive decrease, has a lower proportion of its population between 20 and 40 than the Counties where there is a demand for labour, and where the increase in population has been near or above the average of all Scotland.

Thus the Counties in which there was a positive decrease in the male population between 1851 and 1861 were Sutherland, Ross and Cromarty, Inverness, Kincardine, Perth, Kinross, Clackmannan, Argyll, Bute, Dumfries, Kirkcudbright, and Wigtown, and in these the average proportion of men between the ages of 20 and 40 years of age was not quite 24½ per cent. of the total males in these Counties.

Contrast that proportion with that occurring in those Counties in which the population increased above 10 per cent. between 1851 and 1861. These Counties were Lanark, Renfrew, Dumbarton, and Linlithgow; and in these no fewer than 30 per cent. of the male population were between the ages of 20 and 40 years.

Every one who is acquainted with the condition of the Country knows that the Towns draft a large portion of the able-bodied men from the Rural Districts; but this Table demonstrates the fact, and shows where a considerable portion of the country population between the ages of 20 and 40 find a livelihood. Thus, of the four towns, Glasgow, Edinburgh, Dundee, and Greenock, no less than 32 per cent. of the males were between the ages of 20 and 40 years. In Glasgow and Greenock indeed, the most rapidly increasing of all the Towns, and in which the demand for remunerative labour is greatest, above 33 per cent. of all the males were between the ages of 20 and 40.

It is a singular fact, that over the whole Country, whether consisting of Islands, of Towns, or of Rural Districts, the proportion of males between the ages of 40 and 60 is nearly uniform, so uniform that the proportions in the several Counties, and Towns, and Districts scarcely vary from the average of all Scotland, viz. 16⅓ per cent.

This fact is easily accounted for. Though these Towns and Districts where the demand for labour is great, contain so much larger a proportion of their population between the ages of 20 and 40 years, yet the wear and tear of life is so much greater in them than in the Rural or Insular Districts, that the males are cut off in a much higher proportion. Although the Towns, therefore, started with a much higher proportion between the ages of 20 and 40, yet the mortality among them during a twenty years' period is so much greater than in the quiet Rural Districts, that at the next vicennial period of life, viz., from 40 to 60, the proportion is nearly equalized.

This inference is thoroughly corroborated by the Mortality Tables of the Registrar General for Scotland, who, in his Detailed Report for 1858, gives the mortality in Town and Country at different periods of life, for the four years 1855 to 1858 inclusive. In that Report it is shown that the mortality, at all ages, is much higher in the Town than in the Rural Districts; and by comparing the Tables, it can easily be seen that the difference in the mortality in Town and Country, at the ages under discussion, is quite sufficient to account for the facts above noticed.

Appendix Table III., however, enables us to draw some further deductions. Over all Scotland, the male population above 60 years of age composed only 7 per cent. of the males. But in the Town Districts, where, as has already been shown, the waste of life is great, little more than 5 per cent. of the male population are above 60 years of age; while in the Mainland-Rural Districts it is nearly 8 per cent., and in the Insular Districts 10 $\frac{1}{10}$ per cent.

Now, if we pass our eyes down the last column of Appendix Table III., we shall find the same fact exhibited relative to the several Counties, and to the individual Towns. In Glasgow and Greenock, for instance, where the mortality exceeds that of all other Towns and all the Counties, only 3 $\frac{9}{10}$ and 4 $\frac{3}{10}$ per cent. of the populations respectively were above 60 years of age. In the County of Lanark only 4 $\frac{3}{10}$ per cent. of the population were above 60 years; in Renfrew, 5 $\frac{6}{10}$ per cent.; in Linlithgow, 5 $\frac{5}{10}$ per cent.; and in Dumbarton, 6 $\frac{1}{10}$ per cent. But in these purely Rural or Insular Counties, where the waste of life is much smaller, the proportion of males above 60 years of age is much larger. Thus in Shetland and Orkney, it is 11 $\frac{8}{10}$ per cent.; in Sutherland, 11 $\frac{2}{10}$ per cent.; in Argyll 10 $\frac{2}{10}$ per cent.; in Bute, 10 $\frac{4}{10}$ per cent.; in Ross and Cromarty, 10 $\frac{3}{10}$ per cent., etc. A certain rate, in fact, over all the Counties exists; but the smallness of the numbers in some of the Counties causes the proportions to fluctuate more than they would do were the numbers greater. Still, the facts above alluded to are quite distinctly marked.

The above remarks on the Males, at the different ages, in Scotland, its Divisions and Counties, apply equally to the Females, as may be seen by consulting Appendix Table IV., where the like facts are exhibited for the Females.

But the comparison of Appendix Tables III. and IV., showing the different proportions of males and of females at each age in each County and Town, tends to confirm all the conclusions already arrived at relative to the great Emigration of the males as soon as they attain manhood. This is seen very strikingly even by comparing the proportion of males and females at different ages in England and Scotland.

comparison between England and Scotland as to proportions of persons at different ages.

Thus, in England, only 46·4 per cent. of her males are under 20 years of age, and 43·3 per cent. of her females. But in Scotland 49·1 per cent. of the males, and 43·3 per cent. of all the females, are under 20 years of age.

Now, it may reasonably be asked how it happens that so much larger a proportion of males under 20 years of age exists in Scotland than in England. And the answer is very simple. If the number of males above 20 be less, in consequence of a very large number of them having emigrated, it follows that the proportions under 20 will appear relatively greater than in another Country where the males stay at home. That this is the true explanation is made apparent by the comparison of the females in the respective Countries where the proportion is so close that they differ only by less than one per cent.—43·3 per cent. of the women in England being under 20 years of age, and 44 per cent. in Scotland.

But the comparison between England and Scotland of the proportions of the sexes at the next age confirms this conclusion.

Thus, in England, 29·1 per cent. of the men, and 30·7 per cent. of the females, were between the ages of 20 and 40. But in Scotland, only 27·5 per cent. of the men, and 30·4 per cent. of the women, were between 20 and 40 years of age. The conclusion, from the examination of these numbers, is irresistible, that Scotland sends off about 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. more of her males between the ages of 20 and 40 than England does. This is confirmed, again, by finding that the female population of England and of Scotland, at these ages, is in almost exactly the same proportion—30·4 per cent. of the females in Scotland and 30·7 of the females in England—again, showing that if the whole of the males at these ages had stayed in Scotland, the proportion would have been the same as that of England.

Even at the next age, viz., from 40 to 60, the proportion of males is less in Scotland than in England, though the proportion of females in both Countries is almost identical. Thus, in Scotland, 16·3 per cent. of the males were between 40 and 60 years of age, and 17·4 per cent. of the females. But in England 17·3 per cent. of the males, and 17·3 per cent. of the females, were between 40 and 60 years of age.

At the latest period of life, again, or that above 60, Scotland showed the highest per centage. Thus, in Scotland, 7 per cent. of the males, and 8·7 per cent. of the females, were above 60 years of age. But in England 7 per cent. of the males, and only 7·7 per cent. of the females, were above 60 years of age.

All these facts, then, mutually corroborating each other, give confidence in the conclusions drawn relative to the causes of the high disproportion of females in the population of Scotland, and the great drain which Emigration, the Army, Navy, and Merchant Shipping make on our male youth. Besides, when it is considered that the facts adduced in our former Report showed that, “in proportion to her population, Scotland sends out nearly twice as many Emigrants as England, and 2½ times as many Merchant Seamen,” need we wonder that her population does not increase with the same rapidity as that of England, or that the proportion of her males should be lower?

Large Emigration from Scotland accounts for all the facts.

CONJUGAL CONDITION OF THE PEOPLE.

The conjugal condition of the people of Scotland was first ascertained at the Census of 1851; and as such an inquiry throws light on many interesting points connected with the social welfare of the population, the late Act directed that the “condition” of every one should be entered on the Enumeration Schedule. This direction has been so carefully attended to, that the conjugal condition of almost every person in Scotland in 1861 has been ascertained, excepting that of the seamen on board foreign vessels, and these have been entered on the list of bachelors.

According to the Census Returns of 1861, of the 1,449,848 males in Scotland, 954,606 were bachelors, 447,814 were husbands, and 47,428 were widowers; or, reducing these numbers to a decimal proportion, in every 100,000 males of the population 65,842 were bachelors, 30,887 were husbands, and 3271 widowers. (See Table X.)

Number and proportion of bachelor husbands, and widowers.

In like manner, of the 1,612,446 females in Scotland, 1,015,807 were spinsters, 460,955 were wives, and 135,684 were widows; or, reducing these numbers to a decimal proportion, in every 100,000 females of the population there were 62,998 spinsters, 28,587 wives, and 8415 widows. (See Table XI.)

Number and proportion of spinster wives, and widows.

These numbers, however, give no idea whatever of the true conjugal condition of the people. What is desired to obtain is a correct idea of the numbers who are married, widowed or single, in the marriageable portion of the population. This is only obtained by taking the population from the age at which marriage begins, viz., 15 years; and when the comparison is made thus, some interesting facts are elicited. Thus:

In 1861, when the Census of Scotland was taken, of 888,402 males above 15 years of age, 393,160 were bachelors, 447,814 were husbands, and 47,428 were widowers. This in every 100,000 marriageable males gives the proportion of 44,255 bachelors, 50,406 husbands, and 5,339 widowers.

In like manner, of 1,070,722 females above 15 years of age, 474,083 were spinsters, 460,955 were wives, and 135,684 were widows. These numbers give the proportion in every 100,000 marriageable women of 44,277 spinsters, 43,051 wives, and 12,672 widows. (See Tables X. and XI.)

The first thing to notice in these figures is, that in Scotland there are in the population 182,320 more marriageable women than men. Even, therefore, though every man above 15 years of age were to marry, 17·2 per cent. of all the marriageable women must remain unmarried.

But the real state of matters, in so far as the women are concerned, is far worse than this. We all know that a certain and a very large proportion of the men who are of the age to marry, do not marry, but remain single; and the above figures show that 44·255 per cent. of all the men above 15 years of age are unmarried.

But a just idea of the conjugal condition of a country is often best obtained by comparing it with another inhabited by the same race, living under the same social, civil, and political conditions. Let us see then how England stands as compared with Scotland as to the conjugal condition of its people. This comparison (including also Ireland) is shown in Tables VIII. and IX. But for the sake of exact comparison with England, Tables XII. and XIII. are added, which are the counterparts of the Scottish Tables, Tables X. and XI.

If we compare the condition of persons at all ages—the whole population (Table VIII.)—we find that while only 61·249 per cent. of the males are single or unmarried in England, the proportion of the unmarried males amounts to 65·842 in Scotland. In England 58·740 per cent. of all the females in the population are unmarried; but in Scotland 62·998 (as near as possible 63) per cent. of all the females are unmarried.

Of the married persons again, England in its total males has 35·069 per cent. married; while Scotland has only 30·887 per cent. of its males married. England has 33·907 per cent. of its females married; but Scotland only 28·587 per cent.

The proportion of widowed persons in the total population of the two Countries is much more alike; only that England has a greater proportion of males and a smaller proportion of females in the widowed state than Scotland. Thus England has 3·682 per cent. of all her males as widowers, while the per centage in Scotland is 3·271. In England 7·353 per cent. of the females are widows, but in Scotland 8·415 per cent. of all her females are widows:

From this review it is apparent that a much larger proportion of the inhabitants of England enter the married state than in Scotland—in fact, as near as may be 4 per cent. more of the population in England are married.

As stated above, however, it is considered that a much truer estimate of the conjugal condition of the people is attained by limiting the comparison to the population who are marriageable, viz., above 15 years (Table IX.); when this is done, we find that of the male population in England above 15 years of age 38·783 per cent. were unmarried, while in Scotland 44·225 per cent. of its males above 15 years of age were unmarried. In England 36·893 per cent. of all her marriageable females were unmarried, while in Scotland 44·277 per cent. of her marriageable females were unmarried.

In England 55·401 per cent. of all the marriageable men were husbands; but only 50·406 per cent. in Scotland. In England 51·859 per cent. of all the marriageable females were wives; but only 43·051 per cent. in Scotland.

Proportions married.

In England 5·816 per cent. of all the marriageable men were widowers; but only 5·339 per cent. in Scotland. In England 11·248 per cent. of all the women above 15 years of age were widows, but 12·672 per cent. in Scotland.

Proportions widowed.

As the object of all this statement is to ascertain the comparative conjugal condition of the people in the two Countries, it may be shortly stated thus:

In England 38·783 per cent. of all the males above 15 years of age are unmarried, while 61·217 per cent. are or have been married.

In Scotland 44·255 per cent. of all the males above 15 years of age are unmarried, while only 55·745 per cent. are or have been married.

In England 36·893 per cent. of all the females above 15 years of age are unmarried, while 63·107 per cent. are or have been married.

In Scotland 44·277 per cent. of all the females above 15 years of age are unmarried, while only 55·723 per cent. are or have been married.

Dropping the decimals, therefore, we find that in every 100 marriageable men in each Country, 39 are bachelors in England, but 44 in Scotland; while 61 are or have been married in England, but only 56 in Scotland.

In like manner, of every 100 marriageable women in each Country, 37 are spinsters in England, but 44 in Scotland; while 63 are or have been married in England, but only 56 in Scotland.

The difference, then, between these respective numbers shows the comparative con-

Marriage Registers.

As these numbers strictly correspond with the number and proportion of the marriages which are contracted in England and in Scotland respectively, and are entered in the Marriage Registers, every confidence may be placed in the correctness of the Census Returns as to the conjugal condition of the people.

Thus, on taking a seven years' average, 1855 to 1861, it appears that marriage is annually contracted in England at the rate of 828 marriages in every 100,000 persons living. But in Scotland the average of the same years shows that only 685 marriages are annually contracted in a like population.

rate in Scotland.

The Commissioners of the Census of Great Britain for 1851 had occasion, in their Report, to point out the much lower conjugal condition of the people of Scotland; and finding that the Scottish population was not increasing at the same rate as that of England, and failing to perceive the true cause, laid the blame on the Marriage Laws of Scotland, whose real nature and effect they evidently misunderstood. Thus they said: 'The smaller proportion of people living in the state of marriage in Scotland—one-sixth less in proportion than in England—directly accounts for the retarded rate at which the population increases, and for the diminished proportion of the Scottish people to the people of England, and to the land of Scotland. If we ascend a step higher in the inquiry, it appears to be probable that the peculiarity in the conjugal condition of the Scottish people is not natural, but is rather the result of its Marriage Law.'—Vol. ii. p. xlix. And again: 'In the minds of large numbers of the ignorant and rude population (of Scotland), the importance is not perceived of a distinction so fine, so indistinct, so subtle and so perplexing as that between the lower marriages of Scotland and no marriages at all. The belief consequently in the necessity or sanctity of marriage does not induce men and women to marry to the same extent as they would if marriages were in all cases publicly recorded,' p. li. And again: 'Seduction and polygamy are greatly facilitated—concubinage is concealed by the appearance of marriage—under the Law of Scotland,' p. l. The Commissioners therefore think all these fancied evils would be cured by 'making marriage in all cases an open, public, registered act, as it is in England;' and they assume that if this were done, 'it is exceedingly probable that in Scotland matrimony will be held in the same repute and will prevail to the same extent as it does in England; which will place the population of the Northern and of the Southern portions of Great Britain again in a state of equilibrium,—raise the value of the land of Scotland,—and increase the number of the mer-of that nation who contribute in no small degree to the security, greatness, and renown of these islands,' p. li.

Such remarks cannot be allowed to pass without notice, as they were all drawn up under a mistake as to the operation of the Marriage Laws of Scotland, and in ignorance as to the true cause of the people of Scotland not increasing at the same rate as that of England.

The subject of the Marriage Laws of Scotland we do not intend to discuss. It has been lately handled in the most masterly manner by Professor Muirhead, in his Letter to the Lord Chancellor of England on the Marriage Laws of England, Scotland, and Ireland; and by J. Campbell Smith, Esq., Advocate, in his two papers on the Marriage Laws read before the Social Science Association at Dublin in 1861, and at Edinburgh in 1863. These papers thoroughly refute the notion of the Scottish Marriage Laws being either barbarous, or as facilitating seduction or polygamy. They are shown to be in many respects superior to the Marriage Laws of England and of Ireland, and to be more worthy of having some of their principles adopted by these Countries, than of Scotland adopting the confessedly imperfect and patch-work Marriage Laws of England or of Ireland.

But there is one insinuation which runs throughout the whole remarks of the Commissioners of 1851, and one which the English people seem determined to insist is the case, and that is, that the great majority of the Scottish marriages are what would be called 'irregular;' that is to say, constituted without previous proclamation of the banns, and without a religious ceremony. A greater mistake never was committed. The Registration Act, which came into operation in 1855, has enabled us to ascertain that out of every thousand marriages in Scotland, nine hundred and ninety-nine are contracted after proclamation of banns, and after a religious ceremony by the clergyman of the religious denomination to which the parties belong. Differing, however, in this respect from the general custom of England, the people of Scotland do not hold it necessary that the marriage ceremony should be gone through in a 'church,' so that, excepting in the case of the Roman Catholics and the Episcopalians, the religious ceremony takes place, in most instances, in the house of the bride, or other private house.

Very few irregular marriages in Scotland.

But the fact is, it was not the Scottish people who abused the facilities of the Marriage Laws, but the English, who crossed the Border to effect runaway marriages on Scottish ground. When the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland made special inquiry into this very subject in 1853, they found that, in the eighteen Border Parishes in which these marriages were contracted, 1127 irregular marriages were contracted in 1850, 1125 in 1851, and 1154 in 1852. Of the 1127 irregular marriages in 1850, in no fewer than 1091 cases were both parties from England, in 25 both parties were Scotch, and in 11 only one of the parties was a native. Of the 1125 irregular marriages in 1851 in 1093 cases both parties were from England, in 26 both parties were Scotch, and in 6 only one of the parties was a native. Of the 1154 irregular marriages in 1852, in 1110 cases both parties were from England, in 29 both parties were natives of Scotland, and in 15 only one of the parties was a native. Even in these Border Parishes, where they had constantly before their eyes the bad example of the English, the great majority of the marriages were contracted after proclamation of banns, and by means of a religious ceremony. Thus, during these same years, the population of these 18 Border Parishes amounted to 30,395 persons, while the mean annual registered proclamations of the banns of marriage amounted to 205; and even on the supposition that marriages occurred in these parishes in the same proportion as over all Scotland (which is a great over estimate), the registered proclamations could only have amounted to 232 per annum.

From these striking facts it is apparent that, could the English be prevented from crossing the Border thus to abuse the Marriage Laws of Scotland, the Scottish people on the Border would soon give up a practice repugnant to every proper principle. The Act 19 & 20 Vict. cap. 96, for Amending the Law of Marriage in Scotland, passed in July 1856, and better known as Lord Brougham's Act for preventing Irregular Marriages in Scotland, has had the most beneficial effect. It has not only quite suppressed what were known as Gretna Green Marriages among the natives of England, but has tended greatly to put a stop to the contraction of irregular marriages among the natives of Scotland.

Seeing, however, that in such a large proportion of cases the marriages are regular, that is to say, after proclamation of banns, and accompanied by a religious ceremony, it appears worthy of consideration whether it might not be expedient to make the registration of irregular marriages imperative also. No doubt it is not desirable to give a legislative sanction, or a higher degree of importance to these irregular modes of entering upon the marriage relation than they at present possess; but as some of these irregular marriages, either through the provisions of the Registration Act itself, or through those of the Act 19 and 20 Vict. cap. 96, are entered on the Registers, is it worth while to exclude the rest? Their number is in all probability so very small that it would have no appreciable effect on any facts at present known relative to the conjugal condition of the people.

The Census Commissioners of 1851, finding that the proportion of married persons in Scotland was much below that of England, very naturally imagined that the number of births also would be in the same ratio in the two Countries. They therefore quite rationally concluded that the smaller assumed number of births among the Scottish people accounted for the population of Scotland not increasing so rapidly as that of England, which had a much higher proportion of marriages, and, they assumed, a much higher proportion of births.

Scotland had not the benefits of a Registration Act in 1851, so that such conclusions were quite legitimate on the part of the Commissioners of 1851. But in 1854, the Act 17 & 18 Vict. cap. 80 was passed, for the Registration of every Birth, Death, and Marriage in Scotland, so that we have it now in our power to adduce facts in lieu of theories.

Taking a six years' average of the births in Scotland and in England, viz., from the years 1856 to 1861 inclusive, it is found that for every 100,000 persons living in each of these Countries, there annually occurred 3470 births in Scotland, but only 3440 in England, so far as the Registers show.

Instead of the births, then, being deficient in number in Scotland, or any prospect of men being wanted to keep up the number of the people, Scotland produced more children annually in proportion to her population than England.

As the Birth Registers of England, however, are acknowledged to be defective, it may be allowed that the proportion of children born annually to every 100,000 persons in England and in Scotland is equal. In other words, that the fewer marriages in Scotland produce as many children as the greater number of marriages in England, in equal populations.

But this same Registration Act not only enables us to ascertain that there is no deficiency in the births in Scotland, as compared with England, but it also enables us to ascertain that the mean mortality is lower in Scotland than in England. So that, if the population increased by the mere excess of births over deaths, the decennial increase of the population of Scotland would greatly have exceeded that of England, in proportion to its population.

Mean mortality in Scotland lower than that of England.

But the Census Commissioners of 1851 further asserted that all the evils which they assumed resulted from the present Marriage Laws of Scotland would be cured 'were marriage made an open public registered Act, as in England.' Now, we have had our marriages entered, by a legal Statute, on the Public Registers, since the beginning of 1855, and not one of the results contemplated by the Commissioners have flowed from this, because the assumed evils did not exist. Nine years' Registrations have now been completed, and the proportion of marriages to the population is the same at the end of the period as at the beginning. The Registering of the marriages has not, therefore, raised the Scottish to the English marriage rate. The conclusions, therefore, of the Census Commissioners of 1851 were based on error, and they consequently failed to arrive at the true cause for the population of Scotland not increasing with the same rapidity as that of England.

It has already been shown that it is the enormous Emigration which keeps down our population, and not any fancied want of marriages or births. The people cannot all find profitable employment in Scotland, so they are forced to seek a livelihood elsewhere. It is this greater difficulty in finding profitable employment which acts as a powerful restriction to marriage, and prevents the proportion of marriages being so high as in England. The effect appears to have no connection whatever with the Marriage Laws.

The Tables published by the Registrar-Generals of England and of Scotland enable us to ascertain some interesting facts which throw much light on the conjugal condition of the people in the two Countries.

It was proved above that although a smaller proportion of the population is married in Scotland than in England, yet the proportion of births to the population is greater in Scotland than in England. Fewer marriages must therefore produce more children.

Those who assume the greater immorality of the Scottish people will aver that this result is caused by the higher proportion of illegitimate births. Let us then discard the illegitimate births in both Countries, and ascertain what are the proportions of legitimate births to each marriage in Scotland and in England. For both Countries we may take the year 1861 as an average year of both births and marriages. (See Table XIV.) When this is done, it is found that in Scotland there were 4.66 legitimate children born for each marriage; or 446 legitimate children to every 100 marriages. In England, however, there were only 3.92 legitimate children to each marriage; or 392 legitimate children to every 100 marriages. This single fact, then, which is constant year after year, proves that the Scottish married women are more prolific than the women of England, so that the fewer marriages give an equal number of children.

More children born to each marriage in Scotland than England.

TABLE XIV.—Number of Married Women in England and Scotland 15 to 45 years of age; the number of Marriages and of Legitimate Children in 1861; the proportion of Married Women 15 to 45 years of age to each Legitimate Birth, and the proportion of Legitimate Births to each Marriage.

Scotland. . .	305,524	97,180	20,828	3.14	4.66

But there is another mode of testing and proving the same fact. Let us take the total married population of Scotland and of England, and compare their numbers with that of the legitimate births in each Country, and see which gives the highest per centage of births annually to that married population. When this is done (see Table XV.), it is found that Scotland gives the proportion of 10.69 legitimate births for every 100 married persons, or 1069 births to every 10,000 married persons; but that England only gives the proportion of 9.42 legitimate births for every 100 married persons, or 942 births to every 10,000 married persons.

TABLE XV.—Total Married Population of England and Scotland in 1861, the Total Legitimate Births, and the Per Centage of Births to the Married Population.

But the comparison may be carried further and closer by ascertaining the exact number of the married women at the child-bearing ages, and comparing their number with that of the legitimate births. This ascertains to a nicety the fact we are in search of, viz., the comparative fruitfulness of the married women in England and in Scotland. (See Table XIV.)

In Scotland in 1861 there were 305,524 married women between the ages of 15 and 45 years; and as, during that year, there occurred 97,180 legitimate births, it is clear that every 314 married women at the child-bearing ages gave birth to 100 children during the year.

In England, on the other hand, during the same year, there were 2,319,641 married women between the ages of 15 and 45 years; and as, during that year, there were born 652,249 legitimate children, it is apparent that every 355 married women at the child-bearing ages gave birth to 100 children.

In other words, while Scotland required only 314 married women annually to produce 100 legitimate children; England required 355 married women (or 41 married women more) to produce the same number.

These striking facts, therefore, establish the pre-eminent vitality of the Scottish population; and seem also to indicate that Nature, in order to compensate for the smaller proportion of marriages, renders the married females more prolific.

Looking back, then, on what has been proved, it appears that it is the enormous Emigration from Scotland which prevents her population increasing with the same rapidity as that of England, and not those imaginary causes alluded to by the Census Commissioners of 1851. It has been proved that the proportion of births to the general population is as great, if not greater, than that of England; and if the marriages are fewer, these fewer marriages produce more children.

HUSBANDS AND WIVES.

447,814 husbands, and 460,955 wives were in Scotland when the Census was taken in 1861. By this it appears that 30·8 per cent. of all the males were husbands, and 28·5 per cent. of all the females were wives. In considering the conjugal condition of the people, however, all those under 15 years of age ought to be omitted; and if we reckon those alone above that age, then 50·4 per cent. of the men above 15 years of age were husbands, and 43 per cent. of the women were wives. Though the proportion of women who were wives was thus lower than that of the men who were husbands, this was caused by the great excess of females in the population; so that, though the wives exceeded the husbands in number by 13,141, their proportion to the female population was less than that of the husbands to the male population.

On the night on which the Census was taken, 419,875 husbands were living with their wives—(See Table on p. 67); but 27,939 husbands had not their wives with them, and 41,080 wives had not their husbands at home. If we suppose that the 27,939 husbands whose wives were absent, were commercial and other travellers, railway and other labourers, and other persons temporarily absent from their homes, but that their wives were enumerated among the 41,080 wives whose husbands were absent, then the remaining 13,141 wives whose husbands were absent, would be the wives of soldiers, sailors, travellers, etc., abroad, and not in Scotland when the Census was taken.

The accompanying Table XVI. shows the total number of husbands and of wives of different ages, and the number and proportion of husbands whose wives were absent, and of wives whose husbands were absent. By that Table it is seen that 6·2 per cent. of all the husbands in Scotland were not in the same house as their wives on the night when the Census was taken; and that 8·9 of the wives had no husbands at home. It will be seen, however, that a much larger proportion both of husbands and of wives were not living with one another at the ages 15 to 20 years than at later ages. This might at first sight lead to the suspicion that some misstatement or error had occurred in the returns. Yet any one who is acquainted with the habits of the people knows that it is quite customary for the young women, after they are married, to remain in service for some months till the change of houses, and the loosening of engagements at the Term of Whitsunday enables the parties to unite and form a household. Many also remain in service till a child is born.

Over all Scotland 50·4 in every 100 men above 15 years of age are husbands; while only 43 in every 100 women above 15 years of age are wives. This, as previously pointed out, is a lower proportion than occurs in England. (See Table IX.)

The proportion of husbands to the men above 15 years of age, and the proportion of wives to the women above 15 years of age, vary considerably in the different Counties of Scotland, but seems to have no relation to the annual proportion of marriages in each of these Counties. This may be seen by comparing the relative proportion of husbands and of wives given in Tables XVII. and XVIII., with the annual proportion of marriages in the several Counties of Scotland given in Table XIX.

In every 100 males in each of the respective Counties who are 15 years of age and upwards, 44 were husbands in Argyll; 45 in Inverness, Nairn, Perth, and Bute; 46 in Aberdeenshire, Peebles, and Roxburgh; 47 in Aberdeen; 48 in Caithness, Ross and Cromarty, Dumbarton, Edinburgh, Dumfries, and Kirkcudbright; 49 in Elgin, Banff, Stirling, and Berwick; 50 in Kincardine, Kinross, Selkirk, and Wigtown; 51 in Linlithgow; 52 in Orkney, Renfrew, and Lanark; 53 in Forfar, Clackmannan, and Ayr; while in Orkney 57 in every 100 men 15 years of age and upwards were husbands.

43 in Haddington, Peebles, and Roxburgh; 44 in Kincardine, Dumbarton, and Renfrew; 45 in Fife and Selkirk; 46 in Clackmannan; 47 in Stirling and Lanark; while in Linlithgow there were 53 wives in every 100 women above 15 years of age.

In the six principal Towns, of every 100 women above 15 years of age, only 36 were wives in Edinburgh; 39 in Aberdeen; 40 in Dundee; 44 in Glasgow; 45 in Paisley; and 49 in Greenock.

To show that these proportions of husbands and of wives in each of the Counties do not correspond with the proportion of marriages, Table XIX. is inserted, which gives a seven years' average of the annual proportion of marriages in each County. Thus, in every 10,000 persons in each County, there were annually only 43 marriages in Sutherland; 44 in Argyll; 52 in Inverness, Berwick, and Kinross; 53 in Ross and Cromarty and Kirkcudbright; 55 in Caithness and Bute; 56 in Orkney, Elgin, Peebles, and Wigtown; 57 in Shetland and Selkirk; 59 in Kincardine, Perth, and Roxburgh; 60 in Nairn; 61 in Fife and Clackmannan; 62 in Dumfries; 63 in Haddington; 64 in Banff; 66 in Aberdeen and Linlithgow; 67 in Dumbarton; 70 in Stirling; 71 in Ayr; 72 in Forfar; 79 in Edinburgh; and the high proportion of 82 marriages in every 10,000 persons in Lanark; in all Scotland, however, 68 marriages are contracted annually in every 10,000 persons of the population.

As it is seen that there is scarcely any correspondence between these three Tables, whose results we have thus shortly given, it must be apparent, that the discrepancy must arise from several causes, such as the varying proportions of the sexes in each County from the different proportions of persons between the ages of 20 and 40, from the circumstance of the County sending out a larger or smaller proportion of its young adults, or from its drawing them from other Counties.

The conjugal condition of the people of Scotland may, however, be regarded from another point of view. The people may be divided into three ages—1st, from 15 to 45, the child-bearing age in the female; 2d, from 45 to 60; and 3d, from the 60th year to the close of life. (See Table XX.) When this is done, the very singular result is arrived at, that very nearly an equal proportion (not number) of men and women are husbands and wives between the ages of 15 and 45; for in every 100 of each sex respectively at these ages, 41·1 of the men are husbands, and 41·5 of the women are wives.

At the next age, 45 to 60, however, a very different state of matters prevails: for of every 100 men at these ages, 78·4 are husbands; but of every 100 women at that age, only 58·5 are wives. This result is produced partly by men at these ages marrying women between the ages of 15 and 45, and partly by the widowers at these ages re-marrying in much larger numbers than the widows; partly also by the greater longevity of the women, and being in such excess of the males.

At the last age, viz., above 60 years of age, the difference in the proportion of men who are husbands, and of women who are wives, is still more remarkable: for of every 100 men at these ages, 63·8 are husbands; while of every 100 women at that age, only 30·5 are wives. In other words, at above 60 years of age, the proportion of men who are husbands is more than double the proportion of women who are wives—a disproportion due to the excess of females in the population above 60 years of age.

It is extremely interesting to compare these proportions with those of England to see in what respects the conjugal condition of the people of England differs from or agrees with that of Scotland. By Table XXI. it is seen that in England of every 100 men between the ages of 15 and 45 years, 47·4 are husbands in England; while of every 100 women at the same age, 49·1 are wives.

Under 45 years of age, therefore, there is a much larger proportion of the population married than in Scotland.

In every 100 men between the ages of 45 and 60 years, 81·2 are husbands in England; while of every 100 women at these ages, 70 are wives.

At that age, also, a larger proportion is married in England than in Scotland, but the relative proportion differs in the sexes; for while the proportion of men who are husbands in England is only 2 per cent. higher than that of the husbands at these ages in Scotland, that of the wives in England exceeds that of the wives of Scotland by 11·5 per cent.

In every 100 men above 60 years of age, 63·1 are husbands in England; while in every 100 women above 60 years of age, 40·7 are wives. It thus appears that above 60 years of age nearly the same proportion of men are husbands in England as in Scotland,—the proportion, however, being very slightly greater in Scotland; but that 10 per cent. more of the women of England at these ages are wives.

The general conclusion from the above facts therefore is, that at every age the proportion of men and of women who are married in Scotland is lower than it is in England. This undoubtedly indicates that the means of procuring a livelihood are greater in England than in Scotland; and it might be expected, as a natural consequence of this, that the mean age of the men at marriage would be somewhat greater in Scotland than in England, and that fewer marriages, in proportion to all that are annually contracted, would take place in Scotland, both under 21 and under 25 years, than in England. Tables XXII. and XXIII. exhibit some of these facts for Scotland and England.

Of the 447,814 husbands in Scotland, only 1,787, or 0·39 of a per centage, were under 21 years of age; while in England the per centage was 0·50. In other words, of every 10,000 husbands, 39 only were under 21 years of age in Scotland, but 50 in England. On the other hand, of the 460,955 wives in Scotland, 7,710, or 1·67 per cent., were under 21 years of age; while in England the proportion was 1·97 per cent. In other words, of every 10,000 wives, only 167 were under 21 years of age in Scotland, but 197 in England.

The same is the case with all the married persons under 25 years of age (See Table XXIII.). Thus of every 10,000 husbands in Scotland, only 481 are under 25 years of age; but the English proportion is 573 under that age. In like manner, of every 10,000 wives, only 916 are under 25 years of age in Scotland, but 1,006 in England.

The like fact is strikingly manifested if we take the whole persons who are or have been married in the several Countries, and compare the respective proportions above and under 25 years of age. This is done in Table XXIV. for Scotland, England, and Ireland; though we refrain from making remarks on the Irish Returns, from not having any Registration of Marriages to carry out the comparison with Scotland and England.

By this Table it will be seen that, while in every 1,000 men who were husbands or widowers, only 44 were under 25 years of age in Scotland, 52 were under 25 years of age in England. In every 1,000 women who were wives or widows, only 71 were under 25 years of age in Scotland, while 83 were under 25 years in England.

This fact is, if possible, brought out more prominently by comparing the proportion of married persons of each sex between the ages of 20 and 25 years with the number of persons living at these ages. (See Tables X. and XI., XII. and XIII.) Thus, of every 100 men between the ages of 20 and 25 years, only sixteen are husbands in Scotland, but twenty-two in England. In like manner, of every 100 women between the ages of 20 and 25 years, only twenty-five are wives in Scotland; but thirty-three in England.

These facts, as might be expected, strictly correspond with the Registers of Marriage of the respective countries, and it is important to look at them, as they throw light on the conjugal condition of the people in Scotland and England.

Census Returns strictly agree with the Marriage Registers.

As the detailed Marriage Tables of Scotland for 1861 have not yet been abstracted, those for the year 1858 may be quoted, as giving a fair average of the Scottish results, closely agreeing as they do with those of the three previous years; and, to compare with them, we must take the English marriages for the same year. In the Marriage Registers of Scotland, the exact age of almost every person who marries is accurately ascertained. In the English Marriage Registers, on the other hand, the entries are so loosely made, that even in 1858, although 156,070 marriages were entered on the Registers, in only 92,697 marriages were the exact ages of both parties ascertained. Assuming, however, that that number gives a fair average of the ages of the parties in the total marriages, we arrive at the results given in Table XXV.

TABLE XXV.—NUMBER of MARRIAGES in ENGLAND and SCOTLAND in 1858 in which the Ages of the Parties were ascertained; with the Number and Proportion of Men and Women Married under 21 and under 25 Years.

In every 10,000 men of all ages who married in 1858, only 738 were under 21 years of age in Scotland; but 825 were under that age in England. In like manner, of every 10,000 women who married during that year, 2,123 were under 21 years of age in Scotland; but 2348 in England.

Somewhat similar proportions occurred at all ages under 25 years of age. Thus, of every 10,000 men who married in 1858, only 4,129 were under 25 years of age in Scotland; but 4,829 were under that age in England. While of every 10,000 women who married during that year, 5,870 were under 25 years of age in Scotland; but 6,202 in England.

These facts, then, corroborate the conclusions already arrived at, and demonstrate not only that the proportions of married persons are lower in Scotland, but also that both men and women marry somewhat later in life in Scotland than in England.

n age of husband wife.

This conclusion is borne out by estimating the mean age of the husbands and wives in the different Countries; and though this can only be done in a very rough way, in consequence of abstracting the ages in quinquennial periods, still the approximation is sufficiently near to afford the means of general comparison.

Thus, in Scotland the mean age of the husbands was 43 years 5 months; the mean age of the wives 40 years 1 month. An exact half of all the husbands living are above the age of 41 years 3 months, and the other half below that age; while an exact half of all the wives is above 37 years 8½ months, and the other half below that age.

The mean age of the men in Scotland at the date of their marriage is 28 years; the mean age of the women at the date of their marriage is 25 years.

By all these modes of calculation we arrive at the fact, that in Scotland the mean difference of age between the husband and the wife is between 3 and 3½ years—the excess in the difference of the age being on the side of the husband.

As in England, the mean age of the husbands, calculated in the same manner, is 42 years 5 months, and that of the wives 39 years 11 months, it is apparent that both husbands and wives in Scotland are slightly older than they are in England,—in other words, that they marry at a slightly more advanced period of life; but that the difference, as might be expected, is most apparent in the men.

Reviewing all the facts which have been ascertained relative to the disparity of the sexes, the small comparative increase of the population during the last ten years, the large Emigration, the comparatively small number of marriages, and the later period of life at which it is contracted by the male, it appears to us that all these are but the varied and natural effects of one great cause—the greater difficulty of procuring a livelihood in Scotland than in England.

It is a pity that when the Census was taken up, a query had not been put to every married woman whether she had borne children. We have at present no means of ascertaining what proportion of the marriages proves unfruitful; and it is no criterion to ascertain the number of married persons who had children living with them on the night of the Census. Married persons who had a numerous family may have none with them, because they are grown up, or are absent at schools, or trades. We know, however, from other sources, that a considerable proportion of marriages proves unfruitful; and as it was shown that the married women of Scotland produce more children in proportion to their number than the married women of England, it would have been extremely interesting to have ascertained whether that depended on more of the Scottish married women being fruitful.

e barren.

As it may, however, give a distant approximation, it may be stated that, taking two of the largest Registration Districts of Glasgow, it was found, that of 14,523 married persons living together, 11,718 had children living with them; while 2,805 had no children with them. This would yield the proportion of 80·686 per cent. with children, and 19·314 per cent. without children; or, without the decimals, that in every 100 married couples, 81 had children, while 19 had none. These numbers may be safely taken as the proportion in the Town populations, seeing that for each district the proportions came out within a very small decimal fraction of one another; also from the circumstance, that in other Tables which have been published in the Registrar-General's Second Detailed Annual Report, relative to the proportions of children borne by mothers at different ages in Edinburgh and in Glasgow, the results of the one Town almost exactly corresponded with those of the other.

WIDOWERS AND WIDOWS.

ows.

In Scotland, 47,428 widowers, and 135,684 widows were in the population when the Census of 1861 was taken. This gives the proportion of 3 widowers in every 100 males at all ages, and 8 widows in every 100 females at all ages, or more correctly, 3,271 widowers in every 100,000 males, and 8,415 widows in a like number of females. (See Tables X. and XI.)

If the population, however, be only reckoned above 15 years of age, then in every 100,000 men above that age, there would be 5,339 widowers, and in every 100,000 women, 12,672 widows.

The actual numbers show that there are 286 widows for every 100 widowers in Scotland.

Dividing the population above 15 years of age, however, into three ages, as was done with the married persons (See Table XX.), we find that in every 100 men between the ages of 15 and 45, only 1·4 are widowers; but in every 100 women at the same ages, 3·5 are widows. Between the ages of 45 and 60, of every 100 men, 8·3 are widowers; but of every 100 women at that age 21·5 are widows. Above 60 years of age, in every 100 men, 24·8 are widowers; but of every 100 women at the same age, 48·5 are widows.

These facts indicate that many more of the men who become widowers re-marry, than do the women who become widows. This conclusion is proved to be correct by the Marriage Registers; for if we take the five years 1855 to 1859 inclusive, the only years yet published in detail, it is found that of every 100 men who married annually during these years, 11·9 were widowers; while of every 100 women who annually married, only 5·7 (or less than the half) were widows. This fact at once accounts for the enormous disproportion in which widows are found in the population.

More widowers than widows re-marry.

By consulting the last columns in Tables X. and XI. it will be seen that the proportion of widowers and widows rapidly increases in the population as age advances. Thus, though among the men between the ages of 40 and 45, only 4·3 per cent. are widowers, the proportion is 8·6 per cent. between the ages of 50 and 55 years; 15·8 per cent. between the ages of 60 and 65; 28·9 per cent. between the ages of 70 and 75; 47·1 per cent. between the ages of 80 and 85; and 59·6 per cent. between the ages of 90 and 95 years.

Increase of the widowed with age.

So also is it with the women, only that in their case, in consequence of a much smaller number being re-married, the proportion increases more rapidly. Thus at the age of 25 to 30 years, 2 per cent. of the women are widows; 4·4 per cent. are widows between the ages of 30 and 35; 11·7 per cent. between the ages of 40 and 45 years; 22·1 per cent. between the ages of 50 and 55; 37·8 per cent. between the ages of 60 and 65; 54·1 per cent. between the ages of 70 and 75; 68·5 per cent. between the ages of 80 and 85; and 77·5 per cent. of the women are widows between the ages of 90 and 95 years.

Of the men, very nearly an equal number are widowers and husbands at the 84th year of life; but of the women nearly an equal number are widows and wives at the 64th year of life—the natural result of so many fewer widows re-marrying.

Age at which the number of the married and the widowed is equal.

It is always interesting to know how we stand with regard to England in the matter of widowers and widows.

In 1861, England had the proportion of 3,682 widowers in every 100,000 males at all ages; and 7,353 widows in every 100,000 females at all ages. (See Tables XII. and XIII.) Or, taking alone the population above 15 years of age, there were 5,816 widowers in every 100,000 males above 15 years of age; and 11,248 widows in every 100,000 females at the like ages.

Altogether there were 210 widows for every 100 widowers in England in 1861.

From this comparison, then, it appears that Scotland, in proportion to its population, contains fewer widowers, but more widows than England.

Fewer widowers in Scotland than in England, but more widows.

The same curious fact was manifested at the Census of 1851, and this induced the Commissioners very naturally to conclude that the fact might 'perhaps be accounted for by widowers marrying again more, and widows less, frequently in Scotland than in England.' At that time there were no means of ascertaining how Scotland stood with regard to marriage; but the Registration Act, which came into operation on the first of January 1855, enables us to ascertain all the facts relative to marriage, so that it can now be accurately ascertained whether the above supposition is true, or will account for the fact.

It was above mentioned that a five years' average of the marriages in Scotland prove, that of every 100 men who marry annually, 11·9 are widowers; while of every 100 women who marry, 5·7 are widows.

Taking the same five years for England, it appears, that of every 100 men who marry annually, 14 are widowers; while of every 100 women who marry, 9·1 are widows.

During every one of these years, therefore, lower proportions both of widowers and of widows re-married in Scotland than in England; so that the fact of fewer widowers and more widows being in the population of Scotland than in that of England cannot be accounted for on the supposition of the Census Commissioners of 1851, for that supposition does not square with the facts.

We must seek, then, for some other explanation; and the following seems almost, but not altogether, to account for the facts:—In Scotland, the annual deaths, in proportion to the population, are lower than in England; and this lower rate of mortality is observed equally among the population at the marriageable ages as under them. Fewer marriages in Scotland, in proportion to its population, must therefore be annually dissolved by death; so that if no widower or widow re-married in either Country, the proportion of the widowed would be less in Scotland than in England. But widowers re-marry in a lower proportion than in England; so, if this lower proportion of re-marriages nearly balanced the lesser mortality (though it could not quite balance it), we might have the proportions of widowers in Scotland and England nearly alike, as we find it actually to be; the smaller proportion, however, being in Scotland, as we might expect it to be. The widows in Scotland not being married in anything like the proportion they are in England, and only in half the proportion of the widowers in Scotland, annually accumulate in the population, and thus cause the proportion of widows in the population of Scotland considerably to exceed that in England.

It may be, however, that another disturbing element—Emigration—may have something to do with the smaller proportion of widowers in Scotland. A man who has not been very successful in life, and has lost his wife, is more likely to emigrate than another; but till we know the proportion of the married, the widowed, and the single who emigrate, it would be rash to speak confidently on the subject.

several Counties.

The proportion of the widowed varies much in the different Counties, but does not appear to be reducible to any fixed law. (See Tables XVII. and XVIII.) Thus, of every 1000 men above 15 years in the several Counties, 40 were widowers in Caithness; 45 in Ross and Cromarty; 47 in Linlithgow; 48 in Clackmannan; 49 in Inverness and Lanark; 50 in Stirling and Dumbarton; 51 in Shetland and Nairn; 52 in Edinburgh; 53 in Elgin, Argyll, and Ayr; 54 in Orkney, Banff, Forfar, and Renfrew; 55 in Sutherland, Aberdeen, Kincardine, and Selkirk; 56 in Fife and Roxburgh; 57 in Wigtown; 59 in Haddington and Peebles; 61 in Perth, Bute, Berwick, and Kirkcudbright; 63 in Dumfries; while in Kinross, 65 in every 1000 men were widowers.

In the Six Principal Towns of Scotland, of every 1000 men above 15 years of age, 49 were widowers in Glasgow; 50 in Dundee and Greenock; 53 in Edinburgh; and 56 in Aberdeen and Paisley.

The proportion of widows in the respective Counties was equally varied. Thus, of every 1000 women above 15 years of age in each of the Counties, 96 were widows in Peebles; 98 in Selkirk; 105 in Berwick; 109 in Caithness and Roxburgh; 112 in Linlithgow; 113 in Sutherland; 117 in Kincardine; 118 in Elgin; 119 in Banff and Kirkcudbright; 120 in Fife and Dumbarton; 122 in Shetland, Ayr, and Wigtown; 123 in Orkney, Ross and Cromarty, Inverness, Perth, and Kinross; 124 in Clackmannan; 125 in Dumfries; 126 in Nairn, Forfar, and Haddington; 127 in Stirling; 128 in Aberdeen; 130 in Lanark; 134 in Renfrew; 137 in Argyll and Edinburgh; while in Bute, widows were in such excess, that there were 155 widows in every 1000 women above 15 years of age.

In the Six Principal Towns, again, of every 1000 women above 15 years of age, 136 were widows in Dundee; 139 in Glasgow; 140 in Paisley; 141 in Edinburgh; 146 in Greenock; and 150 in Aberdeen.

THE UNMARRIED—BACHELORS AND SPINSTERS.

As all under the age of 15 years may fairly be reckoned as children, and to have no title to the appellation of Bachelors and Spinsters, we limit these appellations to the persons 15 years of age and upwards who are unmarried. With this limitation, we find that in Scotland, in 1861, there were 393,160 bachelors, and 474,083 spinsters; being in the proportion of 120 spinsters to every 100 bachelors.

proportion of bachelors and spinsters at different ages.

The proportion of bachelors and of spinsters, however, differs at the different ages of life. (See Tables X. and XI.) Thus, at the age of 15 to 20 years, 99·6 per cent. of the men are bachelors, and 97·8 per cent. of the women are spinsters. At the age of 20 to 25 years, 83·2 per cent. of the men are bachelors, and 74 per cent. of the women are spinsters. At the age of 25 to 30 years, 47·7 per cent. of the men are bachelors, while 46 per cent. of the women are spinsters. At the age of 30 to 35 years, 28·3 per cent. of the men are bachelors, while 31 per cent. of the women are spinsters. At the age of 40 to 45 years, 16·3 per cent. of the men are bachelors, while 22 per cent. of the women are spinsters. At the age of 60 to 65 years, 12·6 per cent. of the men are bachelors, while 22·1 per cent. of the women are spinsters.

A better general idea of the proportions existing at various ages, is often attained by dividing them into three ages alone, and taking the female life as the leading idea in the division. Thus, take from 15 to 45, as the natural boundary which Nature draws in the female as the child-bearing age, and call all those under 45 young bachelors and young maids; call all those from 45 to 60, elderly bachelors and elderly maids, and those above 60, old bachelors and old maids, we have the following proportions. (See Table XX.)

Thus, from 15 to 45 years of age, 57·5 per cent. of the men are bachelors, while 55 per cent. of the women are spinsters. At the age of 45 to 60 years, 13·3 per cent. of the men are bachelors, while 20 per cent. of the women are spinsters. Above 60 years of age, 11·4 per cent. of the men are bachelors, but 21 per cent. of the women are spinsters. These proportions strikingly contrast with those of England, and prove incontestably that a much larger proportion of the people of Scotland remains unmarried. Thus, in England (See Table XXI.), at the ages 15 to 45 years, 51·1 per cent. of the men are bachelors, while 47·8 per cent. of the women are spinsters. At the age 45 to 60 years, 10·1 per cent. of the men are bachelors, while 11·6 per cent. of the women are spinsters. Above 60 years of age, 8·5 per cent. of the men are bachelors, while 10·6 per cent. of the women are spinsters.

In this, as in all other countries, a certain proportion of the unmarried women annually become mothers, and thus contribute to keep up the number of the population. No enactments, either of Church or of State, have ever been able to put a stop to this, so that the fact must be looked in the face, and its extent be endeavoured to be discovered.

In 1861, the Registrar-General's Return proves that 9,856 illegitimate children were born. These must have been produced by the unmarried women between the ages of 15 and 45; and as these amounted to 405,756, it shows that one in every 41 unmarried women at these ages became a mother during that year.

ried women who

TABLE XXVI.—NUMBER of UNMARRIED WOMEN between the Ages of 15 and 45 Years in England and in Scotland in 1861; the NUMBER of ILLEGITIMATE BIRTHS in 1861, and the Proportion of Unmarried Women to every Illegitimate Birth.

But it was shown above, when speaking of the married women, that to produce 100 children annually, 314 married women between the ages of 15 and 45 were required in Scotland. As the unmarried women who put themselves in the way of becoming mothers, may be supposed to bear children in the same ratio as the married women, we must multiply the number of unmarried women who became mothers during the year by 3·14, in order to procure the number of unmarried women who annually put themselves in the way of becoming mothers. This shows that 30,947 unmarried women in Scotland annually put themselves in the way of becoming mothers. These numbers indicate that 7·3 in every 100 (or 73 in every 1000) unmarried women between the ages of 15 and 45 years, or 1 in every 13 (1 in every 13·1) annually put themselves in the way of becoming mothers.

The Registration of the Illegitimate Births is so imperfect in England, that it is not fair to compare the above facts relative to the unmarried women of Scotland with those of England, if we adhered to the official number of illegitimate births as published in the Registrar-General's Reports. By his own acknowledgment before a Committee of the House of Commons on the Irish Registration Bills in 1861, that officer admitted that 'the Registration of Births in England is defective,' that 'we lose 20,000 births a-year in England, and the chief part that escape us are the births of illegitimates in Towns.' As the Census Commissioners of England for 1861, however, in their Report which appeared as this sheet was passing through the Press, on much surer data state that '369,489 children in Ten Years, or 36,950 annually, are left unregistered,' and although the probability is that by far the largest number of these is illegitimate, it is doing no injustice to England to assume that 20,000 at all events of those whose births escape Registration are illegitimate. The accompanying Tables are accordingly drawn up on that assumption, and Tables XXVI. and XXVII. exhibit the results both in their corrected and in their uncorrected forms.

As 355 married women between the ages of 15 and 45 years are, however, annually required in England to produce 100 legitimate children, and the unmarried women of that Country may be supposed to produce children in the same proportion, according to the official or uncorrected numbers, 6·9 per cent., or one in every 14·4 of the unmarried women in England annually put themselves in the way of becoming mothers. When the proper correction, however, is made for the illegitimate births which escape Registration, it appears that 227,757 unmarried women, being exactly 10 per cent., or 1 in every 9 unmarried women in England between the ages of 15 and 45, annually put themselves in the way of becoming mothers,—being a much larger proportion than in Scotland.

on foregoing facts.

One concluding remark may be offered, the natural deduction or conclusion from all the facts brought under notice in this and our former Report: There is no ground for fearing any falling off in the population of Scotland, even though it should go on drafting away its population at the rate of 18,000 annually, as it has been doing for the last ten years. In the very large proportion of its bachelors and spinsters it has a reserve fund, so to speak, which amply provides for all contingencies arising from pestilence, destructive wars, or increased Emigration; and even an increase in the proportion of its marriages to that of England, would add 1433 annually more to its population, or allow its emigrants to be increased by that amount.

These facts, however, seem at the same time to prove incontestably that there is a much greater difficulty in procuring a livelihood in Scotland than in England; and that it is this which both represses marriage and causes Scotland to send out such a much larger proportion of her population to seek a livelihood elsewhere. Emigration is therefore, with Scotland, a necessity; and it cannot be doubted that she could, with advantage to those who are left behind, send out a still greater number annually than she does at present.

This larger proportion, however, ought to consist of females. No population is in a sound and healthy state where the excess of females is so great as is in Scotland. They do not contribute to the strength or energies of the nation in the same way as do the males; and, therefore, all excess above an equality of numbers in the sexes is to be looked on as an evil which our efforts should be directed to remedy.

But most of our Colonies want that which we have in such excess, and their prosperity would be greatly increased, could the emigration of women be so conducted as to equalize the numbers of the sexes. This is not the place to discuss the difficulties which surround the question; but it will require to be looked seriously in the face, if this Country is to go on in a prosperous manner. The proportion of females is annually increasing. Our young males, finding the difficulty of obtaining a livelihood here, are annually leaving our shores in much larger numbers than the females. Accordingly, though at the Census of 1851 there were 110 females for every 100 males, that proportion had increased to 111·2 females for every 100 males in the population of Scotland in 1861. But even this is not the worst feature; for at the child-bearing age of the female, and that at which by far the largest number of marriages is contracted, viz., from 15 to 45 years of age, there are actually in the population 118·5 females for every 100 males! In fact, so far as known, there is no country in the world where the proportion of females is so high.

OCCUPATIONS OF THE PEOPLE.

It is a matter of considerable interest to know the occupations of the people, as throwing light on an important branch of Political Economy, and as enabling us to ascertain what proportion is engaged in, or is dependant for their support on, agricultural pursuits; what proportion is employed in, or is dependant on, the manufacture of articles for Home Consumption, or for Foreign Trade, or in manufactures, trades, and occupations which are affected by our relations with Foreign Governments.

Such knowledge is most important for the Government of such a Country as Britain, where, from the extent of her Foreign Trade, the interruption of amicable relations with Foreign States has the effect of throwing large masses of her population idle, thus converting them into a burden instead of a support to the Country. Such knowledge also enables the Government to estimate the extent to which the mineral, agricultural, and manufacturing resources of the Country have been developed,—information which may serve to afford useful hints as to the terms and conditions of any international commercial treaties which it may be conceived advantageous to carry out.

But Tables of the Occupations of the People have also been considered as possibly still more useful for purposes of Vital Statistics, seeing that, if properly constructed, they would enable us, by a comparison with the Death Registers, to estimate the comparative mortality prevailing among the different classes or ranks of society, as well as the comparative healthiness of each occupation or trade.

To further these valuable ends, therefore, every Government since a Census was first taken for Britain in 1801, has endeavoured to get some information as to the number and proportion of persons in the population dependent on agriculture or on trade. At first the information was necessarily limited to ascertaining these two facts alone; but from both the Government and the people seeing the advantage which would accrue from a more perfect knowledge of the occupations of the people, the inquiry was at length made in such a form as to elicit the specific occupations of every member of the community.

No one who has not had practical experience in the matter can conceive the difficulties which had to be overcome in arranging each trade or occupation so as to produce an intelligible classification of the occupations; and the whole community are under the deepest obligations to the Census Commissioners of England, but more especially to Dr Farr, for the masterly classification of the Occupations of the People adopted for the Census of 1851; but largely amended and improved for that of 1861.

The first imperfect germs, as it were, of the present classification, appear in the Report of the Census Commissioners for 1841. These, however, were confined to the Report itself, left 53·2 per cent. of the total population unaccounted for, and were not extended to the official abstracts. In the Census Tables of 1841, therefore, the occupations of only 46·8 per cent. of the total population were published in simple alphabetical order, without even an attempt at classification.

The present Classification of the Occupations of the people is virtually the same as that followed in 1851; the Classes of 1851 being now styled Orders, and these Orders being now arranged in six groups, which are called Classes. The Orders and Sub-Orders have, however, been rearranged, and several transpositions and additions been made, which render the classification more perfect.

The eighteen Orders—the Classes of 1851—are evidently considered as the basis of the arrangement, and are hence numbered consecutively; and these Orders are grouped in Six Classes, viz., 1. Professional, 2. Domestic, 3. Commercial, 4. Agricultural, 5. Industrial, and 6. Indefinite and non-productive. (See Appendix Table V.)

Class I. The PROFESSIONAL CLASS is divided into three Orders, viz.: 1. Persons engaged in the General or Local Government of the Country. 2. Persons engaged in Defence of the Country. 3. Persons engaged in the learned Professions, in Literature, Art, and Science, and their immediate subordinates.

The Sub-Orders belonging to the Professional Class are 14 in number; three belonging to the First Order, two to the Second, and nine to the Third. These Sub-Orders are: 1. Officers of National Government; 2. Officers of Local Government; 3. Officers of the East India and Colonial Government; 4. Army; 5. Navy; 6. Clergymen, Ministers, and Church Officers; 7. Lawyers, Law Court Officers, and Law Stationers; 8. Physicians, Surgeons and Druggists; 9. Authors and Literary Persons; 10. Artists; 11. Musicians and Teachers of Music; 12. Actors and Actresses; 13. Teachers; 14. Scientific Persons.

Class II. The DOMESTIC CLASS consists of two Orders, viz.: 1. Persons engaged in the domestic offices or duties of wives, mothers, mistresses of families, children, and relatives not otherwise described; 2. Persons engaged in entertaining and performing personal offices for man.

The Sub-Orders belonging to the Domestic Class are six in number, four belonging to the First, and two to the Second Order. These Sub-Orders are: 1. Wives, not otherwise described; 2. Widows, not otherwise described; 3. Children and relatives at home, not otherwise described; 4. Scholars, so described; 5. Persons engaged in board and lodging; 6. Persons engaged in attendance—domestic servants.

Class III. The COMMERCIAL CLASS consists of two Orders; 1. Persons who buy or sell, keep or lend money, houses, or goods of various kinds; 2. Persons engaged in the conveyance of men, animals, goods, and messages.

The Sub-Orders belonging to the Commercial Class are eight in number, two being in the First, the remainder in the Second Order. These Sub-Orders are: 1. Persons engaged in mercantile pursuits; 2. Other general dealers; 3. Carriers on railways; 4. Carriers on roads; 5. Carriers on canals and rivers; 6. Carriers on seas and rivers; 7. Persons engaged in storage; 8. Messengers and porters.

Agricultural Class.

Class IV. The AGRICULTURAL CLASS consists of two Orders, viz.: 1. Persons possessing or working the land, and engaged in the growing of grain, fruits, grasses, animals and other products; 2. Persons engaged in fisheries or about animals.

The Sub-Orders belonging to the Agricultural Class are five in number, three belonging to the First, and two to the Second Order. These Sub-Orders are: 1. Persons engaged in fields and pastures—Agriculturists; 2. In woods—Arboriculturists; 3. In gardens—Horticulturists; 4. In fisheries; 5. About animals.

Industrial Class.

Class V. The INDUSTRIAL CLASS is the largest of all, and consists of six Orders, viz.: 1. Persons engaged in art and mechanic productions in which matters of various kinds are employed in combination; 2. Persons working and dealing in textile fabrics, and in dress; 3. Persons working and dealing in foods and drinks; 4. Persons working and dealing in animal substances; 5. Persons working and dealing in vegetable substances; 6. Persons working and dealing in minerals.

These Orders again are subdivided into 48 Sub-Orders, of which 17 belong to Order One; 6 to Order Two; 3 to Order Three; 3 to Order Four; 5 to Order Five; and 14 to Order Six.

The First Order of the Industrial Class has 17 Sub-Orders, viz.: 1. Persons dealing in books; 2. In musical instruments; 3. In prints and pictures; 4. In carvings and figures; 5. In tackle for sports and games; 6. In designs, medals, and dies; 7. In watches and philosophical instruments; 8. In surgical instruments; 9. In arms, powder and shot; 10. In machines and tools; 11. In carriages; 12. In harness; 13. In ships; 14. In houses and buildings; 15. In furniture; 16. In implements; 17. In chemicals.

The Second Order of the Industrial Class has six Sub-Orders, viz.: 1. Persons engaged in wool and worsted; 2. In silk; 3. In cotton and flax; 4. In mixed materials; 5. In dress; 6. In hemp and other fibrous materials.

The Third Order of the Industrial Class consists of three Sub-Orders, viz.: 1. Persons dealing in animal food; 2. In vegetable food; 3. In drinks and stimulants.

The Fourth Order of the Industrial Class has three Sub-Orders, viz.: 1. Persons dealing in grease, gut, bones, ivory, horn, and whalebone; 2. In skins, feathers, quills; 3. In hair.

The Fifth Order of the Industrial Class contains five Sub-Orders, viz.: 1. Persons dealing in gums and resins; 2. In woods; 3. In bark; 4. In cane, rush, and straw; 5. In paper.

The Sixth Order of the Industrial Class contains 14 Sub-Orders, viz.: 1. Miners; 2. Workers and dealers in coal; 3. In stone and clay; 4. In earthenware; 5. In glass; 6. In salt; 7. In water; 8. In gold, silver, and precious stones; 9. In copper; 10. In tin and quicksilver; 11. In zinc; 12. In lead and antimony; 13. In brass and other mixed metals; 14. In iron.

Indefinite and Non-productive Class.

Class VI. The INDEFINITE and NON-PRODUCTIVE CLASS, consisting chiefly of persons whose occupations were so indefinitely returned that they could not be referred to any of the above Orders or Sub-Orders, is divided into three Orders, viz.: 1. Labourers and others where the branch of labour was undefined; 2. Persons of rank and property not returned under any office or occupation; 3. Persons supported by the community and of no specified occupation.

The Sub-Orders belonging to this Class are seven in number, two belonging to the First Order, one to the Second Order, and four to the Third Order. These Sub-Orders are: 1. General labourers; 2. Other persons of indefinite occupations; 3. Persons of rank and property not returned under any office or occupation; 4. Persons supported by income from voluntary sources and rates; 5. Prisoners of no specified occupation; 6. Vagrants and gipsies; 7. Visitors and persons of no stated occupation.

A better idea, however, of the general arrangement or classification is obtained by studying the Summary Table of the Occupations of the People of Scotland, given at pp. 76 and 77, where the numbers under each Class, Order, and Sub-Order are given, or the Appendix Table V. (p. lxxviii.), where all these numbers are reduced to their proportions.

Classification imperfect.

Suggestions for improving a more perfect classification.

It must be understood, however, that the classification is far from perfect, and it appears to us, that in order to secure uniformity in the Census Returns for England, Scotland, and Ireland, and also to arrange a correct classification of occupations of the people, and the principles on which such a classification should be drawn up, arrangements ought to be made by Government for having a meeting in London, without delay.

of those who were instrumental in working out the Returns of 1861, as long as the faults of the present system are vividly before them, and before they forget the improvements which have suggested themselves. By doing this, the Census of 1871 would be taken on an uniform plan for the whole kingdom. The Tables for each Country would be strictly comparable throughout. The principles which ought to guide in the taking of a Census; the kind and amount of information to be obtained; the principles on which a classification of occupations ought to be drawn up; the preparation of that classification; the best and most economical methods of procuring the Returns, revising the books, abstracting the numbers, ages, conditions, birth-places and occupations of the people, would all be considered by persons having had experience in these matters; and an uniformity in the abstracts would be obtained utterly unattainable under the present detached system. To be of any value, however, the meeting would require to take place without delay, so long as the imperfections of the present system were vividly impressed on the mind. Even if those engaged in the Census of 1861 should survive, the whole of the minute particulars would be forgotten long before 1871.

In order, however, to appreciate the value of a Table such as that of the Occupations of the People, we must understand the objects had in view in classifying the population according to the arrangement adopted; else, from mistaking the design of the classification, we may be looking for information where we can find none, and which the Tables were never designed to give.

For some past Censuses the Tables of the Occupations of the People appear to have been drawn up with the limited view of only giving the number of persons actually engaged in following each particular trade or occupation, and not with the design of giving the number of persons dependent for their support on that occupation or trade. The Tables, therefore, are strictly 'Tables of the Occupations,' and neither can give, nor are intended to give, that information which was alone sought for in the earlier Censuses, viz., the number of persons dependent for their support on certain great classes of industry.

Present Tables strictly Tables of Occupations, not of persons dependent for their support on the various classes of industry.

The natural consequence of this is, that much more than the half of the population is obliged to be thrown into a class where all distinction of ranks and conditions is lost, viz., the Domestic Class. Thus, in Scotland, of the 3,062,294 persons in the population, some kind of occupation, trade or condition, is assigned to only 1,306,097 persons; while 1,734,295 (being a large majority), and drawn from every class and rank in life, are massed together indiscriminately under the Domestic Class; while, 21,902 persons are returned as of no occupation or condition whatever.

Evil of this.

The Occupation Tables, therefore, are of almost no use to Government or to the Political Economist, as they do not furnish the fact which is most useful to them, viz., the number of persons dependent for their support on each branch of industry.

Present Tables of little use to Government.

But perhaps these Tables make amends for this by their superior value to the Vital Statist. It would appear, indeed, that the leading idea in the minds of those who prepared these Tables of Occupations, and which induced the Government to give their consent that they should be in that form, was the idea that they would prove pre-eminently useful to the Vital Statist. Let us then shortly examine into their value for the purposes of Vital Statistics, and see whether they are so constituted as to throw much light on that valuable branch of knowledge.

By far the most important inquiry in which the Vital Statist can engage who has access to Tables of Occupations, is to discover the mortality prevailing among the different ranks or classes of society. Every Occupation Table, therefore, ought to be so constructed that the Vital Statist can pick out from it the whole numbers, male and female, old and young, belonging to each class of society or rank in life. We know from other sources, that the rank in life or the class of society to which each belongs, alters the rate of mortality at every age of life. Every Table of Occupations, therefore, ought to be so constructed as to permit us to distinguish each class of society, or each rank in life. But the Census Tables of the Occupations are so drawn up as to give no information whatever on such a subject. For the father is in one class, the elder sons, if above 15, in another, the wife and younger children are in a third, while the widows, if left with some little provision, are in a fourth.

Even useless for most purposes of Vital Statistics.

Ranks in life, or classes of society not distinguished.

In point of fact, the mortality at all ages is affected to a greater extent by the class of society which individuals occupy than by the mere occupation in which they engage, as is abundantly evidenced from the fact, that the upper ranks of society do not lose more than from 5 to 7 per cent. annually of the children who are under one year of age, while the mechanics and operatives lose of their children under one year of age from 20 to 25 per cent. every year.

Mortality affected by class to which person belongs.

The most important half, then, of the information which a proper Table of the Occupations of the People ought to be able to give to the Vital Statist is lost, in so far as the Census Tables of Occupations are concerned.

But perhaps they make up for this deficiency by enabling us to arrive at the exact numbers following each particular trade or occupation, and so put it in our power, by comparing them with the Mortality Tables, to ascertain the comparative death-rate due to each occupation, profession, or trade. Let us take an example :—

The rapid extension of steam power, and the immense number of men now engaged in attendance on steam machinery, makes it an important inquiry as to the mortality prevailing among that class of men who act as engine-drivers, stokers, and firemen—men who are exposed to the extremes of heat and cold, at one moment roasting under the extreme heat of the engine-room, at the next exposing themselves, in a state of profuse perspiration, to, it may be, a keen frosty wind. In the Death Registers these men are in general only entered as ‘engine-drivers,’ or ‘stokers,’ or ‘firemen.’ Can we ascertain the number of men following these occupations by the Census Tables of Occupations? To this we must reply, No. True it is, that under Class VI., Order 16, and Sub-Order 2, there are given certain numbers as following the occupation of ‘engine-driver, stoker, and fireman;’ but these numbers do not constitute even one-tenth part of the men following such occupations; the rest are scattered over at least 20 other occupations and trades, and their number under each of these is not discriminated, so that by the Census Tables it is impossible to tell how many follow such occupations. Thus, if the steam-engine was used in a cotton-mill, these men are put down as cotton-spinners; if in a coal mine, as coal-miners; if in a pen, or a comb, or a fork, or a saw, or a glass, or a bread manufactory, they would be tabulated as pen-makers, comb-makers, fork-grinders, saw-makers, glass-manufacturers, or bakers. As the Occupation Tables, therefore, are drawn up, not only do we lose all the engine-drivers, stokers, and firemen, and cannot even guess at their numbers, but their presence among the other trades with which they are tabulated, renders incorrect the numbers following these other trades.

Take another example. No trade has had more attention directed to it than the cotton trade; and both from its importance to the Country, and from the large number employed in it, we might have expected that the Occupation Tables would be so drawn up as to enable us, by a comparison with the Death Registers, to know the relative mortality among the three great classes composing the cotton manufacturers.

In the cotton trade, omitting those having charge of the steam machinery, the operatives may be divided into three distinct classes:—1st, Persons engaged in manipulating and spinning the dry cotton. These breathe the dust of the dry cotton, and are hence liable to certain diseases of the respiratory organs. 2d, Persons engaged in washing, bleaching, printing, and dyeing the wet cotton cloth. These persons live in an over-damp atmosphere, are kept in wet clothes most of the day, and are consequently affected by diseases quite diverse from those to which the first class is liable. 3d, Persons engaged in starching, dressing, and calendering the white or dyed, or printed cotton cloth. These persons are exposed to a high and dry temperature in close overheated rooms, and the diseases to which they are liable are diverse from those of the two previous classes. In the Occupation Tables, however, no such distinction of classes is recognised. It is true that the cotton and calico dyers and printers are separately tabulated from those engaged in the cotton manufacture; but under the heading ‘Cotton Manufacture,’ are included all the cotton and calico washers, bleachers, sizers, pasters, glazers, dressers, hot-pressers, calenderers, as well as every other class working in the dry cotton, or engaged about the steam machinery.

One other example may be given. Carters are a peculiar class all the world over. But by the Census Tables of Occupation, these men are only recognised as carters provided they live in large towns; but if they reside in the villages or the country, they are tabulated as agricultural labourers and not as carters; thus to an enormous extent diminishing the true number of carters, and to an equal extent vitiating the number of persons tabulated as agricultural labourers.

With a great proportion of the trades, however, the numbers may be depended on as giving the exact number of persons engaged in these trades; but for any purpose of Vital Statistics we consider even these numbers nearly useless, as they do not give the only true means of comparing the mortality of one trade with another, and this for the following reasons:—

In order to find out the mortality due to any trade or occupation, we must not only know the mere number actually employed in that trade or profession, but the total number of souls who are dependent for their support on that trade or profession. Let us illustrate what we mean :—

The mortality, or the annual number of deaths, among a community entirely devoted to the cotton manufacture, is not confined to those actually engaged in working at the cotton mills, but reflects on those left at home; so that in order to know what proportion of deaths is due to the cotton manufacture, we must compare the deaths at all ages among the cotton manufacturers with the deaths at all ages in some other trade—say the agriculturists.

Now, in a cotton manufacturing community, it is found that children at all ages die in a much higher ratio than among an agricultural population. For instance, of the children under one year of age, it is calculated that a full fourth, or about 25 per cent., of the cotton manufacturers' children die annually; while among the agriculturists, it is calculated that only about an eighth, or not exceeding 12 per cent., under one year of age die annually. This high mortality among the cotton manufacturers' children is directly caused by the occupation of the parents in the cotton trade. Father, mother, and all children above ten years of age, are drawn away to the mills; so that the care of the infants and of the younger members of the family devolves on incapable old women, or on mere children. The trade of the parents, therefore, is the direct cause of the heavy mortality which falls on the children of those engaged in the cotton manufacture.

The same is more or less true of nearly every other trade. The occupation or trade followed by the father or mother carries its effects back on the whole persons dependent on it for a livelihood; and any Table which alone gives the number of persons actually engaged in each trade, and which does not also give along with them the wives and children dependent for their support on these trades, can only lead to erroneous conclusions if attempted to be used as the basis for ascertaining the comparative mortality due to each trade.

It is a question, therefore, of no small moment, both to the Government and to the people, to determine as to the principles on which a Table of the Occupations of the People ought to be drawn up. And it would be well for the interests of both, as well as for the interests of Vital Statistics, that this should be determined before another Census of the people is taken.

What then are the principles on which a Classification of the Occupations of the People ought to be drawn up?

From what is stated above, it will be seen that we are in no hesitation as to this matter; for we consider that the only correct principle on which Tables of the Occupations of the People should be drawn up is, that they should not be limited to those actually engaged in following each occupation or trade, but ought to include all who are dependent for their support on that occupation or trade. In no other way could Government obtain the information which it desires as to the number of souls dependent for their support on each trade or branch of industry; in no other way could Tables be drawn up which would serve as a proper basis for vital statistical inquiries as to the varying mortality prevailing among each class of society, or caused by each trade and occupation.

It was on this only proper principle that the Government sought to class the population at the Censuses of 1801, 1811, 1821, and 1831. It was acting on this principle that the Governments of those days directed the inquiry so to be made as to ascertain the 'number of families' dependent for their support on agriculture and on trade.

The first blunder, as it appears to us, which has vitiated the Occupation Tables ever since, and introduced an erroneous principle, was made in 1831, when, in addition to other inquiries, all the males above 20 years of age were directed to state their occupations. The Census Commissioners of 1841, 1851, and 1861, therefore, departed from the proper and only principle (acted on up to 1831) which ought to have guided them in the preparation of Occupation Tables, and adopted the new and limited principle of confining the inquiry to the number of persons actually following each particular trade. They thus changed the whole nature of the inquiry, and have published, and have, as a necessary consequence, compelled us to publish, Tables which, in our eyes, are little better than mere matters of curiosity, while they might have been Tables of the highest interest and value to Government, to the Political Economist, and to the Vital Statist.

But Tables drawn up on the principle which we advocate would have given all the information which these imperfect Tables give, as well as all that additional and much more valuable information which these Tables cannot give. For they would not only give us the total number of males and of females dependent for their support on each trade or occupation, which would enable us to ascertain the mortality due to the different classes of society or ranks in life, but they would also enable us to eliminate the mortality due to each occupation or trade in each sex at every period of life.

By drawing up Tables on the principle to which we have referred, nearly the whole of that class which in the present Tables is denominated 'The Domestic Class,' and which embraces the great majority of the population, would be abolished, and the persons now referred to it would be assigned to their proper positions. As that class exists at present, it gives no information which is correct, or is of the slightest value. It does not give the total number of wives in the community, nor yet the total number of widows. It does not give the total number of children, nor yet the total number of scholars. The Principles on which a classification of the people according to occupations ought to be drawn up.

Tables on a proper principle would give all present information and a great deal more.

Example of the evils of the present classification.

information on all these points must be sought elsewhere ; and in the Scottish Tables is given elsewhere in Tables specially drawn up to show these facts.

This of itself is a strong argument against any such class being attempted to be given in a Table of Occupations, which ought either to give full and correct information on all points touched on, or none at all.

Had such a class, however, as the Domestic been retained, it ought to have given full and correct information as to all belonging to that class. As the home duties of a wife are by far the most important to the community in which a woman can be engaged, every wife ought to have been tabulated under that head, no matter what trade or occupation she might occasionally follow. But the whole Table of the Occupations appears to have been drawn up on no fixed principles, for from the number of 'wives' is not only excluded all those who carry on some trade, or follow some occupation different from their husband's (as seamstress, dressmaker, milliner, small ware dealer, etc.), but there are also excluded the wives of all shopkeepers, farmers, graziers, butchers, shoemakers, lodging and boarding-house keepers, beer sellers, publicans, innkeepers, and hotel-keepers.

What makes the want of some fixed principle in the construction of these Occupation Tables still more apparent is, the fact that the 'widows' of these men above specified, whose wives are not included among the 'Wives,' are thrown back again to the Domestic Class, and tabulated under 'Widows,' even though continuing to derive their support from the trades or occupations followed by their husbands, and in the case of the farmer's widow, even though living on the farm ; the sole exception being when they continued to carry on their husband's trade in their own name, when they are put under the name of the trade, and all distinction of their condition of life is lost, as whether they were spinsters, wives, or widows.

But this is not all. If the widow of these or of any of the other trades or occupations is not left destitute, but is, through the providence of her late husband, left with some small annuity, she is not entered in the Domestic Class at all, nor under 'Widows,' but is thrown to the bottom of the Table, and put under the 'Indefinite and Non-productive Class,' either as a 'gentlewoman' or as an 'annuitant,' under both of which titles no distinction is made, as whether the person was single, married, or widowed.

But the want of a fixed rule in the composition of these Occupation Tables is equally apparent from the mode in which the numbers are made up of those who are styled 'Son, Grandson, Brother, Nephew,' if a male, and 'Daughter, Granddaughter, Sister, Niece,' if a female. These titles are intended to include all those persons who are following no regular occupation or trade, but are living at home with their parents or relatives. Had this rule been followed out, it would have been all well enough, if we admit the propriety of having the Domestic Class at all. But the numbers given under these headings do not by any means represent the correct numbers living at home without occupations ; for if the persons were between the ages of 15 and 50 years, and were living with a farmer or grazier, they were tabulated as Agriculturists ; if under 15, they were tabulated as of the Domestic Class ; but if above 50, they were neither tabulated as Agriculturists, nor yet as of the Domestic Class, but were tabulated at the bottom of the Table as 'Persons of no specific occupation.'

But this is not all. Whatever arrangement was adopted, all will agree that the Occupation Tables ought, at all events, to have given correctly the numbers actually following each particular trade or occupation on the day on which the Census was taken. The want of a knowledge of the correct principles on which a Census of the Occupations ought to be drawn up renders these Tables of little use even on this important point, and vitiates every number assigned to every trade or occupation. For instance, there is a very large class of persons, (not including the children and the aged), who are supported by the community, and who live on the labours of others, viz., all paupers, criminals, and those supported by charitable institutions. These persons cannot be said to be following any regular trade ; and when, in a classification of occupations, a distinct place was assigned to such persons, one would naturally expect to find all such persons tabulated under that class,—viz., in the 6th Class of our Tables, and under the 18th Order, 'Persons supported by the Community.' The false principle, however, was adopted of tabulating all such persons under any occupation or trade which they may once, at some former period of their lives, have followed, while only those were tabulated under Order 18 who had omitted to state their former occupations. A person, therefore, who had been 20 years in a poorhouse, but formerly was an agricultural labourer, or a cotton spinner, was not tabulated as a pauper, but as an agricultural labourer, or as a cotton spinner. While a thief from his childhood, who may for some short period have worked as a shoemaker or tailor, is tabulated as a shoemaker or tailor and not as a criminal.

The consequence is, that every number assigned to trades and occupations in the Tables as published is erroneous, and cannot be depended on. As an instance, it may be stated, what is elsewhere more fully proved, that instead of the number of paupers being only 12,723 persons, as our Occupation Tables show, their number was actually 117,587 persons. From this one source alone, therefore, the returns of every trade and occupation are vitiated to the extent of having 104,864 persons thrown among them to which they can lay no claim.

It would serve no useful purpose to go over the Table of Occupations, and prove, by more numerous examples, that the want of fixed principles in the construction of the Table, and the want of a definite idea as to the principle on which such a Table should be drawn up, not only vitiates that Table, but even defeats the very limited uses to which such a Table could be put. The above examples, and the foregoing remarks seem sufficient to convince every one of the necessity which exists for taking some steps, such as those suggested above, for the adoption of some proper and uniform principle upon which the Occupation Tables should in future be prepared for all parts of the United Kingdom.

These examples and these remarks render it more apparent that whatever is to be done should be done now, while those still survive who have had the evils of the present Tables brought practically before them; for, if delayed till another Census is taken, not only are these things forgotten, even should all survive, but the bustle and anxieties consequent on the work then in hand, and the constant superintendence then required, put it out of the power of those who have the conduction of the arrangements in England, Scotland, and Ireland, to spare leisure for meeting in London, and duly considering all the circumstances, and arranging for an uniformity in their several publications.

Propriety of having all settled without delay for the next Census.

Let us now, however, review the information, such as it is, which these Tables give.

Numbers in each class.

Of the 3,062,294 persons in Scotland when the Census of the population was taken, 52,515 were tabulated as belonging to the Professional Class; 1,734,295 to the Domestic Class; 84,338 to the Commercial Class; 387,609 to the Agricultural Class; 694,074 to the Industrial Class; and 118,463 to the Indefinite and Non-productive Class.

These numbers reduced to proportion, as is done in Appendix Table V., would show that, in every 100,000 inhabitants in Scotland, 1,715 belonged to the Professional Class; 56,634 to the Domestic Class; 2,754 to the Commercial Class; 12,364 to the Agricultural Class; 22,665 to the Industrial Class; and 3,868 to the Indefinite and Non-productive Class.

Proportions in each class in 1861.

In 1851, in every 100,000 inhabitants of Scotland, 1,454 persons belonged to the Professional Class; 59,933 to the Domestic Class; 2,588 to the Commercial Class; 13,439 to the Agricultural Class; 18,821 to the Industrial Class; and 3,765 to the Indefinite and Non-productive Class. These proportions for the Censuses of 1851 and 1861 are given in the following Table:—

The Census Commissioners of 1851 published the following Table, with the view of showing the proportions which the Agricultural, the Commercial (including the Industrial), and the Miscellaneous Classes bore to each other in Great Britain, at the four Censuses of 1811, 1821, 1831, and 1841, the total Population being reckoned 100:—

which they were respectively in

NOTE.—The Comparative Statement refers in the first three decimal periods to families, but in 1841 to individuals.

The Commissioners, however, omitted to mention, that the proportional numbers of the several classes for 1841 were deduced from only 46·8 per cent. of the total population; so that any one may themselves estimate the value of such comparisons; for how can any approach to accuracy be obtained, when the existence of 53·2 per cent., or more than half, of the population is ignored?

If we attempt to ascertain from the Tables of 1851 and 1861, which include the whole population, the proportions which the Agricultural and the Commercial (including the Industrial) Classes bear to each other and to the other classes of occupations, the following would be the result for Great Britain, the proportions being given for every 100 persons of the total population :—

These exceedingly different proportions show that in 1851, some new principle was introduced into these Occupation Tables, different from that of former Censuses; and the alterations made on the arrangement of the occupations in 1861 from what they were in 1851, quite prevents anything like an approach to a rigid comparison even of the great classes of industry for these two Censuses.

These exceedingly different proportions, therefore, prove the absolute necessity which exists for some uniform and correct system being adopted ere another Census of the population shall be taken. When such large sums are spent in taking the Census of the population, it is surely of the utmost importance that the information thus collected should be so tabulated as to make the results in some measure to compensate for the outlay.

Had time permitted, it was intended to have prepared a set of Tables of Occupations for the County of Lanark, in which the wives and children were to be tabulated along with their husbands; and the whole of those paupers and criminals who are supported by the community, and consequently followed no specific occupation at the taking of the Census, were to be tabulated as paupers and criminals. Other needful corrections above specified were also to have been carried out; and these Tables were intended to be compared with the arrangement of occupations as published in this volume. We had not time, however, for the tabulation of such a large County as Lanark, and were obliged to limit ourselves to the small County of Linlithgow; and the tabulation according to what we consider the only correct principle for an Occupation Table, was nearly completed before we remembered that it was the exceptional County in Scotland, in that it contained more males than females. This male excess we attributed in our former Report to the new workings in coal and iron drawing in a number of males from other Counties; and this Table of Occupations fully bears out the statement then made. Still, though in this respect an exceptional County, it exhibits as well as any other the principles on which we concluded that Occupation Tables ought to be drawn up. There is therefore given below, in Table XXXI., the numbers of males, females, and both sexes in each of the 18 Orders of Occupations in two series. First, according to the arrangement adopted for the Census of 1861 and published in this volume; and Secondly, according to our proposed corrected arrangement, in which the numbers under each Order express the number of persons dependent for their support on the trade or occupation followed by the head of the family, the domestic servants being still allowed to remain as a separate Order.

From the example of this single County it will be seen that, had the whole of Scotland been abstracted on the same principle, the proportions belonging to each class would have been strictly comparable with the results of 1811, 1821, and 1831; whereas, as tabulated, they do not afford the most distant means of comparison, as may be seen in the following Table:—

TABLE XXXII.—Proportion of each of the Three great CLASSES of INDUSTRY in LINLITHGOW in 1861, in every 100 persons of the Population.

	Agriculture.	Commercial, including Industrial.	All Others.
According to Tables as published, . . .	9	26	65
By the proposed corrected arrangement, .	21	64	15

It is granted that the proportion of the Commercial and Industrial Classes in Linlithgow may be somewhat higher than in the whole of Scotland. But we also know that the Agricultural population is remaining nearly stationary, whereas the Industrial and Commercial Classes are largely increasing; so that if the proportion of these classes was 46 in every 100 persons in 1821 in Britain, we can well believe it would not be far from 64 in Linlithgow in 1861. Then it is to be remembered that an increase in one class causes a diminished proportion in all other classes, so that if 64 per cent. of the population were dependent for their support on Commercial and Industrial pursuits, only 36 per cent. of the population would be left for Agriculture and all other occupations.

The number of the sexes belonging to each class varied much. Thus, of the Professional Class, 44,796 were males, and 7719 females. Of the Domestic Class, 545,095 were males; but 1,189,200 females. Of the Commercial Class, 77,742 were males; but only 6596 females. Of the Agricultural Class, 256,293 were males, and 122,316 females. Of the Industrial Class, 465,049 were males, and 229,025 females. While of the Indefinite and Non-productive Class, 60,873 were males, and 57,590 females.

The proportion of persons in the several classes to the total number of persons and of either sex is given in Appendix Table V., where are also given the proportions belonging to every Order and Sub-Order of occupations; while in Appendix Tables VI. and VII. are given, in addition, the proportions of the different Classes in every Registration County, and in all the Principal Towns of Scotland.

DOMESTIC CLASS.—Of this Class, 371,552 females were wives who were not otherwise described; 55,602 were widows who were not otherwise described; 289,103 males and 390,157 females were children and relatives at home not otherwise described; 241,803 males and 225,253 females were simply returned as scholars; 3364 males and 8261 females were engaged as inn, hotel, and lodging-house keepers, etc.; while 10,821 males and 138,375 females were engaged in attendance, chiefly as domestic servants.

Number in the Commercial Class.

III. Number in the Agricultural Class.

IV. AGRICULTURAL CLASS.—Of this Class, 215,716 males and 120,773 females were engaged as agriculturists in fields and pastures, raising grain, fruits, roots, animals, or other products; 2608 males and 26 females were engaged in woods; 8764 males and 305 females were engaged in gardens; 22,040 males and 1081 females were engaged in fisheries; while 7165 males and 131 females were engaged about animals.

When the detailed Tables are looked over (as, for instance, at p. 97), it will be seen that, under the Agricultural Class, a distinction is drawn between those described as 'out-door' and 'in-door.' This phrase has no reference to the nature of the employment; but as to whether the agricultural labourer, ploughman, cattleman, shepherd, or farm-servant lived, or did not live, under the same roof as the farmer. If he resided with the farmer, he was tabulated as 'in-door,' but if he resided in a separate detached building, he was tabulated as 'out-door.' This distinction has been carried throughout the Tables for each County, from the important bearing which the facts thus elicited are likely to throw on certain social inquiries to which much attention has lately been directed.

Industrial Class.

V. INDUSTRIAL CLASS.—Of this Class, 7662 males and 1418 females were engaged in trades connected with books; 339 males and 1 female in manufacturing of dealing in musical instruments; 1259 males and 144 females in prints and pictures; 401 males and 90 females in carving and figures; 181 males and 89 females in tackle for sports and games; 821 males and 10 females in designs, medals, and dies; 1964 males and 11 females in watches and philosophical instruments; 31 males and 8 females in surgical instruments; 397 males and 5 females in arms, powder, and shot; 10,948 males and 28 females in machines and tools; 1549 males and 1 female in carriages; 1857 males and 7 females in harness; 9148 males and 6 females in ships; 68,598 males and 4708 females in houses and buildings; 6889 males and 533 females in furniture; 3523 males and 14,457 females in implements; 4336 males and 1600 females in chemicals; 13,861 males and 14,457 females in wool and worsted; 2768 males and 2552 females in silk; 53,704 males and 88,708 females in cotton and flax; 11,746 males and 8064 females in mixed materials; 51,817 males and 81,290 females in dress; 5563 males and 3950 females in hemstitching and other fibrous materials; 9065 males and 5359 females dealing in animal food; 18,355 males and 2293 females dealing in vegetable food; 21,150 males and 5804 females dealing in drinks and stimulants; 1386 males and 247 females dealing in grease, gut, bones, ivory, and whalebone; 2761 males and 57 females dealing in skins, feathers, and quills; 477 males and 279 females dealing in hair; 930 males and 733 females in gum and resins; 12,014 males and 294 females dealing and working in wood; 655 males and 19 females in bark; 861 males and 70 females in cane, rush, and straw; 3043 males and 3695 females in paper; 50,706 males and 133 females in mining; 4619 males and 35 females were workers or dealers in coal; 22,670 males and 124 females in stone, clay, and earth; 3136 males and 1244 females in earthenware; 1208 males and 34 females in glass; 77 males and 6 females in salt; 184 males in water; 1085 males and 35 females in gold, silver, and precious stones; 401 males and 1 female in copper; 2432 males and 48 females in tin and quicksilver; 9 males in zinc; 532 males in lead and antimony.

059 males and 118 females in brass and other mixed metals ; while 44,869 males and 31 females were workers or dealers in iron and steel.

VI. INDEFINITE and NON-PRODUCTIVE CLASS.—Of this Class, 41,661 males and 1347 females were general labourers; 9507 males and 15,821 females were persons who had not so defined their particular occupation as to allow of their being referred to a specific trade; 1201 males and 10,925 females were persons of rank or property not returned under any office or occupation ; 2597 males and 12,364 females were paupers and persons supported by income from voluntary sources and rates ; 39 males and 375 females were prisoners of no stated occupation ; 308 males and 416 females were vagrants and gipsies ; while 5560 males and 16,342 females were visitors, and persons of no stated occupation or condition.

Number in the Indefinite and Non-productive Class.

If these Tables of Occupation are to be of any use at all, or are intended to be consulted, it is manifest that some means ought to be taken to put them in such a form so that the numbers following different occupations in the several Counties and Towns of Scotland may be easily compared together. We have attempted to utilize these Tables, so as to afford this comparative result, in a series of Tables extending from pp. 78 to 92 inclusive, which series we have styled a 'Comparative Statement of the Occupations of the Males and Females in Scotland, its groups of Districts, its Registration Counties and Town Districts.' This series of Tables is limited to the Classes, the Orders, and the Sub-Orders alone, and presents at one view, and in one column, the number of persons, male and female, engaged in any of the several Classes, Orders, or Sub-Orders of Occupations in every several County and Town with above ten thousand inhabitants. To facilitate the consultation of that series of Tables, and avoid the necessity of turning to other Tables, the first three columns of the series, on p. 78, give the total number of males, of females, and of both sexes in each of these several Counties and Towns, so that any one interested in the inquiry as to the proportion of any of these occupations in the several Counties or Towns finds in that series all the materials he requires.

Set of Comparative Tables, and the facilities they afford for comparing the numbers and proportion in each County or Town.

To render the comparison more easy, in so far as the six great classes of occupations are concerned, we have given, in Appendix Table VI., the relative proportion of males and females engaged in occupations belonging to each Class in each of the several Counties and Towns, as compared with the whole number of that Class in all Scotland ; while in Appendix Table VII. is given the comparative number of persons in each of these six Classes in each several County or Town, irrespective of the proportions for all Scotland. (See p. lxxi.)

This last Table is the most interesting, as it gives us at once the comparative proportions of persons following each of the six Classes of Occupations in each Town and County, and enables us strictly to compare the results with each other. Thus, for instance, in every 100,000 males in Scotland, we find that the proportion of 17,677 are tabulated as belonging to the Agricultural Class. Keeping to the same basis of proportion, we find that in Shetland this proportion is immensely exceeded, seeing that, in the proportion of 102,006 males follow agricultural pursuits ; while the proportion in Orkney is still higher. viz, 42,033, or more than double the proportion of all Scotland. But just as these Counties exceed in their proportion of persons following agricultural pursuits, so do other Counties fall greatly below the average of all Scotland ; for, in Clackmannan, only the small proportion of 7391 males, and in Renfrew that of 7086 males, or very much less than half the average of Scotland, engage in agricultural pursuits.

Proportions of Agricultural Class in the different Counties.

Let us take another example. In every 100,000 males in Scotland, 32,076 follow those trades which are assigned to the Industrial Class. But, taking the same basis of proportion for each County, only in the proportion of 7991 belong to the Industrial Class in Shetland, 11,376 in Sutherland, and 13,636 in Orkney, proportions about a third only of that for all Scotland. But in the manufacturing and mining Counties, and in almost all the larger Towns, the average proportion for all Scotland is exceeded. Thus, assuming the same basis of 100,000 males in each, the proportion of 38,417 males belong to the Industrial Class in Ayrshire, 42,770 in Renfrew, and 44,964 in Lanark, while in the Parliamentary Burgh of Glasgow, the proportion of 46,900 males belong to the Industrial Class, 40,611 in Edinburgh, 39,829 in Dundee, and 49,208 in Paisley.

Proportion of Industrial Class in the different Counties.

Passing, however, from these proportional Tables to the series of 'Comparative Tables' themselves, let us glance at a few of the Sub-Orders, beginning at p. 81, and see what information they furnish.

Clergymen, ministers, and church officials we knew previously, without the aid of the Census, or the first column on Table p. 82, were well distributed over the Country ; but we were scarcely prepared to find that the lawyers (Sub-Order 2 on same page) were so numerous, or that they were to be met with in such numbers in even the Insular Counties. Thus, of the 5399 lawyers, law-court officers, and law stationers, it appears that 11 were in Shetland, 22 in Orkney, 20 in Caithness, 12 in Sutherland, 44 in Ross and Cromarty, 94 in Inverness, etc. As might be expected, however, it is chiefly in the Towns where lawyers congregate, in consequence of the Courts being held in them, and accordingly the Town of Aberdeen claims 296 of the 325 lawyers in the County ; Glasgow claims 658 of the 866 lawyers in Lanarkshire ; and Edinburgh claims 1563 of the 1700 lawyers in the County.

Ministers and Church Officials.

It is rather a remarkable fact which these Tables make apparent, that the number of persons connected with Church, with the Law, and with Physic are nearly the same. Thus, 5642 persons are connected with Church, 5400 with the Law, while 5464 are connected with Physic, as physicians, surgeons, druggists, midwives, etc. The column showing the distribution of physicians, surgeons, druggists, midwives, etc., over the Counties of Scotland would prove a valuable document for those interested in such subjects. For instance, of the 9 males in Shetland under Sub-Order 3, only 5 were physicians or surgeons, 1 was an assistant-surgeon, and 3 were druggists ; but to make up for this paucity in medical practitioners, there were 33 women up in years acting as midwives. A disproportionate number of medicals, it will be seen, are met with in the Towns and Counties where are Medical Schools, that of Edinburgh being especially high in proportion to its population.

Authors and literary persons (Sub-Order 4), it will be seen, are principally attached to the Towns ; for, of the 360 males and 12 females following such pursuit, 265 males and 9 females lived in the Towns, the rest in the Rural Districts and smaller Towns.

It will be observed that Teachers (Sub-Order 8) are more equally distributed over the Country than any other class or profession ; and, in so far as male teachers are concerned, in a ratio tolerably correspondent to that of the population. But one very remarkable difference these Tables show with regard to the sexes. In the Rural Districts, while the male teachers greatly exceed the female, seeing there were 4275 male teachers, but only 2916 female teachers, in the Town Districts the female teachers exceed the male number, seeing there were in the Town Districts only 2216 male but 2428 female teachers. These Tables show in what Counties this deficiency of female teachers exists to the greatest extent. Thus, in Shetland, for the 60 male, there were only 23 female teachers. In Ross and Cromarty, for 222 male, there were only 69 female teachers. In Inverness, for 249 male, there were only 99 female teachers. Even in the County of Lanark itself, there were 1024 male, but only 767 female teachers. But in the Counties of Aberdeen and Edinburgh, these numbers and proportions are reversed ; for, in Aberdeen for the 488 male, there were 578 female teachers, and in Edinburgh County, for 744 male, there were 1090 female teachers. Of the Towns, even Glasgow has not so many female as male teachers ; but Aberdeen, Dundee, Edinburgh, Inverness, Kirkcaldy, Leith, Montrose, and Stirling, have each more female than male teachers.

It is a natural step from the teachers to the scholars. These Comparative Tables (p. 83) show that 467,056 persons were tabulated as ‘Scholars,’ of whom 241,803 were males, and 225,253 were females. These numbers indicate that 15·2 per cent. of the population, or one in every 6·5 persons, were receiving education at the date of the Census, and were returned as scholars.

The following Table shows the per centage of Scholars to the population in each of the Divisions and Counties of Scotland :—

It may be mentioned that this Table generally agrees with a Table published annually by the Registrar-General, showing the proportion of men and women in each of the Divisions and Counties of Scotland who are able to sign their names in the Marriage Register. One remarkable exception occurs, viz. Shetland. By the above Table it appears that Shetland returned only half as many scholars, in proportion to her population, as the rest of Scotland; yet the Marriage Registers proved that the proportion of men and of women able to sign their names in the Marriage Register, though rather below the average of Scotland, was almost always much higher than that of Ross, Cromarty, and Inverness, which by the above Table, seem to furnish a much larger proportion of scholars. The general correspondence of the two series of Tables is, however, so striking, that it gives confidence in the general conclusions which might be drawn relative to the state of elementary Education in the several Counties, whether these conclusions were based on the returns of the number of scholars, or on the Signatures in the Marriage Register.

It may be noticed, however, as a singular fact, that although England, by her Occupation Tables, shows that a slightly larger proportion of her population is in the receipt of instruction as scholars, viz., 15·7 per cent. of her population, the number of adults able to sign their names in the Marriage Registers is very much below that of Scotland. Thus in 1859, the latest year for which detailed Returns have been published for Scotland, 89·1 per cent. of the men, and 77·8 per cent. of the women who married in Scotland, were able to sign their names in the Marriage Register. In England, during the same year, only 73·3 per cent. of the men, and 62·4 per cent. of the women who married were able to sign their names. The cause of this anomaly is worthy of inquiry, inasmuch as it would almost lead to the conclusion, that the elementary Education in England is of an inferior quality, and is consequently sooner lost by a considerable proportion of the population.

Comparison of England with Scotland as to scholars, etc.

Had the domestic servants been tabulated on a proper principle, it might have been expected that their proportion in the several Counties would have afforded us the means of estimating the proportion of families in each able to pay for the services of others; and thus have served as a kind of guide to the general social condition of the population, and the relative proportion of well-to-do families in each County. Unfortunately in very many cases it was quite impossible from the Returns to ascertain whether the servants of the farmers were to be tabulated under ‘Domestic Servants,’ or to be retained in a different class altogether and be tabulated as ‘In-door Farm Servants;’ and though every care was taken to follow the rules laid down for the tabulation of these two classes, it is quite certain that, in so far as the Counties are concerned, the Returns give no idea whatever of the proportion of families able to pay for the services of others.

Domestic Servants.

Such as it is, however, the following Table gives all the information on this head now attainable; and exhibits the per centage of domestic servants to the population of each of the Divisions and Counties of Scotland:—

Table XXXV. is limited to the Eight Principal Towns of Scotland, which have populations exceeding 20,000 persons, and exhibits the per centage of domestic servants to the total population in each Town; and the Towns are arranged in the order of the greatest per centage of domestic servants.

agrees with the results deducible from the Tables of the number of families inhabiting houses of different sizes.

Any one acquainted with these several Towns could have predicted that these Towns would arrange themselves in the order in which this Table exhibits them; but few, if any, would have expected that the difference would be so great in favour of Edinburgh. The results, however, between Edinburgh and Glasgow, for instance, so exactly correspond with the Tables given in Vol. I. p. lvi. and lvii., which exhibit the number of rooms to each family in Edinburgh and Glasgow, that the one set of Tables may be regarded as thoroughly corroborating the results brought out by the other. Thus, these Tables show that though Glasgow has more than twice the population of Edinburgh, yet it only contains 624 houses with from 11 to 15 rooms in each house; while Edinburgh, though a town with only half its population, contained 1169 houses of the same size. Again, of houses containing from 16 to 20 rooms, Glasgow had 166, while Edinburgh had 553. The one Table, therefore, thoroughly corroborates the conclusions deducible from the other; and both prove what important conclusions, as to the social conditions of the several Towns, may be drawn from these Statistical Tables.

Workers in flax and cotton ought to have formed separate Sub-orders.

It would be tedious, besides extending this Report to an unreasonable length, to go over all the Sub-Orders in these Comparative Tables, and show the proportions in which the agriculturists, fishermen, workers and dealers in wool, in silk, in cotton, in flax, in hemp and jute, in glass, in the precious metals, etc., exist in the different Counties. It may be remarked, however, that it is a very great pity that the workers and dealers in cotton were put in the same Sub-Order as the workers and dealers in flax. The supplies of these two distinct classes of products coming from different Countries, the manipulation and the machinery required for each being also quite diverse, each ought to have constituted a distinct Sub-Order. From being confounded together, however, in one Sub-Order, the figures given in the Comparative Tables, p. 87, give no idea whatever as to the Counties where either the one or the other branch of industry is carried on; and yet it is most important to know that fact, as a stoppage of the cotton supplies brings misery to one County, increased prosperity to another. From the Detailed Tables of the Occupations, however, it appears that 49,561 persons were engaged in Scotland in working or dealing in flax (lint), and linen goods; while 92,851 persons were engaged in working or dealing in cotton and cotton goods.

The following Table XXXVI. shows the number of persons working or dealing in flax and in cotton in the several Counties of Scotland:—

By this Table it is at once seen that Forfar and Fife are the two Counties where the flax and linen manufactures are carried on to the largest extent, while Lanark, Ayr, and Renfrew are the chief seats of the cotton manufactures. In fact, it would seem as if the development of the one or other manufacture had been determined to a great extent by the proximity of ports to the Counties from which the chief supply of the raw material was procured;—the Western Ports, from their more easy access to shipping from America, favouring the growth of the cotton trade in the Western Counties; while the ports on the East Coast, from their proximity to the Baltic, down which come the chief supplies of flax, have led to the development of the linen trade among the Eastern Counties.

A great amount of interesting information, relative to the change of habits of the people, might have been gathered from these Occupation Tables, had they been drawn up on an uniform system for any lengthened period, or even given the number of persons following each trade. For instance, about 50 years ago wheaten bread was not used by the great mass of the inhabitants of Scotland, its use being chiefly confined to the large towns. Oat-meal porridge with oat-meal cakes, supplemented by barley-meal and pease-meal scones, were the staple food of the people. The Census Tables of the Occupations do not extend far enough back to show when the change in the diet of the people first commenced; but they extend far enough back to show how rapidly the change in the diet of the people from these coarser foods to wheaten bread was going on between 1841 and 1851.

Thus, in 1841, there were only 8,040 bakers, pastry-cooks, and confectioners in Scotland; but in 1851 these had increased to 11,647. In other words, the use of wheaten bread, as an article of diet, had so extended between 1841 and 1851, that the bakers had increased by 44·8 per cent. in the ten years. How interesting it would have been to know the increase in the two previous decades. Compared with that great increase, that between 1851 and 1861 has been trifling, only, in fact, to the extent of 10 per cent.—the bakers, confectioners, and pastry-cooks only numbering 12,818 in 1861.

Tables give information as to change in diet of the people.

Bakers in 1841, 1851, and 1861.

THE BLIND.

The number of the blind (as well as that of the deaf and dumb) was first endeavoured to be ascertained in 1851. For this purpose a column was inserted in the Householder's Schedule, in which was to be written 'blind' (or 'deaf and dumb'), opposite the name of any of the family so afflicted. The same was done at the recent Census; but, inasmuch as the numbers of the blind for 1861 are below those of 1851, notwithstanding the increase in the population, it is questionable how far these numbers may be trusted. With the view of insuring accuracy, however, the Enumeration Books were twice gone over; so that if the numbers do not correspond with those of 1851, the fault must lie with the people who have neglected to fill up the column.

2820 persons, consisting of 1399 males, and 1421 females, were returned as blind. This gives the proportion of 92 blind persons in every 100,000 of the general population, or one blind to every 1086 persons. In 1851 the number of the blind was 3010, being in the proportion of 104 blind in every 100,000 of the general population, or one blind in every 960 persons. The only other attempt to ascertain the number of the blind in Scotland was made by Dr Stark, in his 'Contribution to the Vital Statistics of Scotland,' when he estimated the blind in Scotland in 1841 to amount to 2385 persons, being in the proportion of one blind in every 1098 persons.

By the Returns of 1861, the proportion of blind males was higher than that of blind females, inasmuch as there were 96 males blind in every 100,000 males; but only 88 females blind in every 100,000 females. See Tables at pp. 57 and 334.

Blindness is a disease which increases with age, as will be at once apparent from looking over the ages of the persons returned as blind, on p. 57. By that Table it will be seen that, while from 10 to 15 years of age, only 66 males and 62 females were returned as blind, notwithstanding the much smaller proportion of persons living between the ages of 60 and 65, no fewer than 122 males and 132 females were blind at these ages. The influence of age in producing blindness will, however, be best shown, by taking the numbers who are blind above and under 50 years of age. Thus, of the 1399 blind males, 725 were above 50 years, while 674 were under that age. Of the 1421 blind females, 935 were above 50 years, and only 486 under that age. If these numbers could be depended on, they would seem to indicate, that the tendency of the female to get blind through age was much greater than that of the male; for, whereas only 52 per cent. of the blind males were above 50 years of age, 65 per cent. of the blind females were above that age. The proposition, however, might be put in another form, viz., that while the male had a greater liability to blindness through accidents arising from his profession and trade, the female had a greater tendency to become blind through the increase of age.

Number of blind first ascertained in 1851.

Blindness increases with age.

Proportion of blind in the several Divisions of Scotland.

The number of blind persons in the respective Counties is perhaps too small to permit of trustworthy conclusions being drawn as to the comparative liability to blindness exhibited by the inhabitants of each. See Table XXXVII. The same objection, however, scarcely holds, if the comparison be limited to the eight Divisions into which the Counties of Scotland are divided, though even of them we must speak in very general terms. Thus, in the Northern Division, embracing the Counties of Shetland, Orkney, Caithness, and Sutherland, the very high proportion of one blind in every 590 persons occurs. In the North-Western Division, including the Counties of Ross and Cromarty and Inverness, there was one blind to every 750 persons. These two Divisions may be taken as representatives of the insular and wild Highland Districts of Scotland; and they may be contrasted with the East Midland Division, which may be regarded as a prosperous agricultural district, and with the South-Western Division, which is our great mining and manufacturing district.

In the East Midland Division, embracing the Counties of Forfar, Perth, Fife, Kinross, and Clackmannan, there was only one blind in every 1371 persons. And in the South-Western Division, which includes the Counties of Renfrew, Ayr, and Lanark, there was only one blind in every 1340 persons.

Attempt to account for the facts.

This fact, viewed in one light, would lead us to conclude, that the more the sight was exercised, the more it was strengthened, and was rendered the less liable to be lost; and that, though the mining and manufacturing populations were much more liable to have their eyes injured by accidents resulting from their occupations, they were only half as liable to lose their vision as the inhabitants of the insular and wild Highland Districts, who certainly do not over-exert their eyes in the least degree.

But there is another explanation, which may be the true one. A very large proportion of the inhabitants in these insular and wild Highland Districts live in houses which either have no chimneys, or very imperfect ones, so that the smoke from their peat fire fills the apartment, and constantly irritates the eyes. Every one who has passed through these districts must have remarked the very large numbers of persons with bleared and sore eyes, so that this circumstance may serve to account for the great prevalence of blindness in these districts, without attributing it to race, or climate, or occupations.

A rather inexplicable fact is noticed relative to the County of Edinburgh, in that it contains one blind person in every 767 inhabitants. Even excluding the inmates of the Blind Asylums, who may be supposed to be drafted from all the adjoining Counties, there would still be the high proportion of one blind person in every 904 inhabitants.

THE DEAF AND DUMB.

Number of deaf and dumb.

2335 persons, consisting of 1277 males and 1058 females, were returned as deaf and dumb in 1861, being in the low proportion of 76 deaf and dumb in every 100,000 persons, or one deaf and dumb in every 1311 persons. See Tables at pp. 57 and 334.

Unlike blindness, which affects the greatest number at advanced periods of life, deafness, and consequent dumbness, is most common during the earlier years of life.

being either from birth, or induced in early life by those diseases to which children are liable, and more especially by scarlatina. Hence it happens that by far the greatest number of the deaf and dumb are met with during the earlier years of life, few additions being made to their number after the 15th year; so that the number after that period diminishes by the deaths which occur at every additional year of life. Thus, the deaf and dumb females appear to attain their maximum number between five and ten years of age, their number then amounting to 140, from which age they diminish to the close of life. The males, again, seem to attain their maximum between ten and fifteen years, their number amounting to 184, after which they, in like manner, continue to diminish in number till the close of life.

Deaf-dumbness most common in early life, and chiefly the result of disease.

It is commonly assumed that, excepting a very small per centage, all the cases of deaf and dumbness are congenital. From some imperfect investigations we have made ourselves, it would appear that this is a great mistake, and that not more children are born deaf and dumb than are born blind; and that, in fact, the numbers returned as respectively blind, or deaf and dumb, in the Census Returns of Ages under five years, correctly express the proportion in the population at that early age.

Now, it is a remarkable fact that, though deaf-dumbness and blindness seem to be the very opposites of each other, in so far as that the one (deaf-dumbness) is essentially a disease or affliction of childhood, while the other (blindness) is one of age, the same populations which exhibit the greatest tendency to the one manifest also the greatest liability to the other. Thus, it was pointed out that the Northern and North-Western Divisions of Scotland contained by far the greatest proportion of blind persons (see Table XXXVII.); in fact, nearly double the proportion of blind which occurs among the populations of the East-Midland and South-Western Divisions. It is exactly the same with regard to deaf-dumbness (see Table XXXVII.); for, while the Northern Division of Scotland contains one deaf-dumb in every 852 persons, and the North-Western Division one deaf-dumb in every 945 persons, the East-Midland Division contains only one deaf-dumb in every 1329 persons, and the South-Western Division one deaf-dumb in every 1577 persons.

Deaf-dumbness and blindness prevail in the same Divisions.

This correspondence is too close to be accidental, and must depend on some natural law whose causes have not yet been investigated; perhaps extending also to imbeciles and lunatics.

THE INSANE.

Only 4485 persons were returned as lunatic, and 481 as imbecile, in Scotland when the Census was taken. These returns are manifestly imperfect, and result from the circumstance, that no special means were adopted for procuring the exact number of the lunatics or imbeciles. See Tables at pp. 57 and 334.

Census Return of lunatics.

It is always a matter of some importance, however, to ascertain the number of the insane in the population; and the following Table, extracted from the Fourth Annual Report of the Commissioners in Lunacy for Scotland, gives the desired particulars, as well as the manner in which they are distributed.

TABLE XXXVIII.—INSANE in SCOTLAND on 1st January 1861.

True number.

From the above Table it appears, that in 1861, there were 8,136 insane persons in Scotland, of whom 3,914 were males, and 4,222 females. This gives the very high proportion of one insane person in every 376 persons of the population, or 265 lunatics and imbeciles in every 100,000 persons; or one insane male in every 367 males, and one insane female in every 381 females.

acy than female.

If these Statistics can be relied on, they show that the male is slightly more liable to insanity than the female; but it is very important to note, that this greater liability to insanity in the male is in about the same ratio as his greater liability to all diseases, and to death, as compared with the female. This fact would almost of itself prove, that insanity is a disease essentially of the body, and only acting secondarily on the mind; and this conclusion is not only fully borne out by the results of treatment, but receives still further confirmation from a circumstance noticed with regard to the pauper lunatics by the Lunacy Commissioners in their Fourth Annual Report, that 'the occurrence of pauper lunacy seems to be more frequent in the towns than in the country.' The Reports of the Registrar-General have fully demonstrated that all diseases are so, so that it is extremely interesting to find, that lunacy follows in that respect the same law as other bodily diseases; and it ought to go far to induce those medical men who have the treatment of lunatics to regard it in its primary stages as a bodily disease, and base their treatment on that theory.

to more frequent Towns.

It is much to be desired that the Lunacy Commissioners would follow out this inquiry, and adopt as their town districts those selected for the Census and for the Reports of the Registrar-General; and further, that they would extend their inquiry so as to embrace the usual residence of all lunatics.

Statistics of insanity other Countries comparable with se of Scotland.

It would have been interesting to have compared the Statistics of other countries relative to insanity with those of Scotland; and had we been satisfied with the official Reports of other countries, it might easily have been shown, that these made out Scotland to be a country in which insanity prevailed to a greater extent than in any known nation of Europe or of America. Such conclusions, however, would have been erroneous. The Statistics of Insanity which are published for other countries are perfectly untrustworthy, in fact, of exactly the same value as the Scottish Census Returns of the Insane. Most countries only publish the numbers of the insane confined in Lunatic Asylums, and as these do not embrace even a half of the numbers actually insane, it is manifestly impossible to make use of them for comparison with the carefully collected Statistics of Insanity as published by the Scottish Commissioners in Lunacy. Even the numbers collected in Asylums for the Insane depend on the state of civilisation of the people, and the care which the Government takes of that unfortunate class of persons; and in no case do the Census Returns of any country embrace anything like the total number of the insane; indeed, it is questionable whether any include even the half.

for example those England.

Take, for instance, the carefully collected Census Statistics of the Insane in England for 1861. The number of lunatics by the Census Returns, as published, is limited to those in Asylums, and neither includes those in Military and Naval Asylums, nor in Poorhouses, nor in private houses. That whole number, as published, amounted to 24,345 persons. But in January 1861, there were no fewer than 32,887 pauper lunatics alone in England; and the number who were not paupers may safely be set down as amounting to an equal number.

of America.

Take, as another example, the Census of the United States of America, and it will be apparent, that the Statistics of Lunatics are collected on a different principle at each Census. Thus, in 1840, only 14,641 free persons were returned as insane and idiotic; but in 1850, the idiotic alone amounted very nearly to that number, viz., to 14,257; while the insane, in addition, numbered 14,972 persons. In 1860 again, of the free persons, the insane alone were returned as 23,593, while the idiotic were returned as 17,286. No details are given as to what proportion of the insane in the population these numbers represent; but we are allowed to infer, that they refer alone to those confined in Lunatic Asylums, and consequently do not include one half of those actually suffering from insanity.

Just so is it with the returns from other countries. So far as known, the official numbers of the insane for these countries no more represent the actual number of the insane in the population, than do the numbers of the insane published in the Official Tables of the Census for Scotland and for England. In such circumstances, it only leads to a false conclusion to make any attempt to compare the proportion of the insane in Scotland with the Continental kingdoms; and no proper comparison will be practicable till the Returns are taken up with similar accuracy in each country. Figures are not necessarily truths; but unless they are truths—true facts—they only lead to error.

PATIENTS IN HOSPITALS FOR THE SICK.

On the 8th of April 1861, there were 1518 persons, of whom 796 were males, and 722 females, in Hospitals for the Sick, not including patients in the Military Hospitals. These Hospitals are almost confined to the large towns, so that but a small proportion of the population can avail themselves of them.

PAUPERS IN AUTHORIZED POORHOUSES.

On the night on which the Census was taken, 7305 persons were inmates of the 37 authorized Poorhouses in Scotland. These numbers, however, give not the most distant approximation to the number of the Poor actually in the receipt of Parochial aid on the 8th of April 1861. By the 'Sixteenth Annual Report of the Board of Supervision for the Relief of the Poor in Scotland,' it appears, that on the 14th May 1861, when the financial year closed, 78,433 persons were on the register as receiving permanent aid; while the number of casual Poor relieved in addition during the year amounted to 42,848 persons. But these 78,433 registered and permanent Poor had dependent on them 38,936 persons; while the 42,848 Poor who received casual aid during the year had 36,670 persons dependent on them. If we assume that the casual Poor daily relieved, with their dependants, amounted to 218 persons, and add that number to the 78,433 registered Poor and their 38,936 dependants, the number of persons actually supported by Parochial aid on the night on which the Census was taken would amount to 117,587 persons. This would show that the high proportion of 3·8 per cent. of the total population, or one in every 26 persons, were supported by Parochial assessments when the Census was taken.

Census Returns of paupers worthless.

PRISONERS IN 46 PRISONS, JAILS, ETC.

2071 prisoners, of whom 1098 were males, and 973 females, were confined in the 46 Prisons, Jails, etc., in Scotland when the Census was taken. By the Twenty-third Report on Prisons in Scotland, it appears that the average daily number of prisoners in the Prisons of Scotland during the year 1861, was 2083, so that the Census numbers most closely approach the average, and gives the proportion of one prisoner for every 1479 persons in Scotland. See Tables at pp. 57 and 334.

BIRTH-PLACES OF THE PEOPLE.

It is interesting to know the birth-places of the people, not only as showing of how many nationalities it is composed, but also, and chiefly, as proving what a large intercourse, interchange, or intermigration goes on between the inhabitants of the different Counties, as well as from the Counties to the Towns.

In Scotland on the 8th April 1861, there were 3,062,294 inhabitants, and of these 2,785,804 were Scotch, 204,003 Irish, 54,920 English, 1,112 Welsh, 628 Channel Islanders, 7,559 British Colonists, 4,219 British subjects born abroad or at sea, and 3,969 Foreigners. These numbers reduced to proportions would show, that in every 100,000 persons in Scotland—(For the numbers in each County see Table at p. 330, and for the Proportions, see Appendix Table IX., p. lxxiii.):—

Birth-places.

90,970	were Scotch.
6,664	— Irish.
1,794	— English.
247	— British Colonists.

130	— Foreigners.
36	— Welsh.
21	— Channel Islanders.

Proportion of different Nations in population.

In plain words, this Table shows that 91 per cent. of the persons living in Scotland in 1861 were natives of Scotland, while 9 per cent. were natives of other Countries.

The Irish are the most numerous aliens in Scotland, amounting to 204,003 persons, or 6·6 per cent. of the population. They are, however, very unequally distributed over the several Counties of Scotland, chiefly clustering in those Counties where there is a great demand for unskilled labour, or where there are ports which run vessels in connection with Irish ports. Thus Renfrew and Lanark, for both the above reasons, contain a larger proportion of Irish than any of the Scottish Counties—both having about 14½ per cent. of their populations consisting of Irish. (See Appendix Table IX.) Wigtown follows next, 12½ per cent. of its population being Irish, from the circumstance of its containing a favourite port for the debarkation of Irish. Dumbarton, for the same reasons as Renfrew and Lanark, has nearly 12 per cent. of her population of Irish descent; while Ayr has nearly 9½ per cent., and Linlithgow nearly 9½ per cent. of Irish in their respective populations. Forfar, though on the east coast, in consequence of the great demand for unskilled labour, has 7½ per cent. of her population of Irish origin, most of them in the town of Dundee. These are the only Counties in which the proportion of Irish exceeds the average for Scotland; and it is the large number of Irish in these Counties which causes the proportion for Scotland to be so high. There is no County of Scotland, however, but contains some Irish. But this is less surprising than the fact, that there is no County of Scotland but what contains natives of Wales, of the Channel Islands, and of the British Colonies.

Of the four principal Towns of Scotland, Glasgow and Dundee contain nearly the same proportions of Irish, viz., 15·6 per cent. of their respective populations (see Table XXXIX.), while Edinburgh has little more than 5 per cent., and Aberdeen little more than 1½ per cent.

The English constitute the next most numerous class of aliens in Scotland, amounting to 54,920 persons, or about 1½ per cent. of the population. They are distributed over the Counties of Scotland with nearly as much irregularity as the Irish, but that distribution not directed by the same causes. Proximity and intercourse seem to be the causes which chiefly regulate the distribution of the English over Scotland. The Counties of Berwick and Roxburgh are consequently those which contain the highest proportion of the natives of England, Berwick having nearly 6 per cent., and Roxburgh 5½ per cent. of their respective populations of English origin. Dumfries and Edinburgh follow, respectively having nearly 4 and 3½ per cent. of English in their populations. Kirkcudbright, Selkirk, Lanark, and Haddington follow, each having from 2 to 3 per cent. of English in their populations. Even the distant and Insular County of Shetland has its proportion of English, in which County, indeed, they form the most numerous class of aliens.

These and other results worthy of notice are given in full in the Abstract Table at p. 330, where the numbers are to be found, and in Appendix Table IX. at p. lxxiii. where the proportions of persons, natives of the several Countries, are given for every Division and Registration County of Scotland.

The last column of these Tables shows the number and proportion of Foreigners (i.e. not British subjects) in the several Counties of Scotland.

3,969 Foreigners were in Scotland when the Census was taken; but of that number 2,106 were the crews of 300 foreign ships in the several ports of Scotland, while 139 were German emigrants wrecked on the coasts of Orkney. The small number, therefore, of 1,724 persons were all the foreigners actually resident in Scotland when the Census was taken.

But a far more interesting subject of inquiry is the proportion of natives of Scotland born in or out of the County in which each resided when the Census was taken. This subject we have endeavoured to render intelligible, and the Tables consultable, by adding Appendix Table IX., two columns, the one showing the proportion of Scotsmen living in the County of their birth, the other the proportion of Scotsmen born out of the County in which they resided. The Tables are so constructed that these several proportions added together show the number and proportion of persons in the population who were natives of Scotland, so that column three is the sum of columns one and two. Thus, of the 99·5 per cent. of the population of Shetland who were natives of Scotland, 97·9 per cent. were born in Shetland, and only 1·6 per cent. in other Counties of Scotland; whereas, of the 98·4 per cent. of the population of Inverness who were of Scottish origin, 4·1 per cent. only were born in that County, but 14·3 per cent. were born in other Counties of Scotland.

the Population.

These columns, then, prove what a very large intermigration or interchange of inhabitants goes on between County and County, amounting to a full third of the Scottish population in some Counties. Thus, in the County of Clackmannan, of the 95·5 per cent. natives of Scotland resident in it, only 62·6 per cent. were born in Clackmannan, while 32·9 per cent. were born in other Counties of Scotland. Of the 95·1 per cent. of the population of Peebles who were natives of Scotland, only 55·6 per cent. were born in Peebles, but 39·4 per cent. were born in other Counties of Scotland. Of every 100 of the inhabitants of Selkirk, 94·8 were natives of Scotland, but of these only 50·4 were born in Selkirk, while 44·4 were born in other Counties of Scotland.

The numbers, therefore, who seek a livelihood in some County different from that of their birth is extreme, and proves how intimately the populations of the several Counties of Scotland are intermingled and bound together in a common brotherhood. By consulting the Detailed Tables at p. 331 it will be seen that there is not one County but contains some persons who were born in every other County of Scotland; and, for any one who had leisure to make the investigation, it would be most interesting to ascertain whether a greater or a lesser proportion of interchange occurs in the Counties of Scotland or of England.

With these proportions for the several Counties may be compared the proportions for the Towns. This we have only attempted to show for the four principal Towns of Scotland in Table XXXVI.; but the numbers for the other Towns of Scotland will be found in the Abstract Table given at p. 332.

By Table XXXIX. it appears, that in Glasgow, only about 51 per cent. of the inhabitants were born in the County of Lanark, while 30 per cent. were born in other Counties of Scotland. In Edinburgh, 57½ per cent. of the inhabitants were born in the County of Edinburgh; nearly 31½ per cent. in other Counties of Scotland. In Dundee, 1½ per cent. of the inhabitants were born in the County of Forfar; while only about 21 per cent. were born in other Counties of Scotland. And in Aberdeen, nearly 76½ per cent. of the inhabitants were born in the County of Aberdeen; but only 19½ per cent. in other Counties of Scotland.

CONCLUSION.

This being the first time that the Census of Scotland has been taken under the directions of the Registrar-General of Scotland, and the whole Abstracts prepared in Scotland, a few remarks may be made regarding it. The work was entirely new to us. We had no previous experience as to the most economical or best modes of working out the results. An entirely new staff of clerks had to be trained to the work; and we could not procure any one to aid us who had any previous knowledge of the kind of work to be done.

Our labours and anxieties, however, were greatly lightened by the obliging courtesy and kindness of Major Graham, Registrar-General of England, and of James T. Hammick, Esq., Assistant Census Commissioner. To these gentlemen we owe a deep debt of gratitude, and thus publicly tender our thanks. They not only furnished us with copies of the various schedules used in the English Census Office for abstracting the required particulars, but also favoured us with the minute directions as to how the clerks in London worked out the results, and what system of checks was there adopted to test the accuracy of the Abstracts. Almost all the forms, therefore, used in the Scottish Office were the same as those employed in England; and if the published Abstracts do not in every minute particular correspond with those of England, there are good and weighty reasons for the difference.

The whole Abstracts, however, are published in such a form as to be strictly and easily comparable with the Census Tables of England; a slight difference in the arrangement in one instance (the ages), and the necessity for finding room for the additional information required by the Scottish Census Act in the other (General Population Tables), being the cause of the difference.

All former Censuses of the Population of Scotland were taken up for the Civil Counties and Civil Divisions or Parishes; but the Census of 1861 was taken up for the Registration Districts and Registration Counties. It was necessary, therefore, to publish in detail the particulars for both, and to be very minute with regard to the Registration Districts, seeing that the chief value of the Returns of the Ages, Conjugal Condition, and Occupations of the People depended on their being strictly comparable with the Returns of the Births, Deaths, and Marriages, which are all for the Registration Districts alone. Classifying the population, however, according to the Registration Districts, causes the population of the Civil Counties to differ somewhat from that of the Registration Counties; inasmuch as the Act directs, that where a Parish extends to more than one County, it shall be held, for the purposes of the Registration Act, to be within that County in which the Parish Church is situated.

It may be mentioned, that most of the Registration Districts are co-terminous with, and of the same name as, the Civil Parish of which they are composed. A copious index, however, which is appended to this volume, will enable any one to find with ease the information he may want regarding any Parish or Registration District; and under the series of Tables in Vol. I., headed 'Particulars of the Registration Districts,' will be found the names of each Parish, or parts of Parishes, of which the Registration District consists (if different in name), and the populations belonging to each such Parish or part of Parish.

We cannot close these remarks without suggesting that, when the next Census shall be taken, instead of the Enumeration Books being sent to the Sheriff Clerk to be revised by him, whereby a whole month is lost, they should be at once sent by the Registrar to the Head Office in Edinburgh, along with the other documents. In most cases the revision of the Enumeration Books by the Sheriff-Clerks was a mere form, and could be nothing more, seeing that the whole of the original Householders' Schedules, from which these books were prepared, were sent direct to the Head Office by the Registrars themselves.

We, therefore, venture to recommend that, when the next Census shall be taken, the moment the Registrar has copied the particulars from the Householders' Schedules into the Enumeration Books, and completed his Summaries, that Enumeration Books and all the original documents be sent at once direct to the Head Office in Edinburgh. The first duty of the staff of clerks in the Census Office would then be to compare every entry with the original schedules, a duty which would take no longer time than the examination which they had to make, and which would ensure a much greater amount of accuracy. As it was, these schedules had to be compared with the entries in the Enumeration Books in so very many instances that it would have been an actual saving of time to have compared the whole from the very first. The Sheriff-Clerk's examination of the books could be no check against fictitious entries, seeing he had not the original schedules to compare with the books, whereas the check at the Head Office would be perfect; and the payment of the Registrar might be delayed till he received a certificate from the Head Office that the number of entries in the Enumeration Book had been correctly made.

Lastly, we desire to record our sense of the efficient services rendered by the Clerks temporarily appointed to the Census Office by the Lords Commissioners of the Treasury; and in particular by Mr Walter Dingwall and Mr John Elmslie Sang, the two superintendents.

We have the honour to be,

Your most obedient and faithful servants,

W. P. DUNDAS,
Registrar-General.

JAMES STARK,
Assistant to the Registrar-General in the matter of the Census.

NOTE.—These Tables read in vertical columns show the number of wives at any given age, and the number of husbands of different ages who were married to them. Thus, in Scotland, of wives who were 20 years of age, 2 had husbands of 17 years; 9 had husbands of 18 years; 54 had husbands of 19 years; 251 had husbands of 20 years; and so on. When read in horizontal lines, they show the same facts for the husbands. Thus, of husbands 20 years of age, 1 had a wife aged 14 years; 6 had wives of 16 years; 19 had wives of 17 years; and so on.

RE.—The Occupations of the Inhabitants are given in much greater detail in the Table for all Scotland than in those for the Groups of Districts, or several Counties. In these other Tables, almost every Sub-Order, after exhausting the leading Occupations belonging to it, has an indefinite term, “others” for other occupations of a kindred nature, but in which so few engage, that it would serve no useful purpose to particularize them for each County. In the Table for all Scotland, however, these “others” are split up into their component parts, so as to give as full information as possible as to the occupations of the People.

These Tables, the Column headed “5” includes persons aged 5 and under 10 years; the Column headed “10,” those aged 10 and under 15 years; and so on.

NOTE.—The Occupations of the Inhabitants are given in much greater detail in the Table for all Scotland than in those for the Groups of Districts, or for the several Counties. In these other Tables, almost every Sub-Order, after exhausting the leading Occupations belonging to it, has an indefinite term, "others" meaning other occupations of a kindred nature, but in which so few engage, that it would serve no useful purpose to particularize them for each County. In this Detailed Table for all Scotland, however, these "others" are split up into their component parts, so as to give as full information as possible as to the occupations of the People.

In these Tables, the Column headed "5" includes persons aged 5 and under 10 years; the Column headed "10," those aged 10 and under 15 years; and so on.

- P. xxix.—Line 17 from bottom, for Fourth, read Fifth.
- P. xlviii.—Population of the county of Fife, for 154,730, read 154,770.
- P. lviii.—Several figures dropped from this Table at press, and were wrongly put in. Males in county of Forfar, for 93,077, read 63,077. Number of Rooms with Windows in Fife, for 93,375, read 93,371; in Kinross, for 5190, read 5590. Inhabited Houses in Kinross, for 1164, read 1644; and in Clackmannan, for 2296, read 2996.

- P. 35.—The lines referring to the Population of Arbroath have become transposed on this page. If those on page 34 be marked consecutively 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, the consecutive lines on page 35 should be marked 3, 4, 1, 2, 5. The numbers on each would then refer to the same Districts. The correct numbers are to be found under the particulars of the Registration Districts at page 134, No. 272.

- P. 63.—Small Isles, part of, add in side note “the remainder of Small Isles is in the county of Inverness.”

- P. 74.—From some incorrectness as to the Populations of parts of Glasgow, in 1851, which we were unable to correct in time for our 1st volume, we were obliged to publish the official numbers which appeared in the Census of 1851. Having been enabled to correct these, we reprint the corrected numbers for 1851; and in order to show distinctly the districts to which the corrected Populations refer, we reprint the Populations for 1861 also, all of which, however, were given correctly in our 1st volume.

RETURN (A.)—COMPARATIVE STATEMENT OF PAUPERISM.

APRIL 1863 and 1864.

Ordered, by The House of Commons, to be Printed,
20 July 1864.

MEMORANDUM.

AS TO THE ARRANGEMENT OF THE WEEKLY RETURNS OF PAUPERISM.

THE Returns of the Number of Paupers relieved on the last day of each Week, do not include the "Lunatic Paupers in Asylums and Licensed Houses;" nor, the number of "Vagrants" relieved. These classes form only a small portion of the entire pauperism of the country. According to the latest Returns (1st January 1863), the number contained in the two classes was 2·2 per cent. of the total pauperism.

The Pauper Lunatics in Asylums are not generally subject to variations in number, to the same degree, as the other classes of Paupers; and the number of Vagrants, relieved by the Unions throughout the country, has become too small to need a return so frequently as once a week. These considerations led to the exclusion of the two classes.

There are, at present, 14,886* parishes, inclusive of the Scilly Islands, in England and Wales, maintaining, or liable to maintain their own poor: returns of pauperism are received, weekly, in respect of 14,681 of that number; 205 parishes, incorporated under Gilbert's Act, or still under the provisions of the 43d Elizabeth, make no return of the number of paupers which they relieve.

The Returns are arranged under eleven divisions. The Union-Counties which fall under each are shown in the following view:

The following is a Tabular Statement of the Number of Unions and Parishes;

* Many places, not heretofore liable to maintain their own poor, are becoming parishes, under the operation of the Extra-parochial Places Act; to what extent this will ultimately increase the number of parishes in England and Wales, cannot at present be stated.

RETURN (A.)—COMPARATIVE STATEMENT OF PAUPERISM.

MAY 1863 and 1864.

Ordered, by The House of Commons, to be Printed,
20 July 1864.

MEMORANDUM.

AS TO THE ARRANGEMENT OF THE WEEKLY RETURNS OF PAUPERISM.

THE Returns of the Number of Paupers relieved on the last day of each Week, do not include the "Lunatic Paupers in Asylums and Licensed Houses;" nor, the number of "Vagrants" relieved. These classes form only a small portion of the entire pauperism of the country. According to the latest Returns (1st January 1863), the number contained in the two classes was 2·2 per cent. of the total pauperism.

The Pauper Lunatics in Asylums are not generally subject to variations in number, to the same degree, as the other classes of Paupers; and the number of Vagrants, relieved by the Unions throughout the country, has become too small to need a return so frequently as once a week. These considerations led to the exclusion of the two classes.

There are, at present, 14,886* parishes, inclusive of the Scilly Islands, in England and Wales, maintaining, or liable to maintain their own poor: returns of pauperism are received, weekly, in respect of 14,681 of that number; 205 parishes, incorporated under Gilbert's Act, or still under the provisions of the 43d Elizabeth, make no return of the number of paupers which they relieve.

The Returns are arranged under eleven divisions. The Union-Counties which fall under each are shown in the following view:

RETURN (A.)—COMPARATIVE STATEMENT OF PAUPERISM.

JUNE 1863 and 1864.

Ordered, by The House of Commons, to be Printed,
20 July 1864.

QUARTERLY STATEMENT AS TO PAUPERISM,
MIDSUMMER 1864.

(Paupers in Lunatic Asylums and Vagrants not included.)

THE present Return completes the Monthly Series for the Quarter ended at Midsummer 1864. The four following Tables are given in continuation of those prefixed to the Monthly publication for March last.

The Tables are—

- 1st. ENGLAND and WALES ; the pauperism in the consecutive weeks of the quarter.
- 2d. ————— ; the comparative pauperism of the quarter.
- 3d. NORTH MIDLAND, NORTH WESTERN, and YORK DIVISIONS ; the comparative pauperism of the quarter.
- 4th. THE METROPOLIS ; the comparative pauperism of the quarter.

1.—In the 1st Table, each week, compared with its predecessor, shows a decrease in the number of Paupers: 981,764 were the numbers relieved in the last week of March (Lady-day); but in the 4th week of June (Midsummer) they had fallen to 874,724, which is a decrease of 107,040, or 10·90 per cent. less at Midsummer than Lady-day.

2.—The next Table exhibits the comparative Pauperism during the Midsummer quarter of 1862, 1863, and 1864.

The Paupers in receipt of relief on the last day of the last week of June were—

The Paupers in 1864, as compared with those in 1863, have decreased 95,780, or 9·88 per cent.; but compared with 1862, the decrease is 17,809, or 2·00 per cent.

* * The Numbers given for 1863 and 1864 respectively, differ slightly from the Totals entered in the Returns for April, May, and June; this arises from the circumstance of Holbeck, Hunslet, and Bramley being excluded from Table II., as those places were not in the Returns for 1862.

3.—The third Table comprises the three divisions of England and Wales, in which the principal manufactures are carried on. Taking the returns of Paupers relieved on the last day of the last week of June, the numbers were—

In 1862	-	-	-	-	-	-	253,396
„ 1863	-	-	-	-	-	-	318,447
„ 1864	-	-	-	-	-	-	235,869

The decrease in 1864, compared with 1863, was 82,578, or 25·93 per cent. ; but in comparison with 1862 the decrease was 17,527, or 6·92 per cent.

17th August 1864.

FREDERICK PURDY,
Principal of the Statistical Department.

MEMORANDUM.

AS TO THE ARRANGEMENT OF THE WEEKLY RETURNS OF PAUPERISM.

THE Returns of the Number of Paupers relieved on the last day of each Week, do not include the "Lunatic Paupers in Asylums and Licensed Houses;" nor, the number of "Vagrants" relieved. These classes form only a small portion of the entire pauperism of the country. According to the latest Returns (1st January 1863), the number contained in the two classes was 2·2 per cent. of the total pauperism.

The Pauper Lunatics in Asylums are not generally subject to variations in number, to the same degree, as the other classes of Paupers; and the number of Vagrants, relieved by the Unions throughout the country, has become too small to need a return so frequently as once a week. These considerations led to the exclusion of the two classes.

There are, at present, 14,886* parishes, inclusive of the Scilly Islands, in England and Wales, maintaining, or liable to maintain their own poor: returns of pauperism are received, weekly, in respect of 14,681 of that number; 205 parishes, incorporated under Gilbert's Act, or still under the provisions of the 43d Elizabeth, make no return of the number of paupers which they relieve.

The Returns are arranged under eleven divisions. The Union-Counties which fall under each are shown in the following view:

I. THE METROPOLIS. 1.*Middlesex (part of). 2.*Surrey (part of). 3.*Kent (part of).	IV. EASTERN. 14. Essex. 15. Suffolk. 16. Norfolk.	VII. NORTH MIDLAND. 28. Leicester. 29. Rutland. 30. Lincoln. 31. Nottingham. 32. Derby.
II. SOUTH EASTERN. 2.*Surrey (part of). 3.*Kent (part of). 4. Sussex. 5. Southampton. 6. Berks.	V. SOUTH WESTERN. 17. Wilts. 18. Dorset. 19. Devon. 20. Cornwall. 21. Somerset.	VIII. NORTH WESTERN. 33. Chester. 34. Lancaster.
III. SOUTH MIDLAND. 1.*Middlesex (part of). 7. Hertford. 8. Buckingham. 9. Oxford. 10. Northampton. 11. Huntingdon. 12. Bedford. 13. Cambridge.	VI. WEST MIDLAND. 22. Gloucester. 23. Hereford. 24. WELSH. 42. Monmouth. 43. South Wales. 44. North Wales.

The following is a Tabular Statement of the Number of Unions and Parishes;

* Many places, not heretofore liable to maintain their own poor, are becoming parishes, under the operation of the Extra-parochial Places Act; to what extent this will ultimately increase the number of parishes in England and Wales, cannot at present be stated.

MEMORANDUM.

AS TO THE ARRANGEMENT OF THE WEEKLY RETURNS OF PAUPERISM.

THE Returns of the Number of Paupers relieved on the last day of each Week, do not include the "Lunatic Paupers in Asylums and Licensed Houses;" nor, the number of "Vagrants" relieved. These classes form only a small portion of the entire pauperism of the country. According to the latest Returns (1st January 1863), the number contained in the two classes was 2·2 per cent. of the total pauperism.

The Pauper Lunatics in Asylums are not generally subject to variations in number, to the same degree, as the other classes of Paupers; and the number of Vagrants, relieved by the Unions throughout the country, has become too small to need a return so frequently as once a week. These considerations led to the exclusion of the two classes.

There are, at present, 14,886* parishes, inclusive of the Scilly Islands, in England and Wales, maintaining, or liable to maintain their own poor: returns of pauperism are received, weekly, in respect of 14,681 of that number; 205 parishes, incorporated under Gilbert's Act, or still under the provisions of the 43d Elizabeth, make no return of the number of paupers which they relieve.

The Returns are arranged under eleven divisions. The Union-Counties which fall under each are shown in the following view:

I. THE METROPOLIS. 1.*Middlesex (part of). 2.*Surrey (part of). 3.*Kent (part of).	IV. EASTERN. 14. Essex. 15. Suffolk. 16. Norfolk.	VII. NORTH MIDLAND. 28. Leicester. 29. Rutland. 30. Lincoln. 31. Nottingham. 32. Derby.

The following is a Tabular Statement of the Number of Unions and Parishes;

* Many places, not heretofore liable to maintain their own poor, are becoming parishes, under the operation of the Extra-parochial Places Act; to what extent this will ultimately increase the number of parishes in England and Wales, cannot at present be stated.

RETURN (A.)—COMPARATIVE STATEMENT OF PAUPERISM.

AUGUST 1863 and 1864.

Ordered, by The House of Commons, to be Printed,
20 July 1864.

M E M O R A N D U M.

AS TO THE ARRANGEMENT OF THE WEEKLY RETURNS OF PAUPERISM.

THE Returns of the Number of Paupers relieved on the last day of each Week, do not include the "Lunatic Paupers in Asylums and Licensed Houses;" nor, the number of "Vagrants" relieved. These classes form only a small portion of the entire pauperism of the country. According to the latest Returns (1st January 1863), the number contained in the two classes was 2·2 per cent. of the total pauperism.

The Pauper Lunatics in Asylums are not generally subject to variations in number, to the same degree, as the other classes of Paupers; and the number of Vagrants, relieved by the Unions throughout the country, has become too small to need a return so frequently as once a week. These considerations led to the exclusion of the two classes.

There are, at present, 14,886* parishes, inclusive of the Scilly Islands, in England and Wales, maintaining, or liable to maintain their own poor: returns of pauperism are received, weekly, in respect of 14,681 of that number; 205 parishes, incorporated under Gilbert's Act, or still under the provisions of the 43d Elizabeth, make no return of the number of paupers which they relieve.

The Returns are arranged under eleven divisions. The Union-Counties which fall under each are shown in the following view:

 The Numbers given for 1863 and 1864 respectively, differ slightly from the Totals entered in the Returns for July, August, and September: this arises from the circumstance of Bramley, Holbeck, and Hunslet being excluded from Table II., as those places were not in the Returns for 1862.

3.—The third Table comprises the three divisions of England and Wales, in which the principal manufactures are carried on. Taking the returns of Paupers relieved on the last day of the last week of September, the numbers were—

In 1862	-	-	-	-	-	-	316,141
„ 1863	-	-	-	-	-	-	291,083
„ 1864	-	-	-	-	-	-	230,634

The decrease in 1864, compared with 1863, was 60,449, or 20·77 per cent.; but in comparison with 1862 there was a decrease of 85,507, or 27·05 per cent.

AS TO THE ARRANGEMENT OF THE WEEKLY RETURNS OF PAUPERISM.

THE Returns of the Number of Paupers relieved on the last day of each Week, do not include the "Lunatic Paupers in Asylums and Licensed Houses;" nor, the number of "Vagrants" relieved. These classes form only a small portion of the entire pauperism of the country. According to the latest Returns (1st January 1863), the number contained in the two classes was 2·2 per cent. of the total pauperism.

The Pauper Lunatics in Asylums are not generally subject to variations in number, to the same degree, as the other classes of Paupers; and the number of Vagrants, relieved by the Unions throughout the country, has become too small to need a return so frequently as once a week. These considerations led to the exclusion of the two classes.

There are, at present, 14,886* parishes, inclusive of the Scilly Islands, in England and Wales, maintaining, or liable to maintain their own poor: returns of pauperism are received, weekly, in respect of 14,681 of that number; 205 parishes, incorporated under Gilbert's Act, or still under the provisions of the 43d Elizabeth, make no return of the number of paupers which they relieve.

The Returns are arranged under eleven divisions. The Union-Counties which fall under each are shown in the following view:

I. THE METROPOLIS. 1.*Middlesex (part of). 2.*Surrey (part of). 3.*Kent (part of).	IV. EASTERN. 14. Essex. 15. Suffolk. 16. Norfolk.	VII. NORTH MIDLAND. 28. Leicester. 29. Rutland. 30. Lincoln. 31. Nottingham. 32. Derby.

The following is a Tabular Statement of the Number of Unions and Parishes;

* Many places, not heretofore liable to maintain their own poor, are becoming parishes, under the operation of the Extra-parochial Places Act; to what extent this will ultimately increase the number of parishes in England and Wales, cannot at present be stated.

RETURN (A.)—COMPARATIVE STATEMENT OF PAUPERISM.

OCTOBER 1863 and 1864.

Ordered, by The House of Commons, to be Printed,
20 July 1864.

M E M O R A N D U M.

AS TO THE ARRANGEMENT OF THE WEEKLY RETURNS OF PAUPERISM.

THE Returns of the Number of Paupers relieved on the last day of each Week, do not include the "Lunatic Paupers in Asylums and Licensed Houses;" nor, the number of "Vagrants" relieved. These classes form only a small portion of the entire pauperism of the country. According to the latest Returns (1st January 1863), the number contained in the two classes was 2·2 per cent. of the total pauperism.

The Pauper Lunatics in Asylums are not generally subject to variations in number, to the same degree, as the other classes of Paupers; and the number of Vagrants, relieved by the Unions throughout the country, has become too small to need a return so frequently as once a week. These considerations led to the exclusion of the two classes.

There are, at present, 14,886* parishes, inclusive of the Scilly Islands, in England and Wales, maintaining, or liable to maintain their own poor: returns of pauperism are received, weekly, in respect of 14,681 of that number; 205 parishes, incorporated under Gilbert's Act, or still under the provisions of the 43d Elizabeth, make no return of the number of paupers which they relieve.

The Returns are arranged under eleven divisions. The Union-Counties which fall under each are shown in the following view:

RETURN (A.)—COMPARATIVE STATEMENT OF PAUPERISM.

NOVEMBER 1863 and 1864.

Ordered, by The House of Commons, to be Printed,
20 July 1864.

M E M O R A N D U M.

AS TO THE ARRANGEMENT OF THE WEEKLY RETURNS OF PAUPERISM.

THE Returns of the Number of Paupers relieved on the last day of each Week, do not include the "Lunatic Paupers in Asylums and Licensed Houses;" nor, the number of "Vagrants" relieved. These classes form only a small portion of the entire pauperism of the country. According to the latest Returns (1st January 1863), the number contained in the two classes was 2·2 per cent. of the total pauperism.

The Pauper Lunatics in Asylums are not generally subject to variations in number, to the same degree, as the other classes of Paupers; and the number of Vagrants, relieved by the Unions throughout the country, has become too small to need a return so frequently as once a week. These considerations led to the exclusion of the two classes.

There are, at present, 14,886* parishes, inclusive of the Scilly Islands, in England and Wales, maintaining, or liable to maintain their own poor: returns of pauperism are received, weekly, in respect of 14,681 of that number; 205 parishes, incorporated under Gilbert's Act, or still under the provisions of the 43d Elizabeth, make no return of the number of paupers which they relieve.

The Returns are arranged under eleven divisions. The Union-Counties which fall under each are shown in the following view:

I. THE METROPOLIS. 1.*Middlesex (part of). 2.*Surrey (part of). 3.*Kent (part of).	IV. EASTERN. 14. Essex. 15. Suffolk. 16. Norfolk.	VII. NORTH MIDLAND. 28. Leicester. 29. Rutland. 30. Lincoln. 31. Nottingham. 32. Derby.

The following is a Tabular Statement of the Number of Unions and Parishes;

* Many places, not heretofore liable to maintain their own poor, are becoming parishes, under the operation of the Extra-parochial Places Act; to what extent this will ultimately increase the number of parishes in England and Wales, cannot at present be stated.

RETURN (A.)—COMPARATIVE STATEMENT OF PAUPERISM.

DECEMBER 1863 and 1864.

Ordered, by The House of Commons, to be Printed,
20 July 1864.

QUARTERLY STATEMENT AS TO PAUPERISM,
CHRISTMAS 1864.

(Paupers in Lunatic Asylums and Vagrants not included.)

THE Return now published completes this portion of the Series for the year 1864. The four following Tables are given in continuation of those prefixed to the Monthly publication for September last.

The Tables are—

- 1st. ENGLAND and WALES; the pauperism in the consecutive weeks of the quarter.
- 2d. —————; the comparative pauperism of the quarter.
- 3d. NORTH MIDLAND, NORTH WESTERN, and YORK DIVISIONS; the comparative pauperism of the quarter.
- 4th. THE METROPOLIS; the comparative pauperism of the quarter.

1.—In the 1st Table, each week is compared with the one immediately preceding it. The last week of the year is higher than the last week of the Michaelmas quarter by 63,674 Paupers.

2.—The next Table exhibits the comparative Pauperism during the Christmas quarters of 1862, 1863, and 1864.

The Paupers in receipt of relief on the last day of the last week of September were—

In 1862	-	-	-	-	-	1,105,234

The Paupers in 1864, as compared with those in 1863, have decreased 32,174 or 3·35 per cent.; but compared with 1862, the decrease was 178,142 or 16·12 per cent.

* * * The Numbers given for 1863 and 1864 respectively, differ slightly from the Totals entered in the Returns for October, November, and December: this arises from the circumstance of Bramley Union, Holbeck, and Hunslet being excluded from Table II., as those places were not in the Returns for 1862.

3.—The third Table comprises the three divisions of England and Wales, in which the principal manufactures are carried on. Taking the returns of Paupers relieved on the last day of the last week of December, the numbers were—

In 1862	-	-	-	-	-	-	423,062
„ 1863	-	-	-	-	-	-	289,105
„ 1864	-	-	-	-	-	-	258,350

The decrease in 1864, compared with 1863, was 30,755, or 10·64 per cent.; but in comparison with 1862 the decrease was 164,712, or 38·93 per cent.

MEMORANDUM.

AS TO THE ARRANGEMENT OF THE WEEKLY RETURNS OF PAUPERISM.

THE Returns of the Number of Paupers relieved on the last day of each Week, do not include the "Lunatic Paupers in Asylums and Licensed Houses;" nor, the number of "Vagrants" relieved. These classes form only a small portion of the entire pauperism of the country. According to the latest Returns (1st January 1864), the number contained in the two classes was 2·2 per cent. of the total pauperism.

The Pauper Lunatics in Asylums are not generally subject to variations in number, to the same degree, as the other classes of Paupers; and the number of Vagrants, relieved by the Unions throughout the country, has become too small to need a return so frequently as once a week. These considerations led to the exclusion of the two classes.

There are, at present, 14,886* parishes, inclusive of the Scilly Islands, in England and Wales, maintaining, or liable to maintain their own poor: returns of pauperism are received, weekly, in respect of 14,681 of that number; 205 parishes, incorporated under Gilbert's Act, or still under the provisions of the 43d Elizabeth, make no return of the number of paupers which they relieve.

The Returns are arranged under eleven divisions. The Union-Counties which fall under each are shown in the following view:

I. THE METROPOLIS. 1.*Middlesex (part of). 2.*Surrey (part of). 3.*Kent (part of).	IV. EASTERN. 14. Essex. 15. Suffolk. 16. Norfolk.	VII. NORTH MIDLAND. 28. Leicester. 29. Rutland. 30. Lincoln. 31. Nottingham. 32. Derby.

The following is a Tabular Statement of the Number of Unions and Parishes;

* Many places, not heretofore liable to maintain their own poor, are becoming parishes, under the operation of the Extra-parochial Places Act; to what extent this will ultimately increase the number of parishes in England and Wales, cannot at present be stated.

RETURN (A.)—COMPARATIVE STATEMENT OF PAUPERISM.

JANUARY 1864 and 1865.

Ordered, by The House of Commons, to be Printed,
20 July 1864.

MEMORANDUM.

AS TO THE ARRANGEMENT OF THE WEEKLY RETURNS OF PAUPERISM.

THE Returns of the Number of Paupers relieved on the last day of each Week, do not include the "Lunatic Paupers in Asylums and Licensed Houses;" nor, the number of "Vagrants" relieved. These classes form only a small portion of the entire pauperism of the country. According to the latest Returns (1st January 1864), the number contained in the two classes was 2·2 per cent. of the total pauperism.

The Pauper Lunatics in Asylums are not generally subject to variations in number, to the same degree, as the other classes of Paupers; and the number of Vagrants, relieved by the Unions throughout the country, has become too small to need a return so frequently as once a week. These considerations led to the exclusion of the two classes.

There are, at present, 14,886* parishes, inclusive of the Scilly Islands, in England and Wales, maintaining, or liable to maintain their own poor: returns of pauperism are received, weekly, in respect of 14,681 of that number; 205 parishes, incorporated under Gilbert's Act, or still under the provisions of the 43d Elizabeth, make no return of the number of paupers which they relieve.

The Returns are arranged under eleven divisions. The Union-Counties which fall under each are shown in the following view:

RETURN (A.)—COMPARATIVE STATEMENT OF PAUPERISM.

FEBRUARY 1864 and 1865.

Ordered, by The House of Commons, to be Printed,
20 July 1864.

MEMORANDUM.

AS TO THE ARRANGEMENT OF THE WEEKLY RETURNS OF PAUPERISM.

THE Returns of the Number of Paupers relieved on the last day of each Week, do not include the "Lunatic Paupers in Asylums and Licensed Houses;" nor, the number of "Vagrants" relieved. These classes form only a small portion of the entire pauperism of the country. According to the latest Returns (1st January 1864), the number contained in the two classes was 2·2 per cent. of the total pauperism.

The Pauper Lunatics in Asylums are not generally subject to variations in number, to the same degree, as the other classes of Paupers; and the number of Vagrants, relieved by the Unions throughout the country, has become too small to need a return so frequently as once a week. These considerations led to the exclusion of the two classes.

There are, at present, 14,886* parishes, inclusive of the Scilly Islands, in England and Wales, maintaining, or liable to maintain their own poor: returns of pauperism are received, weekly, in respect of 14,681 of that number; 205 parishes, incorporated under Gilbert's Act, or still under the provisions of the 43d Elizabeth, make no return of the number of paupers which they relieve.

The Returns are arranged under eleven divisions. The Union-Counties which fall under each are shown in the following view:

The following is a Tabular Statement of the Number of Unions and Parishes;

Ordered, by The House of Commons, to be Printed,
20 July 1864.

QUARTERLY STATEMENT AS TO PAUPERISM, LADY-DAY 1865.

(Paupers in Lunatic Asylums and Vagrants not included.)

THE Return now published completes this portion of the Series for the Parochial year 1864-65. The four following Tables are given in continuation of those prefixed to the Monthly publication for December last.

The Tables are—

- 1st. ENGLAND and WALES ; the pauperism in the consecutive weeks of the quarter.
- 2d. _____ ; the comparative pauperism of the quarter.
- 3d. NORTH MIDLAND, NORTH WESTERN, and YORK DIVISIONS ; the comparative pauperism of the quarter.
- 4th. THE METROPOLIS ; the comparative pauperism of the quarter.

1.—In the 1st Table, each week is compared with the one immediately preceding it. The last week of the Parochial year is higher than the last week of the Christmas quarter by 31,499 Paupers.

* * The Numbers given for 1864 and 1865 respectively, differ slightly from the Totals entered in the Returns for January, February, and March: this arises from the circumstance of Bramley being excluded from Table II., as that place was not in the Returns for 1863.

3.—The third Table comprises the three divisions of England and Wales, in which the principal manufactures are carried on. Taking the returns of Paupers relieved on the last day of the last week of March, the numbers were—

In 1863	-	-	-	-	-	-	378,778
„ 1864	-	-	-	-	-	-	289,645
„ 1865	-	-	-	-	-	-	259,675

The decrease in 1865, compared with 1864, was 29,970, or 10·35 per cent.; but in comparison with 1863 the decrease was 119,103, or 31·44 per cent.

MEMORANDUM.

AS TO THE ARRANGEMENT OF THE WEEKLY RETURNS OF PAUPERISM.

THE Returns of the Number of Paupers relieved on the last day of each Week, do not include the "Lunatic Paupers in Asylums and Licensed Houses;" nor, the number of "Vagrants" relieved. These classes form only a small portion of the entire pauperism of the country. According to the latest Returns (1st January 1864), the number contained in the two classes was 2·2 per cent. of the total pauperism.

The Pauper Lunatics in Asylums are not generally subject to variations in number, to the same degree, as the other classes of Paupers; and the number of Vagrants, relieved by the Unions throughout the country, has become too small to need a return so frequently as once a week. These considerations led to the exclusion of the two classes.

There are, at present, 14,886* parishes, inclusive of the Scilly Islands, in England and Wales, maintaining, or liable to maintain their own poor: returns of pauperism are received, weekly, in respect of 14,681 of that number; 205 parishes, incorporated under Gilbert's Act, or still under the provisions of the 43d Elizabeth, make no return of the number of paupers which they relieve.

The Returns are arranged under eleven divisions. The Union-Counties which fall under each are shown in the following view:

Ordered, by The House of Commons, to be Printed,
20 July 1864.

No. 1.—REMARKS ON THE RETURNS OF PAUPERISM, 1ST JULY 1864.

THE present Publication contains the Tabulated Returns of 655 Unions and Single Parishes under Boards of Guardians; but in respect of two places, namely, the Incorporation of Shrewsbury and that of Montgomery and Pool, the Returns are limited to the number of In-door Paupers relieved.

Pauperism
1st July.

The aggregate population of the 655 places by the Census of 1861, is 19,885,921; and the total number of Paupers on the 1st July 1864, is—

In-door.	Out-door.	TOTAL.
120,086	791,791	911,877

This gives the proportion of Paupers as 1 in 22; or 4·6 per cent. on the actual population.

Comparison of 1st July 1864
and 1863.

Comparing the numbers returned on the 1st July 1864 with those at the same date in 1863, the figures stand thus:—

No. 2.—REMARKS on the INDUSTRIAL STATISTICS of 1861.

THE publication of the Occupations Census of 1861 has rendered it necessary to effect a change both in the form and the matter of the "Industrial Statistics," which, since 1857, has formed part of the series of Papers periodically laid before Parliament by the Poor Law Board under the title of "Poor Rates and Pauperism."

Industrial Statistics.

An explanation of the classes under which the occupations of the people in 1851 were arranged has prefaced the previous numbers of this Series, and therefore need not be repeated. The classification of 1861 differs in several important particulars from that previously employed by the Commissioners of the Census. The new system can be best explained in the words of its author,* premising that, in Dr. Farr's Report on the "Classification of Producers," the lowest groups, termed "Sub-Orders," are marked with a small Arabic numeral (2); that, these Sub-Orders are gathered up into "Orders," marked by a larger numeral (2); and, that, the Orders are collected into "Classes," marked by a Roman figure (II.)

New classification of the Occupations of the People.

CLASSIFICATION OF PRODUCERS.

I.—PROFESSIONAL CLASS.

(Orders 1, 2, 3). Andrici.

"This great class includes those persons who are rendering direct service to mankind, and satisfying their intellectual, moral, and devotional wants.

"The three first Orders consist of civil servants, national or local; the army and navy; the learned professions, with their immediate subordinates; literary and scientific men, as well as artists in the widest sense.

"The first Order (1; 1) includes the members of the Government, and the civil service; (2) the police and other local officers; and (3) the East India and Colonial Service.

"The army (2; 1) and navy (2; 2) are in the service of the Government, and are intimately connected with it in all states. The clergy in the Established Church, as well as the lawyers and the courts of justice, are in official subordination to the sovereign; but the great majority of the members of these professions are neither nominated nor paid by the Crown. Like the medical, the literary, and the scientific professions, which were at one time included in the Church, and were supported by their livings, the clergy and lawyers assert their independence, and are, therefore, made separate Sub-orders. So are authors, artists, musicians, actors, teachers, and scientific men. Nearly all the members of the class are paid directly for their services; and these services have no intermediary, being rarely fixed in any commodity. The pay varies in each Order, and it is either proportional to the time (salary, wages, pay), the job (fees), or the quality and quantity of work done (piecework)."

ORDER 1. Persons engaged in the General or Local Government of the Country.

" 2. Persons engaged in the Defence of the Country.

" 3. Persons engaged in the Learned Professions or engaged in Literature, Art, and Science (with their immediate Subordinates).

II.—DOMESTIC CLASS.

(Orders 4 and 5). Oikici.

"The persons in this Class are all employed, if they are employed at all, in houses. Some supply simply service, others with it supply board and lodging (Order 5). They are paid wages (servants), or they are paid for the board and lodging and attendance which they supply. The publicans and beersellers are so much associated and so often confounded with hotel and inn keepers that they are retained in the same Order; although the Order dealing in 'drinks' may claim them. The wife and grown-up children (Order 4) perform at home for the bulk of the population the same duties as the persons in Order 5; but they are not paid directly in money for their services, as they form a part of the natural family; consequently they are distinguished in a separate Order. The very young children properly belong to the non-productive class, and they may there constitute a section; scholars and other children are learning the the elements of their future occupations; but until that occupation is determined they remain in the same Order as their mothers."

ORDER 4. Persons engaged in the Domestic Offices or Duties of Wives, Mothers, Mistresses of Families, Children, Relatives (not otherwise returned).

" 5. Persons engaged in entertaining, and performing Personal Offices for Man.

III.—COMMERCIAL CLASS.

(Orders 6 and 7). Agorici.

"The merchant buys any article like tea, abroad, transports it to England, and there sells it. He performs the like operation at home. But as a merchant he effects no change in any of the commodities in which he deals. He buys and sells, and is paid for his services by a varying but rated profit on the goods.

"The carrying order convey commodities, passengers, and messages by land or water, from one place to another. They also warehouse goods. They are paid for their services in fares, freight, and charges which bear some proportion to the weight, bulk, and other properties of the goods. They are all in Order 7, and are closely related to the Order preceding; hence the two Orders (6-7) together may be called the Commercial Class."

ORDER 6. Persons who buy or sell, keep or lend Money, Houses, or Goods of various Kinds.

" 7. Persons engaged in the Conveyance of Men, Animals, Goods, and Messages.

IV.—AGRICULTURAL CLASS.

(Orders 8 and 9). Georgici.

"We now come to a great class which is employed in producing grain, fruit, grass, animals, and other products from the soil. They may be called Growers; for their products grow and are obtained from the living kingdoms of nature. The heads of the Class are paid, not directly for their services, but indirectly in the price of the products which they sell in the market or elsewhere. Thus the price of a quarter of wheat includes the pay of the services of all the persons employed in its production as well as the cost of the tools and machines, including the land, by means of which it is produced and brought to market. Agricultural servants and labourers are paid in wages which the farmers advance. The persons engaged in gardens or woods are in separate Sub-orders.

"The men in Order 9 are employed in catching, training, or dealing in living animals of various kinds. They are the representatives of the hunters of the early stages of civilization, and may be considered an appendage to the previous pastoral and agricultural class, so forming Class IV., which thus includes hunting tribes, the pastoral clans and the agricultural people of the world."

ORDER 8. Persons possessing or working the Land, and engaged in growing Grain, Fruits, Grasses, Animals, and other Products.

" 9. Persons engaged about Animals.

V.—INDUSTRIAL CLASS.

(Orders 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, and 15). Technici.

"This is the Class of makers or artisans. They deal in matter that is either no longer living, or that never lived. They alter the form, texture, or composition of the materials in which they work, so as to produce a great variety of goods, instruments, and machines. Their pay and profits are charged in the price of commodities; the wages of the workmen being advanced by their masters.

"This Class is grouped according to the materials, distinguishing those derived from the three kingdoms of nature.

"The first Order (10.) of the Class includes artisans, making products of various materials, derived from the three kingdoms such as coaches, ships, workshops, factories, houses, and the furniture or other contents.

"Then follow the persons engaged in the textile fabrics (Order 11.) Wool, silk, cotton, flax, and hemp, are durable and divisible; their manufacture admits of the sub-division of labour and the application of machinery. The workers in the materials are the essentially manufacturing class. In a Sub-order (4.) are the artisans who convert the manufactured fabrics and some other matters, into dress.

"Human food, drinks, and stimulants, derived from the animal and vegetable kingdoms, occupy a distinct Order (12) sub-divided into three Sub-orders.

"Then follow (13.) the persons chiefly or exclusively working and dealing in other animal substances than food (14.) those working and dealing in vegetable substances, and (15.) those working and dealing chiefly in minerals and metals. The first Sub-order of the latter Order (15.) includes the mining population of every kind; the other thirteen Sub-orders include the chief workers in the metals and minerals, beginning with coal, and ending with steel."

ORDER 10. Persons engaged in Art and Mechanic Production in which Matters of various Kinds are employed in combination.

" 11. Persons working and dealing in the Textile Fabrics and in Dress.

" 12. Persons working and dealing in Food and Drinks.

" 13. Persons working and dealing in Animal Substances.

" 14. Persons working and dealing in Vegetable Substances.

" 15. Persons working and dealing in Minerals.

VI.—INDEFINITE AND NON-PRODUCTIVE CLASS.

(Orders 16, 17, and 18).

"The last Class includes the numbers returned in a various way, so as to scarcely admit of classification among either professional, the domestic, the commercial, the agricultural, or the industrial classes.

"It embraces the totally distinct Orders of general labour (16.), persons of property returned as of no occupation (17.), persons supported by the community (18.) Many of the persons in Orders 16 and 17 properly belong to the other classes.

ORDER 16. Labourers and others—Branch of Labour undefined.

" 17. Persons of Rank or Property not returned under any Office or Occupation.

" 18. Persons supported by the Community, and of no specified Occupation.

Other Persons of no stated Occupation or Condition.

The relation of the new to the old classification is briefly exhibited by the following Synoptical Table :—

In considering the occupations of the people in connexion with pauperism, the first class has been rejected, because, although it participates in the general welfare of the country, it experiences the vicissitudes of trade less directly than the others ; and the last class, because it is indefinite, and therefore but little adapted to form any useful term of comparison within the field of pauper statistics. The ratio per cent. of persons aged 20 years and upwards ascribable to each of the six classes of occupations for all the Unions has, in the present instance, been computed for every Union by the Commissioners of the Census. The ratios of the four selected classes are printed opposite to the respective Unions in the following pages ; at the same time, the special designation of the chief industries pursued in the various Unions according to the Census of 1851, has been retained in the place it originally filled in these Returns.

No. 2.—REMARKS on the INDUSTRIAL STATISTICS of 1861.

THE publication of the Occupations Census of 1861 has rendered it necessary to effect a change both in the form and the matter of the "Industrial Statistics," which, since 1857, has formed part of the series of Papers periodically laid before Parliament by the Poor Law Board under the title of "Poor Rates and Pauperism."

Industrial Statistics.

An explanation of the classes under which the occupations of the people in 1851 were arranged has prefaced the previous numbers of this Series, and therefore need not be repeated. The classification of 1861 differs in several important particulars from that previously employed by the Commissioners of the Census. The new system can be best explained in the words of its author,* premising that, in Dr. Farr's Report on the "Classification of Producers," the lowest groups, termed "Sub-Orders," are marked with a small Arabic numeral (2); that, these Sub-Orders are gathered up into "Orders," marked by a larger numeral (2); and, that, the Orders are collected into "Classes," marked by a Roman figure (II.)

New classification
of the Occupations
of the People.

CLASSIFICATION OF PRODUCERS.

I.—PROFESSIONAL CLASS.

(Orders 1, 2, 3). Andrici.

This great class includes those persons who are rendering service to mankind, and satisfying their intellectual, moral, and devotional wants.

The three first Orders consist of civil servants, national or local; the army and navy; the learned professions, with their immediate subordinates; literary and scientific men, as well as artists in the widest sense.

The first Order (1; 1) includes the members of the Government, and the civil service; (2) the police and other local officers; and (3) the East India and Colonial Service.

The army (2; 1) and navy (2; 2) are in the service of the Government, and are intimately connected with it in all states. The clergy in the Established Church, as well as the lawyers in the courts of justice, are in official subordination to the sovereign; but the great majority of the members of these professions are neither nominated nor paid by the Crown. Like medical, the literary, and the scientific professions, which were at one time included in the Church, and were supported by their livings, the clergy and lawyers assert their independence, and are, therefore, made separate Sub-orders. So are authors, artists, musicians, actors, teachers, and scientific men. Nearly all the members of the class are paid directly for their services; these services have no intermediary, being rarely fixed in price as a commodity. The pay varies in each Order, and it is either proportional to the time (salary, wages, pay), the job (fees), or the quality and quantity of work done (piecework)."

ORDER 1. Persons engaged in the General or Local Government of the Country.

„ 2. Persons engaged in the Defence of the Country.

„ 3. Persons engaged in the Learned Professions or engaged in Literature, Art, and Science (with their immediate Subordinates).

II.—DOMESTIC CLASS.

(Orders 4 and 5). Oikici.

"The persons in this Class are all employed, if they are employed at all, in houses. Some supply simply service, others with it supply board and lodging (Order 5). They are paid wages (servants), or they are paid for the board and lodging and attendance which they supply. The publicans and beersellers are so much associated and so often confounded with hotel and inn keepers that they are retained in the same Order; although the Order dealing in 'drinks' may claim them. The wife and grown-up children (Order 4) perform at home for the bulk of the population the same duties as the persons in Order 5; but they are not paid directly in money for their services, as they form a part of the natural family; consequently they are distinguished in a separate Order. The very young children properly belong to the non-productive class, and they may there constitute a section; scholars and other children are learning the the elements of their future occupations; but until that occupation is determined they remain in the same Order as their mothers."

ORDER 4. Persons engaged in the Domestic Offices or Duties of Wives, Mothers, Mistresses of Families, Children, Relatives (not otherwise returned).

" 5. Persons engaged in entertaining, and performing Personal Offices for Man.

III.—COMMERCIAL CLASS.

(Orders 6 and 7). Agorici.

"The merchant buys any article like tea, abroad, transports it to England, and there sells it. He performs the like operation at home. But as a merchant he effects no change in any of the commodities in which he deals. He buys and sells, and is paid for his services by a varying but rated profit on the goods.

"The carrying order convey commodities, passengers, and messages by land or water, from one place to another. They also warehouse goods. They are paid for their services in fares, freight, and charges which bear some proportion to the weight, bulk, and other properties of the goods. They are all in Order 7, and are closely related to the Order preceding; hence the two Orders (6-7) together may be called the Commercial Class."

ORDER 6. Persons who buy or sell, keep or lend Money, Houses, or Goods of various Kinds.

" 7. Persons engaged in the Conveyance of Men, Animals, Goods, and Messages.

IV.—AGRICULTURAL CLASS.

(Orders 8 and 9). Georgici.

"We now come to a great class which is employed in producing grain, fruit, grass, animals, and other products from the soil. They may be called Growers; for their products grow and are obtained from the living kingdoms of nature. The heads of the Class are paid, not directly for their services, but indirectly in the price of the products which they sell in the market or elsewhere. Thus the price of a quarter of wheat includes the pay of the services of all the persons employed in its production as well as the cost of the tools and machines, including the land, by means of which it is produced and brought to market. Agricultural servants and labourers are paid in wages which the farmers advance. The persons engaged in gardens or woods are in separate Sub-orders.

"The men in Order 9 are employed in catching, training, or dealing in living animals of various kinds. They are the representatives of the hunters of the early stages of civilization, and may be considered an appendage to the previous pastoral and agricultural class, so forming Class IV., which thus includes hunting tribes, the pastoral clans and the agricultural people of the world."

ORDER 8. Persons possessing or working the Land, and engaged in growing Grain, Fruits, Grasses, Animals, and other Products.

" 9. Persons engaged about Animals.

V.—INDUSTRIAL CLASS.

(Orders 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, and 15). Technici.

"This is the Class of makers or artisans. They deal in matter that is either no longer living, or that never lived. They alter the form, texture, or composition of the materials in which they work, so as to produce a great variety of goods, instruments, and machines. Their pay and profits are charged in the price of commodities; the wages of the workmen being advanced by their masters.

"This Class is grouped according to the materials, distinguishing those derived from the three kingdoms of nature.

"The first Order (10.) of the Class includes artisans, making products of various materials, derived from the three kingdoms such as coaches, ships, workshops, factories, houses, and the furniture or other contents.

"Then follow the persons engaged in the textile fabrics (Order 11.) Wool, silk, cotton, flax, and hemp, are durable and divisible; their manufacture admits of the sub-division of labour and the application of machinery. The workers in these materials are the essentially manufacturing class. In a Sub-order (4.) are the artisans who convert the manufactured fabrics and some other matters, into dress.

"Human food, drinks, and stimulants, derived from the animal and vegetable kingdoms, occupy a distinct Order (12.) sub-divided into three Sub-orders.

"Then follow (13.) the persons chiefly or exclusively working and dealing in other animal substances than food (14.) those working and dealing in vegetable substances, and (15.) those working and dealing chiefly in minerals and metals. The first Sub-order of the latter Order (15.) includes the mining population of every kind; the other thirteen Sub-orders include the chief workers in the metals and minerals, beginning with coal, and ending with steel."

ORDER 10. Persons engaged in Art and Mechanic Production in which Matters of various Kinds are employed in combination.

" 11. Persons working and dealing in the Textile Fabrics and in Dress.

" 12. Persons working and dealing in Food and Drinks.

" 13. Persons working and dealing in Animal Substances.

" 14. Persons working and dealing in Vegetable Substances.

" 15. Persons working and dealing in Minerals.

VI.—INDEFINITE AND NON-PRODUCTIVE CLASS.

(Orders 16, 17, and 18).

"The last Class includes the numbers returned in a vague way, so as to scarcely admit of classification among either the professional, the domestic, the commercial, the agricultural, or the industrial classes.

"It embraces the totally distinct Orders of general labour (16.), persons of property returned as of no occupation (17.), persons supported by the community (18.) Many of the persons in Orders 16 and 17 properly belong to the other classes.

ORDER 16. Labourers and others—Branch of Labour undefined.

" 17. Persons of Rank or Property not returned under any Office or Occupation.

" 18. Persons supported by the Community, and of no specified Occupation.

Other Persons of no stated Occupation or Condition.

The relation of the new to the old classification is briefly exhibited by the following Synoptical Table :—

	ORDER XVI.	Nearly identical with	{	CLASS XV.	Labourers and others—Branch of Labour undefined.
	ORDER XVII.	Nearly identical with	{	CLASS XVI.	Persons of RANK or PROPERTY not returned under any Office or Occupation.
	ORDER XVIII.	Nearly identical with	{	CLASS XVII.	Persons supported by the community, and of NO SPECIFIED OCCUPATION.

In considering the occupations of the people in connexion with pauperism, the first class has been rejected, because, although it participates in the general welfare of the country, it experiences the vicissitudes of trade less directly than the others; and the last class, because it is indefinite, and therefore but little adapted to form any useful term of comparison within the field of pauper statistics. The ratio per cent. of persons aged 20 years and upwards ascribable to each of the six classes of occupations for all the Unions has, in the present instance, been computed for every Union by the Commissioners of the Census. The ratios of the four selected classes are printed opposite to the respective Unions in the following pages; at the same time, the special designation of the chief industries pursued in the various Unions according to the Census of 1851, has been retained in the place it originally filled in these Returns.

Ratio of Occupations.

The absolute, as well as the proportional numbers of the adult population under the Six Industrial Classes, are shown in the subjoined Table for each Division and for each Union-County, as published in the third volume of the Census of England and Wales.

(Mr. Villiers.)

Ordered, by The House of Commons, to be Printed,

No. 1.—REMARKS ON THE RETURNS OF IN AND OUT-DOOR RELIEF.

HALF YEAR ENDED MICHAELMAS, 1864.

Number of Unions returned.

THE Returns of In-maintenance and Out-door Relief, printed at pp. 16-59, have been received from 655 Unions and single Parishes under Boards of Guardians; but two of that number, namely, Shrewsbury, and Montgomery and Pool, give the cost of In-maintenance only.

The amount expended in the 655 Unions and Parishes during the half-year was, for—

In-Maintenance.	Out-door Relief.	TOTAL.
£.	£.	£.
511,332	1,592,623	2,103,955

The population of the places referred to was 19,885,921, according to the Census of 1861; the entire population of England and Wales being 20,066,224.

Irremovable Paupers.

The sum expended for Irremovable Paupers, can be shown for 612 Unions and single Parishes only; as the other places keep no separate account of their disbursements in respect of this class of poor.

The 612 Unions and Parishes contain about 17/20ths of the entire population of the Kingdom; the sum expended in them for relief during the half-year was, in respect of—

	In-Maintenance.	Out-door Relief.	TOTAL.
	£.	£.	£.
Irremovable Paupers - - - - -	102,615	542,375	644,990
Other Paupers - - - - -	276,064	926,610	1,202,674
TOTAL - - - £.	378,679	1,468,985	1,847,664

The cost of relief to the Irremovable Paupers was 34·9 per cent. of the cost of relief to both classes during the half-year; but during the half-year ended at Michaelmas 1863, the ratio was 36·3 per cent., so that the proportion has fallen by 1·4 per cent., comparing the former period with the latter.

The

The following Table is a comparative statement of the expenditure for the half-years ended at Michaelmas 1863 and 1864, in 655 unions and single parishes :

Comparing the expenditure for In-maintenance and Out-door Relief of the Michaelmas half-year, 1864, with that of 1863, it will be found there was a decrease of 162,176 l., or 7·2 per cent.; and it will be seen, by the next Table, that there was a decrease of expense in every Division except the first.

Poor Law Board, }
3 July 1865. }

FREDERICK PURDY,
Principal of the Statistical Department.

No. 2.—REMARKS on the INDUSTRIAL STATISTICS of 1861.

THE publication of the Occupations Census of 1861 has rendered it necessary to effect a change both in the form and the matter of the "Industrial Statistics," which, since 1857, has formed part of the series of Papers periodically laid before Parliament by the Poor Law Board under the title of "Poor Rates and Pauperism."

Industrial Statistics.

An explanation of the classes under which the occupations of the people in 1851 were arranged has prefaced the previous numbers of this Series, and therefore need not be repeated. The classification of 1861 differs in several important particulars from that previously employed by the Commissioners of the Census. The new system can be best explained in the words of its author,* premising that, in Dr. Farr's Report on the "Classification of Producers," the lowest groups, termed "Sub-Orders," are marked with a small Arabic numeral (2); that, these Sub-Orders are gathered up into "Orders," marked by a larger numeral (2); and, that, the Orders are collected into "Classes," marked by a Roman figure (II.)

New classification
of the Occupations
of the People.

CLASSIFICATION OF PRODUCERS.

I.—PROFESSIONAL CLASS.

(Orders 1, 2, 3). Andrici.

"This great class includes those persons who are rendering direct service to mankind, and satisfying their intellectual, moral, and devotional wants.

"The three first Orders consist of civil servants, national or local; the army and navy; the learned professions, with their immediate subordinates; literary and scientific men, as well as artists in the widest sense.

"The first Order (1; 1) includes the members of the Government, and the civil service; (2) the police and other local officers; and (3) the East India and Colonial Service.

"The army (2; 1) and navy (2; 2) are in the service of the Government, and are intimately connected with it in all states. The clergy in the Established Church, as well as the lawyers in the courts of justice, are in official subordination to the sovereign; but the great majority of the members of these professions are neither nominated nor paid by the Crown. Like the medical, the literary, and the scientific professions, which were at one time included in the Church, and were supported by its livings, the clergy and lawyers assert their independence, and are, therefore, made separate Sub-orders. So are authors, artists, musicians, actors, teachers, and scientific men. Nearly all the members of the class are paid directly for their services; and these services have no intermediary, being rarely fixed in any commodity. The pay varies in each Order, and it is either proportional to the time (salary, wages, pay), the job (fees), or the quality and quantity of work done (piecework)."

ORDER 1. Persons engaged in the General or Local Government of the Country.

„ 2. Persons engaged in the Defence of the Country.

„ 3. Persons engaged in the Learned Professions or engaged in Literature, Art, and Science (with their immediate Subordinates).

II.—DOMESTIC CLASS.

(Orders 4 and 5). Oikici.

"The persons in this Class are all employed, if they are employed at all, in houses. Some supply simply service, others with it supply board and lodging (Order 5). They are paid wages (servants), or they are paid for the board and lodging and attendance which they supply. The publicans and beersellers are so much associated and so often confounded with hotel and inn keepers that they are retained in the same Order; although the Order dealing in 'drinks' may claim them. The wife and grown-up children (Order 4) perform at home for the bulk of the population the same duties as the persons in Order 5; but they are not paid directly in money for their services, as they form a part of the natural family; consequently they are distinguished in a separate Order. The very young children properly belong to the non-productive class, and they may there constitute a section; scholars and other children are learning the the elements of their future occupations; but until that occupation is determined they remain in the same Order as their mothers."

ORDER 4. Persons engaged in the Domestic Offices or Duties of Wives, Mothers, Mistresses of Families, Children, Relatives (not otherwise returned).

" 5. Persons engaged in entertaining, and performing Personal Offices for Man.

III.—COMMERCIAL CLASS.

(Orders 6 and 7). Agorici.

"The merchant buys any article like tea, abroad, transports it to England, and there sells it. He performs the like operation at home. But as a merchant he effects no change in any of the commodities in which he deals. He buys and sells, and is paid for his services by a varying but rated profit on the goods.

"The carrying order convey commodities, passengers, and messages by land or water, from one place to another. They also warehouse goods. They are paid for their services in fares, freight, and charges which bear some proportion to the weight, bulk, and other properties of the goods. They are all in Order 7, and are closely related to the Order preceding; hence the two Orders (6-7) together may be called the Commercial Class."

ORDER 6. Persons who buy or sell, keep or lend Money, Houses, or Goods of various Kinds.

" 7. Persons engaged in the Conveyance of Men, Animals, Goods, and Messages.

IV.—AGRICULTURAL CLASS.

(Orders 8 and 9). Georgici.

"We now come to a great class which is employed in producing grain, fruit, grass, animals, and other products from the soil. They may be called Growers; for their products grow and are obtained from the living kingdoms of nature. The heads of the Class are paid, not directly for their services, but indirectly in the price of the products which they sell in the market or elsewhere. Thus the price of a quarter of wheat includes the pay of the services of all the persons employed in its production as well as the cost of the tools and machines, including the land, by means of which it is produced and brought to market. Agricultural servants and labourers are paid in wages which the farmers advance. The persons engaged in gardens or woods are in separate Sub-orders.

"The men in Order 9 are employed in catching, training, or dealing in living animals of various kinds. They are the representatives of the hunters of the early stages of civilization, and may be considered an appendage to the previous pastoral and agricultural class, so forming Class IV., which thus includes hunting tribes, the pastoral clans and the agricultural people of the world."

ORDER 8. Persons possessing or working the Land, and engaged in growing Grain, Fruits, Grasses, Animals, and other Products.

" 9. Persons engaged about Animals.

V.—INDUSTRIAL CLASS.

(Orders 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, and 15). Technici.

"This is the Class of makers or artisans. They deal with matter that is either no longer living, or that never lived. They alter the form, texture, or composition of the materials in which they work, so as to produce a great variety of goods, instruments, and machines. Their pay and profits are charged in the price of commodities; the wages of the workmen being advanced by their masters.

"This Class is grouped according to the materials, distinguishing those derived from the three kingdoms of nature.

"The first Order (10.) of the Class includes artisans, makers of products of various materials, derived from the three kingdoms, such as coaches, ships, workshops, factories, houses, and furniture or other contents.

"Then follow the persons engaged in the textile fabrics (Order 11.) Wool, silk, cotton, flax, and hemp, are durable and divisible; their manufacture admits of the subdivision of labour and the application of machinery. The workers in these materials are the essentially manufacturing class. In the second order (4.) are the artisans who convert the manufactured fabrics and some other matters, into dress.

"Human food, drinks, and stimulants, derived from the animal and vegetable kingdoms, occupy a distinct Order (12.) sub-divided into three Sub-orders.

"Then follow (13.) the persons chiefly or exclusively working and dealing in other animal substances than food (14.) those working and dealing in vegetable substances, and (15.) those working and dealing chiefly in minerals and metals. The first Sub-order of the latter Order (15.) includes the makers of the population of every kind; the other thirteen Sub-orders include the chief workers in the metals and minerals, beginning with coal, and ending with steel."

ORDER 10. Persons engaged in Art and Mechanic Productions in which Matters of various Kinds are employed in combination.

" 11. Persons working and dealing in the Textile Fabrics and in Dress.

" 12. Persons working and dealing in Food and Drink.

" 13. Persons working and dealing in Animal Substances.

" 14. Persons working and dealing in Vegetable Substances.

" 15. Persons working and dealing in Minerals.

VI.—INDEFINITE AND NON-PRODUCTIVE CLASS.

(Orders 16, 17, and 18).

"The last Class includes the numbers returned in a way, so as to scarcely admit of classification among either the professional, the domestic, the commercial, the agricultural, or the industrial classes.

"It embraces the totally distinct Orders of general labour (16.), persons of property returned as of no occupation (17.) persons supported by the community (18.) Many of the persons in Orders 16 and 17 properly belong to the other classes.

ORDER 16. Labourers and others—Branch of Labour undesignated.

" 17. Persons of Rank or Property not returned as of any Office or Occupation.

" 18. Persons supported by the Community, and of no specified Occupation.

Other Persons of no stated Occupation or Condition.

The relation of the new to the old classification is briefly exhibited by the following Synoptical Table:—

	{		-	CLASS XVI. Persons of RANK or PROPERTY not returned under any Office or Occupation.
	{		-	CLASS XVII. Persons supported by the community, and of no SPECIFIED OCCUPATION.

* In considering the occupations of the people in connexion with pauperism, the first class has been rejected, because, although it participates in the general welfare of the country, it experiences the vicissitudes of trade less directly than the others; and the last class, because it is indefinite, and therefore but little adapted to form any useful term of comparison within the field of pauper statistics. The ratio per cent. of persons aged 20 years and upwards ascribable to each of the six classes of occupations for all the Unions has, in the present instance, been computed for every Union by the Commissioners of the Census. The ratios of the four selected classes are printed opposite to the respective Unions in the following pages; at the same time, the special designation of the chief industries pursued in the various Unions according to the Census of 1851, has been retained in the place it originally filled in these Returns.

(Mr. Villiers.)

Ordered, by The House of Commons, to be Printed,

No. 1.—REMARKS ON THE RETURNS OF IN AND OUT-DOOR RELIEF.

HALF YEAR ENDED LADY-DAY, 1865.

Number of Unions returned.

THE Returns of In-maintenance and Out-door Relief, printed at pp. 16-59, have been received from 655 Unions and single Parishes under Boards of Guardians; but two of that number, namely, Shrewsbury, and Montgomery and Pool, give the cost of In-maintenance only.

The amount expended in the 655 Unions and Parishes during the half-year was, for—

In-Maintenance.	Out-door Relief.	TOTAL.
£.	£.	£.
589,492	1,630,366	2,219,858

The population of the places referred to was 19,886,104, according to the Census of 1861; the entire population of England and Wales being 20,066,224.

Irremovable Paupers.

The sum expended for Irremovable Paupers, can be shown for 613 Unions and single Parishes only; as the other places keep no separate account of their disbursements in respect of this class of poor.

The 613 Unions and Parishes contain about 17/20ths of the entire population of the Kingdom; the sum expended in them for relief during the half-year was, in respect of—

	£.	£.	£.
Irremovable Paupers - - - - -	126,402	575,257	701,659

TOTAL - - - £.	436,165	1,501,908	1,938,073

The cost of relief to the Irremovable Paupers was 36·2 per cent. of the cost of relief to both classes during the half-year; but during the half-year ended at Lady-day 1864, the ratio was 36·1 per cent., so that the proportion has risen by 0·1 per cent., comparing the former period with the latter.

The

Comparing the expenditure for In-maintenance and Out-door Relief of the Lady-day half-year, 1865, with that of 1864, it will be found there was a decrease of 31,629 £., or 1·4 per cent.; and it will be seen, by the next Table, that there was a decrease of expense in six Divisions out of the eleven into which the Kingdom is apportioned.

Poor Law Board, }
30 September 1865.

FREDERICK PURDY,
Principal of the Statistical Department.

No. 2.—REMARKS on the INDUSTRIAL STATISTICS of 1861.

THE publication of the Occupations Census of 1861 has rendered it necessary to effect a change both in the form and the matter of the "Industrial Statistics," which, since 1857, has formed part of the series of Papers periodically laid before Parliament by the Poor Law Board under the title of "Poor Rates and Pauperism."

Industrial Statistics.

An explanation of the classes under which the occupations of the people in 1851 were arranged has prefaced the previous numbers of this Series, and therefore need not be repeated. The classification of 1861 differs in several important particulars from that previously employed by the Commissioners of the Census. The new system can be best explained in the words of its author,* premising that, in Dr. Farr's Report on the "Classification of Producers," the lowest groups, termed "Sub-Orders," are marked with a small Arabic numeral (2); that, these Sub-Orders are gathered up into "Orders," marked by a larger numeral (2); and, that, the Orders are collected into "Classes," marked by a Roman figure (II.)

New classification
of the Occupations
of the People.

CLASSIFICATION OF PRODUCERS.

I.—PROFESSIONAL CLASS.

(Orders 1, 2, 3). Andrici.

This great class includes those persons who are rendering service to mankind, and satisfying their intellectual, moral, and devotional wants.

The three first Orders consist of civil servants, national or local; the army and navy; the learned professions, with their immediate subordinates; literary and scientific men, as well as artists in the widest sense.

The first Order (1; 1) includes the members of the Government, and the civil service; (2) the police and other local officials; and (3) the East India and Colonial Service.

The army (2; 1) and navy (2; 2) are in the service of the Government, and are intimately connected with it in all states. The clergy in the Established Church, as well as the lawyers and the courts of justice, are in official subordination to the Sovereign; but the great majority of the members of these professions are neither nominated nor paid by the Crown. Like the medical, the literary, and the scientific professions, which were at one time included in the Church, and were supported by its livings, the clergy and lawyers assert their independence, and are, therefore, made separate Sub-orders. So are authors, artists, musicians, actors, teachers, and scientific men. Nearly all the members of the class are paid directly for their services; and these services have no intermediary, being rarely fixed in any commodity. The pay varies in each Order, and it is either proportional to the time (salary, wages, pay), the job (fees), or the quality and quantity of work done (piecework)."

ORDER 1. Persons engaged in the General or Local Government of the Country.

„ 2. Persons engaged in the Defence of the Country.

„ 3. Persons engaged in the Learned Professions or engaged in Literature, Art, and Science (with their immediate Subordinates).

II.—DOMESTIC CLASS.

(Orders 4 and 5). Oikici.

"The persons in this Class are all employed, if they are employed at all, in houses. Some supply simply service, others with it supply board and lodging (Order 5). They are paid wages (servants), or they are paid for the board and lodging and attendance which they supply. The publicans and beersellers are so much associated and so often confounded with hotel and inn keepers that they are retained in the same Order; although the Order dealing in 'drinks' may claim them. The wife and grown-up children (Order 4) perform at home for the bulk of the population the same duties as the persons in Order 5; but they are not paid directly in money for their services, as they form a part of the natural family; consequently they are distinguished in a separate Order. The very young children properly belong to the non-productive class, and they may there constitute a section; scholars and other children are learning the the elements of their future occupations; but until that occupation is determined they remain in the same Order as their mothers."

ORDER 4. Persons engaged in the Domestic Offices or Duties of Wives, Mothers, Mistresses of Families, Children, Relatives (not otherwise returned).

" 5. Persons engaged in entertaining and performing Personal Offices for Man.

III.—COMMERCIAL CLASS.

(Orders 6 and 7). Agorici.

"The merchant buys any article like tea, abroad, transports it to England, and there sells it. He performs the like operation at home. But as a merchant he effects no change in any of the commodities in which he deals. He buys and sells, and is paid for his services by a varying but rated profit on the goods.

"The carrying order convey commodities, passengers, and messages by land or water, from one place to another. They also warehouse goods. They are paid for their services in fares, freight, and charges which bear some proportion to the weight, bulk, and other properties of the goods. They are all in Order 7, and are closely related to the Order preceding; hence the two Orders (6-7) together may be called the Commercial Class."

ORDER 6. Persons who buy or sell, keep or lend Money, Houses, or Goods of various Kinds.

" 7. Persons engaged in the Conveyance of Men, Animals, Goods, and Messages.

IV.—AGRICULTURAL CLASS.

(Orders 8 and 9). Georgici.

"We now come to a great class which is employed in producing grain, fruit, grass, animals, and other products from the soil. They may be called Growers; for their products grow and are obtained from the living kingdoms of nature. The heads of the Class are paid, not directly for their services, but indirectly in the price of the products which they sell in the market or elsewhere. Thus the price of a quarter of wheat includes the pay of the services of all the persons employed in its production as well as the cost of the tools and machines, including the land, by means of which it is produced and brought to market. Agricultural servants and labourers are paid in wages which the farmers advance. The persons engaged in gardens or woods are in separate Sub-orders.

"The men in Order 9 are employed in catching, training, or dealing in living animals of various kinds. They are the representatives of the hunters of the early stages of civilization, and may be considered an appendage to the previous pastoral and agricultural class, so forming Class IV., which thus includes hunting tribes, the pastoral clans and the agricultural people of the world."

ORDER 8. Persons possessing or working the Land, and engaged in growing Grain, Fruits, Grasses, Animals, and other Products.

" 9. Persons engaged about Animals.

V.—INDUSTRIAL CLASS.

(Orders 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, and 15). Technici.

"This is the Class of makers or artisans. They deal in matter that is either no longer living, or that never lived. They alter the form, texture, or composition of the materials in which they work, so as to produce a great variety of goods, instruments, and machines. Their pay and profits are charged in the price of commodities; the wages of the workmen being advanced by their masters.

"This Class is grouped according to the materials, distinguishing those derived from the three kingdoms of nature.

"The first Order (10.) of the Class includes artisans, making products of various materials, derived from the three kingdoms, such as coaches, ships, workshops, factories, houses, and their furniture or other contents.

"Then follow the persons engaged in the textile fabrics (Order 11.) Wool, silk, cotton, flax, and hemp, are durable, and divisible; their manufacture admits of the sub-division of labour and the application of machinery. The workers in these materials are the essentially manufacturing class. In a Sub-order (4.) are the artisans who convert the manufactured fabrics, and some other matters, into dress.

"Human food, drinks, and stimulants, derived from the animal and vegetable kingdoms, occupy a distinct Order (12.), sub-divided into three Sub-orders.

"Then follow (13.) the persons chiefly or exclusively working and dealing in other animal substances than food (14.) those working and dealing in vegetable substances, and (15.) those working and dealing chiefly in minerals and metals. The first Sub-order of the latter Order (15.) includes the mining population of every kind; the other thirteen Sub-orders include the chief workers in the metals and minerals, beginning with coal and ending with steel."

ORDER 10. Persons engaged in Art and Mechanic Productions in which Matters of various Kinds are employed in combination.

" 11. Persons working and dealing in the Textile Fabrics and in Dress.

" 12. Persons working and dealing in Food and Drinks.

" 13. Persons working and dealing in Animal Substances.

" 14. Persons working and dealing in Vegetable Substances.

" 15. Persons working and dealing in Minerals.

VI.—INDEFINITE AND NON-PRODUCTIVE CLASS.

(Orders 16, 17, and 18).

"The last Class includes the numbers returned in a vague way, so as to scarcely admit of classification among either the professional, the domestic, the commercial, the agricultural, the industrial classes.

"It embraces the totally distinct Orders of general labourers (16.), persons of property returned as of no occupation (17.), and persons supported by the community (18.) Many of the persons in Orders 16 and 17 properly belong to the other classes."

ORDER 16. Labourers and others—Branch of Labour undefined

" 17. Persons of Rank or Property not returned under any Office or Occupation.

" 18. Persons supported by the Community, and of no specified Occupation.

Other Persons of no stated Occupation or Condition

The relation of the new to the old classification is briefly exhibited by the following Synoptical Table:—

In considering the occupations of the people in connexion with pauperism, the first class has been rejected, because, although it participates in the general welfare of the country, it experiences the vicissitudes of trade less directly than the others; and the last class, because it is indefinite, and therefore but little adapted to form any useful term of comparison within the field of pauper statistics. The ratio per cent. of persons aged 20 years and upwards ascribable to each of the six classes of occupations for all the Unions has, in the present instance, been computed for every Union by the Commissioners of the Census. The ratios of the four selected classes are printed opposite to the respective Unions in the following pages; at the same time, the special designation of the chief industries pursued in the various Unions according to the Census of 1851, has been retained in the place it originally filled in these Returns.

Ratio of Occu-
pations.

The absolute, as well as the proportional numbers of the adult population under the Six Industrial Classes, are shown in the subjoined Table for each Division and for each Union-County, as published in the third volume of the Census of England and Wales.

No. 1.--REMARKS ON THE ANNUAL POOR RATE RETURN, YEAR ENDED LADY-DAY 1864.

Series of Returns.

The present Return is the fifty-seventh annual publication of the Poor Rate Returns.

Extent of the Return.

This Return is, in respect of the number of places which it represents, the most complete of the Statistics of Pauperism; for in it the sums levied and expended as Poor Rates throughout the whole of England and Wales are exhibited; excepting only some small Parishes, which are stated by the overseers either to have "No poor," or to make no levy "yet."

Valuations to the Poor Rates.

The Net Annual Value of Property assessed to the Poor's Rate has been returned in respect of four parochial years. "The Gross Estimated Rental" is also returned for the last of these years.

The Returns, in a contracted shape, are exhibited in the next Table, for the last three years, with the Rate per head, on the estimated population, of the amount levied as Poor's Rate, and of the amount expended in Relief:—

* The details of these Valuations will be found in the following Papers, printed by order of the House of Commons; viz., No. 235, "Real Property," 1842; No. 735, "Poor Rates, &c." 1848; No. 539, "Poor Rate Assessment," 1852; No. 63, "Population, &c. of Parishes," 1858; and No. 251, "Population, Inhabited Houses, &c.," 1859. The "Gross Estimated Rental," and the "Rateable Value" for each Parish is given with respect to the Parochial year 1856 in No. 491, "Poor Rates, &c.," Session 1861.

The greater part of the expenditure, described in the last Table as for "All other Purposes," consists of payments which have no connexion whatever with relief to the poor. This part of the Poor-Rate Expenditure, which is foreign to the object originally contemplated in the enactment of the rate, has greatly increased since the passing of the Poor Law Amendment Act in 1834, in consequence of the imposition of new and the augmentation of old charges. The next Table exhibits, separately, all the charges referred to, so far as the returns permit. The heaviest item is the disbursement in respect of the "County, Hundred, or Borough Rate, or Police Rate."

Table of Expenses unconnected with Relief.

Considerably more than one-third of the whole Poor Rates now levied, are expended for purposes unconnected with Relief to the Poor. Besides the charges here shown, there are some others paid out of the Rate, but which are not discriminated, such as the expenses incurred for sanitary purposes, and the cost of providing new Burial Grounds.

Principal Charges which constitute Relief to the Poor.

The principal heads of expenditure, which constitute "Relief to the Poor," are shown in the next Table, together with the average price of wheat for the three years.

The column in the Return, which succeeds that of "Total Expenditure," contains the expense of Medical Relief only; this consists of salaries to the Medical Officers; extra Medical Fees paid to them under the General Consolidated Order; also, the cost (if any) of medical and surgical appliances, and drugs. The sums in this column are not additional to those given in Column 4, § A, of the Return; because, the various items of Medical Relief are included in sub-columns (e) or (f), as forming a portion of the "Relief to the Poor:" the "Medical Relief" is printed separately, as indicating an important and special subject of Poor Law administration.

Medical Relief.

The sums expended under this head during the last three years were as follows:

For 1861-62	-	-	-	-	-	-	£. 242,200
1862-63	-	-	-	-	-	-	248,286

School Districts.

Twenty-six Unions and single Parishes, chiefly Metropolitan, are combined into School Districts; the contributions which each Union makes to the Treasurer of its district are included in the other items of relief, and, as such, entered in the proper columns of the Poor Rate Return; this, then, like the Medical Relief, does not represent any additional expenditure, having been heretofore properly included in the amounts printed opposite to the respective Unions concerned.

The sums contributed by each Union to the School District; and, the sums expended by each district and for each Union during the parochial year 1863-64, are contained in the subjoined Table:—

Poor Law Board, }
24 April 1865. }

FREDERICK PURDY,
Principal of the Statistical Department.

REMARKS on the INDUSTRIAL STATISTICS of 1861.

THE publication of the Occupations Census of 1861 has rendered it necessary to effect a change both in the form and the matter of the "Industrial Statistics," which, since 1857, has formed part of the series of Papers periodically laid before Parliament by the Poor Law Board under the title of "Poor Rates and Pauperism."

Industrial Statistics.

An explanation of the classes under which the occupations of the people in 1851 were arranged has prefaced the previous numbers of this Series, and therefore need not be repeated. The classification of 1861 differs in several important particulars from that previously employed by the Commissioners of the Census. The new system can be best explained in the words of its author,* premising that, in Dr. Farr's Report on the "Classification of Producers," the lowest groups, termed "Sub-Orders," are marked with a small Arabic numeral (2); that, these Sub-Orders are gathered up into "Orders," marked by a larger numeral (2); and, that, the Orders are collected into "Classes," marked by a Roman figure (II.)

New classification
of the Occupations
of the People.

CLASSIFICATION OF PRODUCERS.

I.—PROFESSIONAL CLASS.

(Orders 1, 2, 3). Andrici.

"This great class includes those persons who are rendering direct service to mankind, and satisfying their intellectual, moral, and devotional wants.

"The three first Orders consist of civil servants, national or local; the army and navy; the learned professions, with their immediate subordinates; literary and scientific men, as well as artists in the widest sense.

"The first Order (1; 1) includes the members of the Government, and the civil service; (2) the police and other local officers; and (3) the East India and Colonial Service.

"The army (2; 1) and navy (2; 2) are in the service of the Government, and are intimately connected with it in all states. And the clergy in the Established Church, as well as the lawyers in the courts of justice, are in official subordination to the Sovereign; but the great majority of the members of these professions are neither nominated nor paid by the Crown. Like the medical, the literary, and the scientific professions, which were at one time included in the Church, and were supported by its livings, the clergy and lawyers assert their independence, and are, therefore, made separate Sub-orders. So are authors, artists, musicians, actors, teachers, and scientific men. Nearly all the members of the class are paid directly for their services; and these services have no intermediary, being rarely fixed in any commodity. The pay varies in each Order, and it is either proportional to the time (salary, wages, pay), the job (fees), or the quality and quantity of work done (piecework)."

ORDER 1. Persons engaged in the General or Local Government of the Country.

" 2. Persons engaged in the Defence of the Country.

" 3. Persons engaged in the Learned Professions or engaged in Literature, Art, and Science (with their immediate Subordinates).

II.—DOMESTIC CLASS.

(Orders 4 and 5). Oikici.

"The persons in this Class are all employed, if they are employed at all, in houses. Some supply simply service, others with it supply board and lodging (Order 5). They are paid wages (servants), or they are paid for the board and lodging and attendance which they supply. The publicans and beersellers are so much associated and so often confounded with hotel and inn keepers that they are retained in the same Order; although the Order dealing in 'drinks' may claim them. The wife and grown-up children (Order 4) perform at home for the bulk of the population the same duties as the persons in Order 5; but they are not paid directly in money for their services, as they form a part of the natural family; consequently they are distinguished in a separate Order. The very young children properly belong to the non-productive class, and they may there constitute a section; scholars and other children are learning the

* See Dr. Farr's account of the "New Classification of the People according to their Employment."—Census of England and Wales, 1861, Vol. III., pp. 225 et seq.

the elements of their future occupations; but until that occupation is determined they remain in the same Order as their mothers."

ORDER 4. Persons engaged in the Domestic Offices or Duties of Wives, Mothers, Mistresses of Families, Children, Relatives (not otherwise returned).

" 5. Persons engaged in entertaining, and performing Personal Offices for Man.

III.—COMMERCIAL CLASS.

(Orders 6 and 7). Agorici.

"The merchant buys any article like tea, abroad, transports it to England, and there sells it. He performs the like operation at home. But as a merchant he effects no change in any of the commodities in which he deals. He buys and sells, and is paid for his services by a varying but rated profit on the goods.

"The carrying order convey commodities, passengers, and messages by land or water, from one place to another. They also warehouse goods. They are paid for their services in fares, freight, and charges which bear some proportion to the weight, bulk, and other properties of the goods. They are all in Order 7, and are closely related to the Order preceding; hence the two Orders (6-7) together may be called the Commercial Class."

ORDER 6. Persons who buy or sell, keep or lend Money, Houses, or Goods of various Kinds.

" 7. Persons engaged in the Conveyance of Men, Animals, Goods, and Messages.

IV.—AGRICULTURAL CLASS.

(Orders 8 and 9). Georgici.

"We now come to a great class which is employed in producing grain, fruit, grass, animals, and other products from the soil. They may be called Growers; for their products grow and are obtained from the living kingdoms of nature. The heads of the Class are paid, not directly for their services, but indirectly in the price of the products which they sell in the market or elsewhere. Thus the price of a quarter of wheat includes the pay of the services of all the persons employed in its production as well as the cost of the tools and machines, including the land, by means of which it is produced and brought to market. Agricultural servants and labourers are paid in wages which the farmers advance. The persons engaged in gardens or woods are in separate Sub-orders.

"The men in Order 9 are employed in catching, training, or dealing in living animals of various kinds. They are the representatives of the hunters of the early stages of civilization, and may be considered an appendage to the previous pastoral and agricultural class, so forming Class IV., which thus includes hunting tribes, the pastoral clans and the agricultural people of the world."

ORDER 8. Persons possessing or working the Land, and engaged in growing Grain, Fruits, Grasses, Animals, and other Products.

" 9. Persons engaged about Animals.

V.—INDUSTRIAL CLASS.

(Orders 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, and 15). Technici.

"This is the Class of makers or artisans. They deal in matter that is either no longer living, or that never lived. They alter the form, texture, or composition of the materials in which they work, so as to produce a great variety of goods, instruments, and machines. Their pay and profits are charged in the price of commodities; the wages of the workmen being advanced by their masters.

"This Class is grouped according to the materials, distinguishing those derived from the three kingdoms of nature.

"The first Order (10.) of the Class includes artisans, making products of various materials, derived from the three kingdoms, such as coaches, ships, workshops, factories, houses, and their furniture or other contents.

"Then follow the persons engaged in the textile fabrics (Order 11.) Wool, silk, cotton, flax, and hemp, are durable, and divisible; their manufacture admits of the sub-division of labour and the application of machinery. The workers in these materials are the essentially manufacturing class. In a Sub-order (4.) are the artisans who convert the manufactured fabrics, and some other matters, into dress.

"Human food, drinks, and stimulants, derived from the animal and vegetable kingdoms, occupy a distinct Order (12.), sub-divided into three Sub-orders.

"Then follow (13.) the persons chiefly or exclusively working and dealing in other animal substances than food (14.), those working and dealing in vegetable substances, and (15.), those working and dealing chiefly in minerals and metals. The first Sub-order of the latter Order (15.) includes the mining population of every kind; the other thirteen Sub-orders include the chief workers in the metals and minerals, beginning with coal, and ending with steel."

ORDER 10. Persons engaged in Art and Mechanic Productions, in which Matters of various Kinds are employed in combination.

" 11. Persons working and dealing in the Textile Fabrics and in Dress.

" 12. Persons working and dealing in Food and Drinks.

" 13. Persons working and dealing in Animal Substances.

" 14. Persons working and dealing in Vegetable Substances.

" 15. Persons working and dealing in Minerals.

VI.—INDEFINITE AND NON-PRODUCTIVE CLASS.

(Orders 16, 17, and 18).

"The last Class includes the numbers returned in a vague way, so as to scarcely admit of classification among either the professional, the domestic, the commercial, the agricultural, or the industrial classes.

"It embraces the totally distinct Orders of general labourers (16.), persons of property returned as of no occupation (17.), and persons supported by the community (18.) Many of the persons in Orders 16 and 17 properly belong to the other classes."

ORDER 16. Labourers and others—Branch of Labour undefined.

" 17. Persons of Rank or Property not returned under any Office or Occupation.

" 18. Persons supported by the Community, and of no specified Occupation.

Other Persons of no stated Occupation or Condition.

The relation of the new to the old classification is briefly exhibited by the following Synoptical Table:—

Ratio of Occupations.

The absolute, as well as the proportional numbers of the adult population under the Six Industrial Classes, are shown in the subjoined Table for each Division and for each Union-County, as published in the third volume of the Census of England and Wales.

No. 1.—REMARKS ON THE RETURN OF INSANE PAUPERS,

CHARGEABLE ON THE 1ST JANUARY 1865.

Source of Information.

1. THE Statistics of Pauper Insanity contained in this Paper have been compiled from the lists of "Lunatics, Idiots, and other Persons of Unsound Mind," who were chargeable to the Poor Rates on the 1st January 1865. These lists are made out annually by the Clerks to the Guardians, and transmitted to the Poor Law Board, in compliance with the 16 & 17 Vict. c. 97, s. 64, and in the form prescribed by Schedule D. of that Statute.

Places returned.

2. Returns have been received from 662* Unions and Single Parishes under Boards of Guardians. The Population of these places, according to the Census of 1861, is 19,962,641. The number of Insane Paupers chargeable to the Poor Rates in those places on that day is shown below :—

Number of Paupers on 1st January 1865.	Whereof were Insane Paupers.	Namely :—
		Lunatics.	Idiots.
974,772†	38,487	28,466	10,021

Thus 4·0 per cent. of the Pauperism, on the 1st January last, is ascribable to Insanity ; the Lunatics being 2·9 per cent., and the Idiots 1·1 per cent.

Proportion of the Sexes.
